Capt. J. R. Anderson Assures Us of It Caught in Machinery, Young Man Has Both Arms Torn from Body.

Capt. J. R. Anderson, of the Blue Ridge Railway, was in Walhalla on business for a short while last week. He was here looking after a right of way, in a suitable location, for the building of a "Y," the old turntable in South Broad street having served its day and become useless on ac-count of being too small to turn the large engines now used by the Blue Last Saturday, about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, Carl Singleton, 19 years of age, met a horrible death at the ginnery of J. J. Cromer, at Cross Roads, in this county. Mr. Single-ton had been employed about the place and was in the engine room. The sleeve of his overall jumper caught in the set key of the shart, and with the awful jerk and pull that resulted the young man's arms were torn loose from his body just a few inches below the shoulders, com-pletely severing bone, muscles, flesh and all. The body was thrown one direction, the arms in another, fall-ing about four feet apart. It was one of the most harrowing accidents that, has ever happened in this county. large engines now used by the Blue Ridge.

Ridge. "Captain," we said on meeting Mr. Anderson, "Walhalla wants a new depot." The reply was prompt: "Yes, I know it is badly needed, and we are going to build it the first thing next spring. In fact, it would have been built before this, but the Blue Ridge had to purchase a lot of new rolling stock, larger engines, etc., and was compelled to do con-siderable building, and several im-provements—among them the new siderable building, and several improvements—among them the new depot for Walhalla—had to be held up temporarily. It has been on our list of needed improvements for a good while and will be one of the first things for next spring." This will be appreciated news to the citizens of Walhalla, and it is to be heped that Superintendent Anderson's plans will be carried out at a very early date. As a matter of fact, it cannot be delayed long, or the traveling public and freight shipments will find themselves out in the weather at this point. What Walhalla should do now is to take the matter up with the railroad and see that the town gets adequate and substantial freight and passenger depots

Steward of Poor House.

At the regular meeting of the At the regular meeting of the Board of County Commissioners last Friday W. R. Cobb was re-elected as steward for the county farm and poor house. Mr. Cobb has held this position for about six years, and has made a most acceptable and efficient officer. For several years the county farm was a source of expense to the county, but for quite a while it has been increasing in point of revenue, thus decreasing the expense, until now it is a practically self-sustaining institution.

The following estimate of products and their value was furnished to the Supervisor and Commissioners last Friday: Returns from Oconce County Poor Farm for Year 1907.

Young Singleton lived 45 minutes, during which time he spoke to his father, T. P. Singleton, and also to Mr. Cromer. He was an excellent young man, and his untimely death cast a deep gloom over his home community and is deeply regretted by hosts of friends of the family all over the county. The bereaved par-ents have the sympathy of all in their deep sorrow. The body of Mr. Singleton was laid to rest Sunday afternoon at the Cross Roads cemetery. In the pres-ence of a large concourse of sorrow-ing relatives and friends. R. Q. Merrick Promoted.

R. Q. Merrick, formerly of Wal-halla, a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Merrick, has recently been promoted Merrick, has recently beer promoted in the internal revenue service. For over two years he has been Division Deputy Collector under Col. Micah Deputy Collector under Col. Micah Jenkins, but has now been promoted to Raiding Deputy on the force of Revenue Agent Scriven, whose head-quarters are at Greensboro, N. C. Mr. Merrick's headquarters will still be in Greenville, S. C., though his work will embrace the territory of South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia. The promotion affects both position and salary. Mr. Merrick has made a very efficient officer, and the promotion is well deserved.

Married in Atlanta.

The following from the Clayton (Ga.) Tribune will be of interest to many in this section:

many in this section: Marled, at the First Presbyterian church, in Atlanta, on Friday, Octo-ber 25th, G. F. Leslie, of Abbeville, S. C., and Miss Blanche Wall, of Clayton. The bride is well known here, having been reared in Clayton. Mr. Leslie has been for a number of years a manufacturer at Franklin, N. C., and is a model and exemplary young man. They are at present at Chattanooga, but will return here in a few days, where they will be at home to their friends.

The members of the G. G. C. and a host of their friends were delight-ed on receiving the above invitation. Remembering the warm hospitality of Miss Rose on other delightful oc-casions, many were charmed to ac-cept the kind invitation: Through the hearty cordiality of the gracious hostess, the spacious halls of the Blue Ridge Minera' Springs Hotel were given up to the enjoyment of the year, when shorts and hobgob-lins "are wont to steal their way into the midst of the gayest revels," could be more appropriate than a Hal-lowe'en Party, and such it was to which Miss Rose invited her friends On entering the main hallway, the suests' passed into the front parlor, where they were graciously received by the hostess, assisted by her mo-ther, and also by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Busch and Miss Baumgartel. The reception hall and parlors were made to look a veritable ghostiant by be-ing decorated in the emblematic jack-o'-lanterns and other suggestions of Hallowe'en. None could fail to ap-preciate the rare event of being in the domain of ghosts, when they glanced around and saw the weird forms of "phantoms maying majesti-cally," and in this throng many "met their fate," the mystery of which to be solved in after years. Upon the arrival of all the guests, every one assembled in the parlor, where a merry and spirited contest ensued, the object of which was to ascertain which could eat the most pumpkin pie in the shortest time, re-gardless of the fact that they might spoil their "countenances." Pump-kin pie being such a favorite concoc-tion for Hallowe'en, each one outdid the other. The evening would not have been complete without ghost tales, so next the other. The evening would not have been complete without ghost tales, so next each one in his own unearthly way related a most thrilling adventure of his own or of his ancestors. In spite of the fact that many had "met their fate," each felt that he would like to know more of the future, and was charmed to welcome Miss Ella Reid, exceedingly well disguised as an old Gypsy fortune teller. By reading the palms of each one, she enabled them to look far into the future. After the fortunes were told the masks were removed, and every one felt that he had emerged from the land of the supernatural, and in the lately that he had emerged from the land of the supernatural, and in the lately phantom-like forms he recognized his friends from the earth. Upon the return of hor guests to this world, the hostess realized the never-dying appetite of mortais, and asked the gentlemen to const the hever-dying appetite of mortais, and asked the gentlemen to escort the ladies to the claims room. Here a beautiful and magical sight mot the eyes of all, for the decorations were even prettier and more appropriate than those of the other rooms. In the center of the large dining hall, dimly lighted by jack-o'lanterns, a long table was arranged spread with dimly lighted by jack-o'lanterns, a long table was arranged, spread with snow-white linen, strewn with golden autumn leaves, interspersed with vases of autumn flowers. In other parts of the room were small tables holding beautiful ferns and other pot plants. From the ceiling were fes-tooned garlands of the club colors-black and gold. Dainty favors, a pen and ink sketch of a smiling jack-o'-lantern, tied with black and gold, were presented to each one on entero'-lantern, tied with black and gold, were presented to each one on enter-ing the dining room. The color scheme, black and gold, was taste-fully carried out in the refreshments, fully carried out in the refreshments, which consisted of hot chocolate and black and gold layer cake, and sponge cake, iced in black and gold. Refreshments having been served, all entered the rear parlor, where the prize was awarded for the best ghost story, it being a handsome vase, won by Miss Bertha Schumacher. The at Ducktown, Tennessee. Cling Browning, against whom there stands a true bill in the Court of General Sessions for Oconee coun-ty, is at 1 ist positively located in jail at Ducktown, Tenh., where he is swaiting trial for wife-beating in that State since he left here last spring after shooting Policeman Jas. Rutledge, who attempted to arrest imm in the dark. Mr. Rutledge placed his hand on Browning's shoul-der in the act of making the arrest, when the latter pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot the officer. Af-fer careful treatment Mr. Rutledge recovered and is again on duty on the Walhalia police force. Browning was heard of at several points in North Carolina and Georgia, but was never positively located until the offi-cers at Ducktown, Polk county, Ten-nessee, placed him in jail on the charge of wife-beating, he having struck his wife on the head with a bottle with painful results. It is also understood that there are charges against him in North Carolina, in which State he stopped long enough to get into trouble. He is a danger-ous character, and as soon as the Tennessee authorities are through with him he will be brought here to answer the charge of shooting Po-liceman Rutledge. His trial in Ten-nessee will take place at Ducktown on the third Monday in this month. Browning is one of the most dan-sprous characters that ever located in Walhalia, and it is quite probable that when he has finished serving the in Tennessee and this State he will be somewhat older than he is now. will be somewhat older than he is now.

Will Probably Die from Burns.

Will Probably Die from Burns. Caroline Gaines, a young colored woman of Walhalla, was so seriously burned last Saturady night, just about dusk, that she will probably die from the effects. One of her chil-dren was lighting a lamp, which blazed up, frightening the child, and the mother ran to it, throwing her apron over the blaze. Instead of smothering the flames, as she had ex-pected to do, her apron caught fire and enveloped her in a blaze. Run-ning frantically from the house and calling for help, the woman created consternation in North Broad street. The flying figure was a mass of blaze from her waist up, her head and body being almost completely envel-oped as she ran and screamed for help. She was finally caught and thrown down, and by rolling her over and over on the ground the flames were extinguished, but not until she had been so badly burned that her recovery is very doubtful. She is in

All now eagerly sought the dance hall. The music was furnished by Miss Sophie Rose at the plano and two yiolinists. The following couples being placed, the old, familiar square dance was gracefully led by J. C. Rampley and Miss Sophie Rose; Miss Ella Reid with Hugh P. Holleman; Miss Fanwith Hugh F. Holleman; Miss Fan-nie Mae Mickler with Rieppe Bie-mann; Miss Dora Pitchford with Sam Verner; Miss Mary Lay with Mack Neville; Miss Bertha Schumacher with Charlie Rose. After this a few couples enjoyed a waltz or two.

Besides the dancers, other couples in the hall were: Miss Tommie Pitch-ford with Claude Reid; Miss Mary Pitchford with Teay Hutchison; Miss Salina Yongue with Charlie Rose; Miss Lula Earle with Marvin Phin-ney

The dance being ended, the "wee sma' hours' of the night were ap-proaching, and the happy guests bade their lovely hostess "good night," each assuring her that the evening spent was the most pleasant of the season.
