

GRAVES OF THE PRESIDENTS.

How many Courier readers know where are located the graves of all the former Presidents of the United States? A writer in the New York World thus describes them:

There is to-day no living ex-President of this nation. Of President Roosevelt's twenty-four predecessors the tombs are scattered over eleven States as follows:

1. George Washington.—His tomb stands near, and within sight of, the historic mansion on the sixty acres of his old plantation, now owned by the Mount Vernon Association, on the Virginia side of the Potomac river, sixteen miles below Washington. The burial vault is a plain brick structure, built according to directions left by Washington in his will. On a marble slab over the gates is given the inscription:

"Within This Enclosure Rest the Remains of General George Washington." In plain view, just inside the iron grill, are two marble sarcophagi, one simply lettered "Washington," the other "Martha, Consort of Washington."

2 and 6. John Adams and John Quincy Adams.—The bodies of both these patriots are entombed beneath the portico of the Unitarian church at Quincy, Mass. No monument or exterior sign marks the spot where rest father and son, both great fighters for our national independence.

3. Thomas Jefferson.—He served his country for forty-four years, dying a comparatively poor man, and was buried in the private burying ground near the road leading to Monticello from Charlottesville, Va. A little stone marked the spot for 57 years. As it was fast going to decay, Congress finally erected a monument inscribed:

"Here was Buried THOMAS JEFFERSON, Author of the Declaration of Independence."

It is a granite shaft eighteen feet high.

4. James Madison.—Like Jefferson, Madison was buried on his own farm, this being near Monticello, Va. For twenty-two years the spot was unmarked, until finally public spirit started a subscription and erected a shaft marked "Madison." It stands twenty-four feet high. It is not even to-day positively determined whether the monument stands at the spot where the body was buried, as there never had been any marking of the grave.

5. James Monroe.—Encyclopaedias and histories, as a rule, when they mention the subject have President Monroe buried in the old "Marble Cemetery" on Second street, New York city. In reality his body rests in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, Va. The grave is surrounded by a steel grating, which was erected to protect the sarcophagus, after vandals had twice stolen the copper name-plate. For twenty-seven years Monroe's body did rest in the New York cemetery, in vault No. 147, belonging to Robert Tiltons. In 1858, at the expense of the State of Virginia, the body was removed.

7. Andrew Jackson rests in a corner of his garden at the Hermitage, eleven miles from Nashville, Tenn. A beautiful monument, fifteen feet high, marks the spot, and is inscribed "General Andrew Jackson," giving dates of birth and death.

8. Martin Van Buren.—In a little cemetery at Kinderhook, N. Y., rises Van Buren's unpretentious shaft.

9. William Henry Harrison.—"Tippecanoe" Harrison was a great general and fighter in the battles of his country, yet for fifty-six years his body rested in a dilapidated tomb at North Bend, Ohio, in the midst of a pasture field. The ground was deeded to the State of Ohio, and the tomb repaired to its present condition in 1897, when the name "Harrison" was cut on the tomb for the first time.

10. John Tyler.—A little stone about twenty by thirty inches marks President Tyler's resting place in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, Va. His grave is less than ten yards from President Monroe's, and for thirty-seven years was unmarked.

11. James K. Polk.—At Nashville, Tenn., President Polk's remains rest in his own door yard for forty-four years. They were then removed to the Capitol grounds at the expense of the State, and now repose under a befitting monument.

12. Zachary Taylor.—At St. Matthews, Ky., in a large field of his old farm, stands a beautiful monument, thirty-seven feet high, bearing the name "Maj.-Gen. Zachary Taylor, Twelfth President of the United States," a profile of the General, and a list of the battles he fought. It was erected by the State.

13. Millard Fillmore.—A plain obelisk, twenty-two feet high stands in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Buffalo, N. Y., to the memory of Millard Fillmore.

14. Franklin Pierce.—A fourteen-foot monument of Canadian marble, at Concord, N. H., is inscribed, "Franklin Pierce," and bears the line: "Other refuge have I none."

15. James Buchanan.—At Lancaster, Pa., stands the monument marking the grave of Abraham Lincoln's predecessor as Chief Magistrate.

16. Abraham Lincoln.—His tomb and monument at Springfield, Ill., cost $270,000, which sum was raised by public subscription. In 1900 it was discovered that the foundation was defective, and the State appropriated $100,000 to rebuild the structure. It now stands 135 feet high. The inscription is:

"LINCOLN, 'With Malice Towards None, With Charity For All.'"

18. Ulysses S. Grant.—He is honored with one of the grandest mausoleums in the world. It cost $700,000, stands 300 feet above the level of the Hudson, on Riverside Drive, New York, and was the gift of the people of the country. It is marked, "Let Us Have Peace!" Inside are two sarcophagi, each weighing ten tons, one marked "Ulysses S. Grant," the other "Julia D. Grant."

19. Rutherford B. Hayes sleeps beneath a modest monument in the family plot at Fremont, Ohio.

20. James A. Garfield.—At Cleve-

When applied to the barn, not the slightest draught or moisture can reach the interior. Stock thrives where such conditions exist. They'll last as long as the building itself and never need repairs. Any good mechanic can lay them, for a hammer and nails is all that is necessary.

THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Next Meeting State Association at Columbia, December 30-31.

The next meeting of the State Teachers' Association will be held in Columbia December 30 and 31, and January 1, and it promises to break all records for attendance. Holiday rates will be in force, and it is expected that every live teacher, principal and superintendent in the State will be present.

The program of the general sessions and the several departments have been practically completed and will be published in about ten days. Some of the best speakers in South Carolina have consented to make addresses, among whom are Senator B. R. Tillman, Dr. S. C. Mitchell, president of the University of South Carolina; Col. O. J. Bond, superintendent of the South Carolina Military Academy; Rev. J. Henry Harms, president of Newberry College; Superintendent-elect John E. Swearingen, Hon. John G. Richards, of Kershaw; Judge Geo. W. Gage, of Chester; Dr. Wm. Burdell, and other well known public men and educators.

Miss Nance, of the School Improvement Association, has just secured the consent of Prof. P. P. Claxton, of the University of Tennessee, to make the leading address before that organization.

Besides the general program of the association, of which L. T. Baker is president, each of the affiliated organizations and departments has arranged attractive programs. Superintendent O. B. Martin, of the Association of County Superintendents; Miss Mary Nance, president of the School Improvement Association; Prof. W. K. Tate, head of the Association of Town and City Superintendents; Dr. P. H. Mell, president of the Association of Colleges; Miss Minnie MacFate, president of the Kindergarten Association, and Miss Pope, president of the Primary Department, have all secured the best available material for their respective programs.

The halls and lobbies of the State House will be used for the occasion. The school exhibit will be displayed in the lobby on the second floor, and here also will be located the headquarters of the association where each teacher is requested to report upon arrival, and secure a membership card and badge.

A reception will be tendered the visiting teachers by the teachers of the schools and colleges of Columbia on Thursday afternoon, December 30, in the lobby and library. Music will form an interesting part of each evening's program. Misses Nance and Selby have been appointed at the head of the committees of the afternoon reception and music, while Col. A. R. Banks heads the general reception committee. Although the crowd will be large, ample hotel accommodation at reasonable rates has been provided. Col. Banks will take pleasure in arranging board in advance for all who will write him.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address—F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by druggists, 75c.

21. Chester A. Arthur.—His friends erected a beautiful monument in the Rural Cemetery, at Albany, N. Y., at a cost of $11,000.

22. Grover Cleveland.—All that can be shown as yet is President Cleveland's grave, by the side of his daughter Ruth's grave, at Princeton, N. J. His will provides for a modest monument to be erected.

23. Benjamin Harrison.—At Indianapolis is a dignified monument to the memory of Benjamin Harrison, "Lawyer and Publicist, President."

24. William McKinley.—On Monument Hill, Canton, Ohio, stands one of the country's finest monuments, rising to a height of 164 feet, and 79 feet in diameter, marking the grave of the martyred President.

1,100 KNOWN DISEASES.

The Eye Alone is Subject to Forty-Eight Distinct Affections.

(Chicago Journal.)

A German physician who has a bent for statistics is responsible for the statement that the human frame is liable to 1,100 diseases. If he is correct one can but marvel at how few of these ailments the average person manages to contract during a lifetime.

The eye alone is subject to no less than 48 distinct and different affections. Considering its apparent vulnerability to contagion it escapes with great good luck, but in reality it is not as exposed as at first thought would seem. The eyelids are automatic in their protection of the eyeball, and the first instinct is to snap shut when a blow is directed toward them. Incidentally they "oil" the eye and keep its surface free from dust, etc.

It is for the good of the human race that the practice of medicine has changed during the last twenty-five years. Formerly there was a specific remedy for each disease, and the poor patient was almost dragged to death. Nowadays physicians recognize that healing is a matter of restoring normal conditions, and more attention is given to favorable influences of mind and surroundings and less to medicine.

The German doctor's figures are rather appalling, but the daily progress of the science of health and healing is rapidly reducing the number of dangerous diseases, and ultimately may eliminate them. Study and experiment have marched far. Tuberculosis, the white plague, will be fought to a standstill within a few years, the average standard of health and strength will be raised and the average duration of life will be prolonged.

Thus medicine wins greater victories in the science of prevention than it ever won in the science of healing.

Capers in Taft's Cabinet.

MAN CAN LIVE FOREVER!

Student of Longevity Announces His Beliefs on this Question.

New York, Nov. 23.—Man ought to live forever if the proper "spirit life" is cultivated, according to Chas. Brodie Patterson, who has made a special study of longevity.

This rather startling statement he made at the Waldorf-Astoria during a meeting of the Medico-Legal Society.

Authenticated cases of extreme long life he pointed out to support his theory, adding that with proper care even the longest spans of life as now measured might be increased twenty or thirty years or even indefinitely.

Another speaker said that he knew of a man in England who lived to the ripe old age of 130 years, and that those who wished might do the same.

Alcoholic stimulants, declared another speaker, cuts short many a life that would otherwise be long.
