

SUNSHINE RAYS.

State Leader's Address.

At the recent gathering of the Sunshine workers at Richland Miss Marye R. Shelor, State leader, addressed the gathering as follows:

Words fall when I try to express my appreciation of your gathering here to-day as a federated band of Sunshine workers, and as your State leader I bring you greetings from the faithful members in South Carolina. As a native of your county, I come with my hands ready to help turn on the electric current to brighten up this world, where sorrow is ever known. Christ is the power-house, and the brilliancy of our shining depends on the amount we draw from Him. Christ was a Sunshiner. See Him going about doing good; hear Him tell the Marys, "Go tell you have seen the risen Lord." Wasn't that passing it on? See Him go to the home of the sisters, and hear Him say, "Tell Mary the Master cometh and calleth for thee." The Master calleth for thee to-day, for there is plenty of work to do. What shall the answer be? The Master called for me, and I did not answer, and He kept on calling. The Master must be obeyed. The Master's call was answered through the death of a brother who had consecrated his life to suffering humanity. I saw his life-blood ebb away from an accidental gun wound, and skilled doctors stood by powerless to alleviate his suffering. I heard the Master say over his bier, "The Master cometh and calleth for thee." Then I said, Lord, here am I.

I began to work for my country by trying to better the schools, and in 1900 started a library, and had eight public libraries in Oconee before the library law was passed. In 1902 I started the O. R. S. I. A., and I copy from a letter on my desk the following from Superintendent McMahan: "Your association is a pioneer in the South and deserves great credit for what it has done and is doing, and I hope its spirit will spread." Superintendent Martin came up, to use his own words, "to get the hang of it." We told him of the work and how Mr. Upham, of the Youth's Companion, was helping us, and he took our plans upon which to build the State association.

Governor Heyward appointed me a school visitor, and I traveled over Oconee and Pickens for eight weeks with my small brother and Superintendent Hallum, studying conditions and having rallies. This work was new for a woman, and harsh criticism was heard, but I kept a brave heart, did my duty and left the results with God. I received a dollar and a quarter a day and all expenses. I have worked nine years and that is the only pay I ever received. I now have my traveling and other expenses of the work paid. So you see it is a labor of love.

When Mrs. Nance came into office she asked me to give up the work. This most broke my heart, but God always gives a reward for submitting, and I could not more time on my D. A. R. and Sunshine work, and in this I have met with more success and appreciation. The stormy time I had in rural work only fitted me better for my Sunshine work. I have often been asked, How did you get into the Sunshine work as a State leader? Mrs. Alden keeps up with progress, and she read of my work in school journals and said, "I must have her to scatter sunshine in South Carolina."

I began the work without a penny and not a circle, yet there were Sunshine circles and a leader before, but they had disbanded. Mr. Gonzales gave me a column in the Sunday State every other week, and I have tried to plant a seed which I hope will develop into an oak of philanthropy.

Mrs. W. P. Reid and J. T. Mundy and Carter Riser, a shut-in, wrote that they would help me, and these faithful workers have traveled out of Egypt with me, and as others come in, they grow more faithful. The first call came from a lady wanting us to try to stop her brother from drinking. Our plan had the desired effect for a time, but not long did it last.

I found many would send out rays of sunshine, but could not join a circle. This class of workers are enrolled on the Gonzales or Carlyle club and they report to me monthly. I have a four-score branch, and those who have lived a useful and upright life are enrolled on this, and we send cheer and try to make their last days happy. I have the honor roll, and those who have attained fame are on this roll. I have a ministers' roll also, and I enroll all ministers who will help us in this work so grand. The cradle roll is for mothers to place the names of their darlings and pledge to train them for the work.

I am glad to say the work is meeting the approval of the educators of South Carolina, and I hope the way is now brighter. Sometimes hope almost left my Pandora box, but God led me on through the encircling gloom. I appointed a chaplain for each denomination, and the synod of my church offered a special prayer for me and my work.

I will give you a synopsis of my work as your leader:

We sent a boy to the hospital and he was cured; we secured money for a mountain church; a phone was placed in the home of a shut-in to connect him with the county so he could do sunny deeds; a graphophone was given to another shut-in; a barrel of clothes was sent to the salvation army, and a box of warm woolen clothes to soldiers in pauper homes; books and magazines have been given to the poor, flowers to the sick; flowers planted at school and laborers' homes; prisoners sent papers from home, and wheel chairs given. We cannot remember it all, but the angels can.

I have written 6,000 letters. I try to answer all calls. I have answered letters from all the States except ten, and written to every county and scattered sunshine except two. Newspapers and banks have been very kind to me in this work. Donations come in very well, but we are always out of stamps, and many an opportunity slips by for the want of a stamp. If I had plenty of money I could work better, as my work is constructive, and to have to worry over finances is hard. Sometimes I have six letters and only one stamp, and how to use that one stamp to the best advantage is puzzling.

My lovely assistant, Mrs. Meehan, of Atlanta, is collecting funds for me. She has a five hundred club, and all who join pledge a dollar a year to keep up the office. A lady who is a bread-winner sent six dollars a year. A small boy wanted a horse and he could not get it, and he ran to his mother and said, "Write to Miss Shelor for me. Sunshine will get my horse." I sent him a few pictures of horses and he said, "I knew it; Sunshine does it." Wasn't that comforting, and didn't it show training for this child, who was on the cradle roll?

When Mrs. W. P. Reid had a circle in Seneca they dressed a poor child for school and filled her empty stockings no Christmas, and one time the child was invited to see Mrs. Reid. When she saw her she looked amazed and was asked why. Her reply was, "I thought she was like God or Santa Claus, but she is a woman like me." This child was taught that she must work, too, and she has developed into a thoughtful Sunshiner and does many kind deeds, such as gathering fruits and wild flowers and sending them to her benefactor in town and rich splinters for the minister's fire. There is always a way to scatter sunshine if we try.

The work is very hard on me. The book-keeping alone is a job, and I feel that now the Rubicon has been crossed and the work will not be so hard. I hope to call for a State Federation and open in a city an office with a paid stenographer and manager to do all the work, such as passing on clothes and other articles. Then the State leader's work will be lighter. I have had the honor to be allowed to use two copyrighted articles in my work—one from John Trotwood Moore and one from Theodore Haskin. I had 500 copies made of Mr. Haskin's article on Sunshine, which I will pass on. Our State motto is: "It is better to try and fail than to sit idle and do nothing." Our State flower is the poppy. I selected it for two reasons—first, that a life led for pleasure only was as the poppy, beautiful, but would not last. The juice of the poppy, if carelessly handled, would bring death, but if used with medical skill would relieve suffering; second, in honor of my mother, who has passed on for five years a pint of poppy seeds, and these have gone all over the country, and she has given pleasure besides by passing on the flowers. One night she saved the life of a poor man's horse, for its illness called for morphine and none was to be had. The poppies were boiled in tea and given to the horse. Only a flower, but oh, what a mission! Won't you make your life as useful as a flower? Mrs. Sanders' little deed of sticking up her riding switch in front of this church made a tree and shaded the church she loved. Just a cup of cold water. If you draw the water and give it, that is sunshine. Sir Launfall found out that he who gives himself with his gifts fed through himself his hungry neighbor and his Master. To those who have not read Sir Launfall's vision I would say please read it. You will be a better Sunshiner. The success of my work is this—prayer, love and tact. As I seal a letter I ask God to bless His mission to His glory, and my love for the work is as a mother's for her babe. I try to use tact. Phillips Verner was asked how he got the Africans to church. He said, "I drop a little salt as I go—just enough to lead them on—and when I get to the church I spill a lot, and while they lick it up I preach to them, and then lock up the salt until the next time. Africans love salt and will lick it like a cow."

Our State work is to work for compulsory education, education of defective children and establishing a library for teachers and improving rural life. In our creed we accept the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and it is natural that with that relation, we want all our brothers to have the best that is going, and an education is the best of all worldly things for man. If parents will not send their children to school it is the duty of the State to make them go. The Bible plainly tells us that if you love God you will keep His commandments, and how can those who cannot read keep them? We are compelled to pay taxes to keep up the schools. Why not compel them to go and get the benefit of it? Is this a land of liberty when in so many homes the children are growing up like rag weeds in neglect? Compulsory education is the voice of the press, the pulpit and educators, and all but the man who wants to go to the Legislature again and thinks that by opposing it he can get the favor of the ignorant, and their vote will send him—sacrificing his country for just a vote. I have worked and written, and I hope to see the day come when this bill will be passed and the children of our State saved.

It is the solemn duty of the teacher to put her whole soul in her work, and she is the lighthouse in the district to guide the little boats safe to the shores, and to meet this duty she must study up on all subjects, and the smaller the child she teaches the more she should know of pedagogy, and for this reason we want to place a teachers' library in each county superintendent of education's office to give sunshine to these benefactors of men.

The education of the defective is a big subject—so large that no one in South Carolina has yet taken it up, except for the totally blind and mutes. Those doubly unfortunate, the feeble-minded children are left out in the cold in South Carolina, and the number is alarming. Look for yourself for the defective ones. A man said to me, "I did not know there was a person in Oconee needing a wheel chair till you asked for help to buy one, and now I find many who need chairs." I can prove to you that education for the defectives pays, for what have Helen Keller and John Swearingen done for our country, and we to-day see what education has done for our own Annie Crisp. These are the class our State provides for, but now look at the orphans. Will any woman ever live to be more honored than the beloved Sophie Wright, of New Orleans? I value greatly a Christmas greeting from her which I received from her last Christmas on this subject. Can Louisville ever forget Jennie Cassidy, the woman who lay on her bed for years and worked with her sweet voice and pen for the salvation of the working girls of that city? These are a few of the world's noted workers who are defective. My fondest hope is to see a home school for this class in South Carolina, and I think that those who have received an education free from the State should show their appreciation by donating to this cause. Pray for this school.

Here let me speak of the shut-ins. Miss Margaret Richards is making her living by her pen, and most charmingly does she write. My faithful boys, Carter Riser and Fred McKittrick, are so cheerful that they are making strong men come to Christ, and their mission is as great as any missionary in the foreign field. To these shut-ins I am indebted for much of my office supplies. These dear shut-ins had mothers to train them, and they are benefactors to man, while many of my shut-ins cannot read or do any work to keep them employed, and they just sit all day and look at the bare walls of their homes, and as idleness is the devil's workshop they become so fretful that they are a burden to the whole community.

While we help the shut-ins we do not encourage invalidism, but teach them to be strong—teach them to be spiritually strong.

Now I come to the cause of temperance, and I am glad that I began my public work by fighting the dispensary. Our State is going white and let us keep it so, and young ladies, you can do more than all the men can do at the ballot box. I was invited to talk at the State Christian temperance meeting this summer, but could not go, but sent a paper, and I made a plea for the children of the moonshiners. If we will send welfare workers to them as we do to the mills, in a few years we can stop this awful sin.

And now I come to the greatest subject embraced in our work—improving the homes. What can I say to her who rocks the cradle and whose duty it is to make the child as straight as the pine, solid as the oak, sweet as the balsam, and to live for God and country? It is her duty also to make her home a place of beauty and culture. It is not the handsomest home that is always the most home-like. I know a small home, beautified with flowers, that is so inviting that any stranger would want to come in. This home was once an eye-sore, but is now an eye-salve. I have been in more homes than most women in this county, and friends, don't be offended, but I can truthfully say that I can find a fashion sheet in even the poorest, while fashion sheets to make the girls women like the wife Irvin describes, or women like our leader, Mrs. Alden, or Frances Willard, or Margaret Sangster, are not there. Let us plant flowers around our homes in the ground, and also make our girls flowers of usefulness, and above all, Christian women.

My dear follower, I have tried to show you what Sunshine is; I have prepared this paper under trying conditions; it is hard to give out Sunshine when the heart is full of sorrow, but let us remember that for each dark and troubled night there is a day of sunny rest, and the best way to expel sorrow is to do something quick for some one else.

I have seen the pleasures of riches and felt the sting of poverty, and this makes me better fitted to help, for a fellow-feeling makes us wonderfully kind.

I was invited to speak at the closing of the Walker-McElmoyle school and a poor woman came to me and said: "Didn't you speak three years ago at Rahma, in Pickens county, and didn't you get after the children for making fun of a poor child?" I told her I did. She said, I told them you was the same woman, and I walked three miles to tell you that the child learned better after that. You are surely a poor man's friend.

I sent the child a Bible and said, this is your friend.

Longfellow sweetly sang of Miss Nightengale in these words: "Where'er a noble deed is wrought, When'er is spoken a noble thought, Our hearts in glad surprise, To a higher level rise."

The tidal wave of deeper souls Into our being rolls And lifts us unawares Out of all meaner cares.

Honor to those words or deeds That thus helps us on our daily needs, And by their overflow Raises us from what is low.

JOHN LEE FAMILY REUNION.

Gathering at the Old Homestead at Long Creek on August 20th.

Long Creek, Sept. 8.—Special preparations were made by all the children of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee to gather at the home of their parents, both Mr. and Mrs. Lee being about 73 years of age.

The beautiful day greatly favored the occasion, and there were 115 persons present to enjoy it. The music and singing was led by J. B. Phillips, Jr., and others. Then Rev. G. W. Smith made some appropriate remarks and led in prayer. Following the prayer service Rev. M. J. Moore preached to the attentive assembly.

The table, an immense affair, was about 65 feet long, and was literally loaded with good things to eat, such as beef, mutton, pork and chicken, cakes, custards, pies and other things too numerous to mention, with cold water and coffee to drink in abundance. The guests were arranged in a straight line on either side of the table, and Mr. Hunnicutt, of Tallulah Falls, Ga., took a picture of the group standing. Dinner was then begun, and all were made welcome.

M. D. Lee, the oldest son, announced that it was desired that his father and mother and aged aunt be seated together to receive the presents that had been brought for them. Many beautiful and useful things were presented to the aged father, mother and aunt. They were too numerous to mention, a number of the remembrances, however, being made in money.

It is very remarkable to find a father and mother so aged as Mr. and Mrs. Lee, with all their children alive and with them on such an occasion. The children present were: M. D. Lee, Mrs. W. N. Moore, Wesley Lee, Mrs. J. E. Phillips, J. Corroll Lee, Mrs. Bettie Shaw, Mrs. Amanda Thrift, J. T. Lee and Mrs. T. J. Thrift.

It was the hearty wish of all present that this good old couple and the aged aunt of the children may live to enjoy many more such pleasant occasions. A Friend.

Mob Aids Couple to Escape.

Albany, Ga., Sept. 9.—Arrested by officers of the law on warrants issued by the family of the young lady, Miss Bessie Walters and Fleming Brooks, both of Ashburn, were rescued in the streets of Sylvester by a mob of a hundred sympathizers, placed in a carriage and started on their way to Albany, while the officers were held in check.

Arriving at Albany, Brooks and Miss Walters went to the home of B. J. Mann, to whom they appealed for aid. Mann secured the services of Rev. T. H. Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist church, who performed the ceremony at 11 o'clock last night in the parlor of the Mann home.

There had been strong parental objection to the match on the side of the young couple to wed were nipped in the bud. Yesterday they ran away from Ashburn, intending to marry at Sylvester, but there they were met by officers with warrants for their arrest. A crowd learned of their plight and took the law into their own hands, with the happy result as stated.

Mr. Brooks and his bride have returned to Ashburn in search of forgiveness.
