WALHALLA, S. C.:
WEDNESDAY, DEC. 28, 1910.

MR. ZACHARY VISITS GEORGIA.

Finds Resting Place of a Number of South Carolina Soldiers.

Editor Courier: On the 10th of October, in company with my traveling companion of thirty years along life's journey, I boarded the train at Seneca for a trip through Georgia to visit relatives. I have a very warm feeling for the State of Georgia, as I spent my boyhood days in the valley of the Tugaloo, and when passing the farm of my old friend and school-mate, G. J. Ramsay, I could look back with pleasure to the many days we spent on the banks of the Tugaloo hunting and fishing.

We arrived in the Gate City about 4 o'clock and changed cars for Newnan, where we arrived at sunset without any one to meet us, as we were two days late. However, we soon found ourselves in comfortable quarters at the home of a kinsman, and a happy meeting it was.

Newnan is forty miles southwest of Atlanta, at the crossing of West Point and Central of Georgia railroads. It is an old city and said to be one of the wealthiest, according to size, in the State. It is beautifully located in a splendid farming section. The streets are beautifully shaded with water oaks and elms, with magnificent colonial residences and beautiful lawns. Among them was the boyhood home of the late Dr. Calhoun, of Atlanta. The population is 7,000. A $70,000 court house stands in the public square, with entrances from four sides, supported by columns of marble forty feet high. There are two oil and guano plants. The D. P. Cole Manufacturing Company is located here, and does an enormous business. There are also four cotton mills, two papers, four banks, six churches, Rev. James Singleton, formerly of Oconee, is pastor of the First Baptist church. The city has good railroad accommodations with her 18 passenger trains daily. The Newnan Marble Works is doing a good business, under the management of J. E. Zachary and R. M. Gaines. J. E. Zachary is one of Oconee's boys who donned the red shirt in 1876 and was among the boys who captured the Radical convention held at Walhalla and put a red shirt on Johnston, Wright, the chairman.

While here we were on the go most of the time in the city and country. On our drives in the country we saw fine corn and cotton, but none better than grown in Oconee. We visited the cemetery, which is a large one and well kept, with many handsome monuments. On one side are buried about 250 Confederate veterans, and these graves interested us very much. We were surprised that they were buried there, but on inquiry learned there was a hospital kept here in the last years of the war and the men were sent back from Johnston's army. For the information of their comrades, or perhaps relatives, if there be any living in this country, and perhaps do not know their resting place, will give a few of the names as I read them from the head stones: J. M. Randall, Co. F, 16th S. C.; I. Briten, Co. F, 16th S. C.; T. E. Norton, Co. I, 35th S. C.; K. Sheppard, Palmetto Sharpshooters.

W. A. Langly, Co. D, 16th S. C.; John Harling, Co. E, 2d S. C.; L. M. Howell, Co. F, 24th S. C.; C. D. Davis, Co. G, 2d S. C.; J. J. Cope, Co. B, 24th S. C.

There was a battle near this place and Gen. Wheeler captured 800 prisoners. There is a house, riddled with bullets, still standing on the battle ground.

But we must leave these sad reflections and hasten on our trip. On the morning of the 11th we left Newnan for Cordele, and in a short while we were at Senoia, where we changed cars from the Central of Georgia to the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic. From there it is a straight line south for Cordele, a distance of 127 miles. Through this section of country for fifty miles we found a very undesirable farming country—land leveled enough, but unproductive. From station to station there was nothing inviting for home-seekers. The wealth seems to be concentrated in the towns; but we finally reached a more prosperous country, with land level and productive (said to be), but crops almost a failure on account of too much rain in summer and then the excessive drought. The cotton fields were mowed for hay.

We arrived at Cordele at 1 p. m. I took up lodging in the Swanee house, managed by J. Edmond Zachary. Cordele is a hustling town of 8,000 population. Twenty-one years ago it was a forest of pines. Cordele has all modern conveniences, a $60,000 hotel building, five banks, ice factory, oil mill, four machine shops, four newspapers, elegantly paved sidewalks, paid fire department, a $75,000 court house, attractive churches, and other things too numerous to mention in this sketch.

We left Cordele at 1:30 a. m. Monday for home by way of Macon. It being in the night could not see the country we passed through, but after dawn found ourselves speeding through a most beautiful country,

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Walhalla, and Good Reasons for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, after years of backache suffering, days of misery, nights of unrest, the distress of urinary troubles, the fluids relief and cure? No reason why any Walhalla reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. R. D. Oelkers, W. Main St., Walhalla, S. C., says: "I hope that other persons suffering from kidney disease will try Doan's Kidney Pills. I speak from personal experience when I say that they are a most reliable remedy. For some time I suffered from headaches and pains across the small of my back. I felt weak and nervous and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. I finally procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Dr. J. W. Bell's Drug Store and the relief I derived from their use was entirely satisfactory. I am still using them and feel that it will only be a short time before I am entirely free from kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Big Things of the World.

A recent number of Harper's Weekly gives an interesting list of some of the highest, largest, longest, or costliest things of the world. The tallest monument is the Washington obelisk, 555 feet high. The highest chimney, measuring 474 feet, is in Glasgow. The largest aqueduct in use is the Croton of New York, which is 38 miles long, but the longest ever built is in Peru, 360 miles in length. The deepest coal mine is near Lambert, Belgium, 3,500 feet deep; the biggest dock is at Cardiff, Wales, and the strongest electric light at Sydney lighthouse, Australia, while the largest lighthouse is at Cape Henry, Virginia, being 165 feet high. The greatest bank is the Bank of England, in London; the oldest college is University College, Oxford, founded in 1059; the largest library, the National, in Paris, containing nearly 3,000,000 volumes. The largest bronze statue is that of Peter the Great, in St. Petersburg, weighing 1,100 tons. The biggest stone statue is in Japan, 44 feet high; the largest college is in Cairo, with over 10,000 students and 310 teachers. Damascus has the honor of being the oldest city. The most costly book in the world is a Hebrew Bible, owned by the German government, which a few years ago refused the Pope's offer of $125,000 for it. The most costly medicine a few years ago was metallic gallium, which sold for $150,000 a pound; but radium is now the priceless gem of the mineral world, selling for more than that price an ounce. Though orchids frequently bring prices that make the poor man stagger, the highest price for a single flower was given for a tulip in Amsterdam by an enthusiast, who paid $250,000 for it.

which, however, I had suffered from short crops, as had other parts we had passed through. Don't think the trouble will be overproduction as heretofore. We arrived in Atlanta in time to be left and causing a stay of three hours, which time we took up in sight-seeing. At about 1 o'clock we boarded the Southern for Seneca, where we arrived about 5 o'clock p. m.

HORSE SWAPPING.

In the Good Old Days It Was Sport, Not Commercialism.

(Walt Mason, in Chicago News.)

"I have been reading that David Harum story," said the ancient liveryman when his cronies were comfortably seated in his little office. "A friend told me that story was the last word on horse trading, but the man who wrote it didn't understand the spirit of the game at all. David Harum would have been skinned out of his teeth if he had blown into any Western town in the palmy days of horse trading twenty-five or thirty years ago."

"I tell you, my friends, all the dead game sports are asleep with their fathers. Nobody is willing to take a chance nowadays. If a man buys a cigar, he wants a bill of sale with it. The other day a cheap skater pestered me a whole afternoon talking about buying a horse. He tried out all the nags in the barn and finally decided that the glass-eyed bay would suit him. And he actually wanted a written guarantee that the nag was sound! A written guarantee! No, gentlemen, I am not joking. That baldheaded travesty on a man actually asked for such a document. I regarded it as an insult, and after I had rebuked him they had to pour four buckets of water over him before he recovered."

"In the good old days horse trading was a game, not a commercial transaction. If a man wasn't willing to take the chances when he went trading he was advised to try some other line of business. Many, and many a time I had the harpoon administered to me. One day Major Charlie Slaughter drove to my barn. 'I have quite a neat package of horseflesh here,' said the major, and 'I have a sort of presentiment that he can travel a few lines when the wind is blowing in the right direction.'"

"His horse was a handsome roan, a regular peacock for style, with his head away up in the air so you'd need a stepladder to see if he had a star in his forehead. And the way he hit the road was a sin. Talk about gaited horses! That roan handled his legs as though he had taken sparing lessons. Now, my weak point in the horse business is that when I want a certain nag the worst way I can't conceal the fact. I just can't sleep or eat my victuals until that horse is in my barn with a new halter on him. The major was wise to my weakness."

"It's no use, Jake," says the major. "This hoss isn't on my swapping list. Every roan hair on him just suits me, and I'd be a chump to let him go."

"Well, of course I got the roan all right. The major was just bluffing. And I gave him the biggest trade you ever heard of—gave him a matched team and several bills for that galling roan. And when I took the roan to the water trough for a drink I found that he couldn't lower his head. He had to carry it about ten feet in the air all the time, owing to some injury in his neck. He had to eat his flaked rice off a shelf and drink from a garden hose, and a man needed an aeroplane to put a bridle on him."

"Did I raise a fuss with the major? What sort of skate do you take me for? Next time I met him I told him I liked the roan better than any horse I ever saw. 'He isn't always rooting in the ground like a pig,' said I, and if you had told me about his patent drigible neck I'd have given you $10 more.' We were sports in those days."

"One time the veterinary surgeon told me about a fine trotting horse in a town some distance away which had been deprived of its tail by a surgical operation. I went and looked at the horse. He was a perfect beauty and could trot like an avalanche. But he had just a stump of a tail, and the owner was ashamed to drive him, so I bought the critter for a song. I went to a lot of trouble having a tail made for him. It was a beautiful flowing tail, a credit to the hairdresser's art. It was fixed to slip over the horse's stub tail and was then fastened to the crupper of the harness, and a man needed good eyes to see that it wasn't the real thing."

"The major had poor eyes, and when I took him for a drive behind that black trotter he simply had to be tied down to the seat he was so excited. He said he'd always wanted a horse with a tail like that. He had my own weakness. He couldn't pretend indifference when he wanted a thing the worst way, and he wanted that horse so bad that his hair was falling out. After a great deal of deliberation I issued my ultimatum."

"I'll give you the horse, harness and buggy just as they stand," said I, "for your sorrel three-year-olds and $50." Either of the sorrels was worth a herd of horses like that black."

"It's a trade," cried the major. "Next morning the major came around to my barn all smiles. 'Ever since I was a child and quit playing with a rattle,' says he, 'I have wanted a horse with a detachable tail—a tail that a man could take off and use as chin whiskers at a masked ball. I just called to pay you another 50 cents, so that when I meet you after this you can't say I took advantage of you in our trade yesterday.'"

Campbell Courtenay, Plaintiff, against C. G. Rolston, Defendant.

Tract No. 1.—All that certain piece, parcel or tract of land, situate, lying and being in the County of Oconee, of the State of South Carolina, on Tugaloo River, beginning at a point on the bank of said river, known as the "Sit-in-Rock," and running a straight line at right angles to the course of said river one hundred feet, thence on a line parallel with said river to a point on Battle Creek, one hundred feet from the mouth thereof, the same being one hundred feet from the bank of Tugaloo River from point to point along said line, running parallel with the bank thereof, and being the same tract of land conveyed to Campbell Courtenay by William D. Deaton by deed bearing date the 22d day of September, 1903, recorded in the Clerk's office, Walhalla, S. C., January 11, 1909, in Book "BB," page 106.

ALSO,
Tract No. 2.—All that piece, parcel or tract of land, situate, lying and being in Oconee County, South Carolina, on the east side of Tugaloo River, having the following metes and bounds, beginning at the point where Battle Creek flows into Tugaloo River, thence up said creek to the line of the tract of land now or formerly owned by Howell Carter; thence north of old hickory; thence N. 5 W. 13.10 to stone 3X0; thence S. 74 W. 9.20 to stone 3X0; thence S. 32 W. 16.40 to stake 3X0; thence S. 59 W. 4.75 to pine 3X0; thence S. 71.50 W. 34.20 to white oak 3X0; thence down Tugaloo River to the beginning point, containing two hundred acres, more or less, being the same tract conveyed to Campbell Courtenay by Emily C. S. Verner by deed dated June 8, 1903, recorded in Clerk's office, Oconee County, January 11, 1904, in Book "BB," page 105.

ALSO,
Tract No. 3.—All that certain piece, parcel or tract of land, situate, lying and being in the County of Oconee, South Carolina, on Chattooga River, adjoining tract No. 2, above mentioned, and lands now or formerly belonging to Howell Carter, Robinson and Taylor and others, containing two hundred and eighty-seven acres, more or less, and more fully shown by plat of survey thereof by I. H. Harrison, Surveyor, dated May 20, 1905, and being the tract of land conveyed to Campbell Courtenay by H. M. Pitts by deed dated May 30, 1905, recorded in Clerk's office, Oconee County, South Carolina, October 19, 1905, in Book "EE," page 66; subject, however, to water easements and privileges conveyed by H. M. Pitts to Chattooga River Development Company by deed dated December 13, 1900, recorded in Clerk's office, Oconee County, South Carolina, October 3, 1901, in Book "X," page 542.

Easements and Water Privileges.

Also, the rights, easements and water privileges conveyed to Campbell Courtenay by M. D. Vandiver by two separate deeds, both dated November 15, 1902, and one recorded in the Clerk's office of Rabun County, Georgia, November 24, 1902, in Book "O," page 357, and the other recorded in Habersham County, Georgia, November 17, 1902, in Book "OO," page 486, said easements relating to the tract of land then owned by M. D. Vandiver, situate on Tallulah and Chattooga River, in Rabun County, Georgia, containing 156 acres, more or less, and to the other tract situate on Tugaloo and Tallulah River, in Habersham County, as described in said deeds; subject, however, to the easements and water privileges conveyed by M. D. Vandiver to Chattooga River Development Company by deed dated December 18, 1900, recorded in Clerk's office, Rabun County, Georgia, February 4, 1901, in Book "N," page 193, the same being the real estate and water privileges conveyed to me by Campbell Courtenay by deed bearing date October 30, 1909, and for the balance of the purchase money of which this mortgage is given.

TERMS OF SALE: CASH. That in event of failure of the purchaser or purchasers to comply with the terms of the sale within five days from day of sale, the Master do re-advertise and resell said premises, on the following salesday, or some convenient salesday thereafter, at the same place and on the same terms as heretofore set out at the risk of former purchaser or purchasers, and that he do continue so to do until he has found a purchaser or purchasers who comply with the terms of sale.
