

How to Be Certain of Curing Constipation

Prejudice is a hard thing to overcome, but where health is at stake and the opinion of thousands of reliable people differs from yours, prejudice then becomes your menace and you ought to lay it aside. This is said in the interest of people suffering from chronic constipation, and it is worthy of their attention.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubborn constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. Parents are giving it to their children to-day who were given it by their parents, and it has been truthfully said that more druggists use it personally in their families than any other laxative.

Letters recently received from Mr. J. N. Catlett, Commerce, Ga., and Mrs. Rose Garvin, Ridgeville, S. C., are but a few of thousands showing the esteem in which Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is held. It is mild, gentle, non-gripping—not violent, like salts or cathartics. It cures gradually and pleasantly, so that in time nature again does its own work without outside aid. Constipated people owe it to themselves to use this grand bowel specific.

Any one wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington street, Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

SOME OCONEANS AT MACON.

Carolina Vets Enjoyed the Recent Reunion in Georgia City.

From the Macon (Ga.) News we clip the following notes with reference to Oconeans and former Oconeans who were in attendance upon the recent Confederate reunion in that city:

"Red Shirt" Man at Reunion.

Among the visiting Confederate veterans in Macon this week is Capt. Samuel K. Dendy, of Walhalla, Oconee county, South Carolina, who is looking around scraping up old acquaintances among the thousands of old war-scarred heroes of the sixties.

Mr. Dendy is one of the best known men in South Carolina, and more especially in the upper or western section, where he was born and raised.

After the war closed, and when South Carolina was suffering under the yoke of carpetbagging and negro domination, a movement was started under the leadership of Gen. Wade Hampton to deliver the state from its affliction at any cost. It was then that Capt. Dendy virtually took charge of affairs in his home county, and it was due to him, more probably than any other one man, that the great wave of Democracy started in the mountains which swept through the State to the coast. By his strong will and enthusiasm he kept up the spirits of the then weak following and organized a department of what was then known as the "Red Shirts."

By night and by day he worked, and finally had the gratification of seeing his beloved old State redeemed from the grasp of corruption and viciousness.

Capt. Dendy is one of the best known traveling men of that section and the greater portion of the whole country. He will be in the city during the entire reunion, the guest of Lew J. Kilburn.

South Carolinians in Reunion.

Among the prominent South Carolinians attending the reunion this week are William Korber, of Charleston, commander of A. Burnett Rickett Camp, U. C. V.; Col. Nell Stripling, of Pendleton; and Capt. James H. Doyle, formerly of Walhalla, but now president of the City National Bank at Granbury, Texas.

Mr. Korber is a prominent business man of Charleston and was a member of the famous Orr's Rifles during the war.

Col. J. C. Stripling is a prominent citizen of the western section of the State, and after the war closed was one of the leaders of what was then known as the "Red Shirt" Democracy of 1876, which did so much to free South Carolina from the rule of the carpetbaggers and negroes. He is now the colonel of the State organization, which holds regular reunions every year. Along with Capt. S. K. Dendy all these old South Carolina vets are enjoying themselves to the full in the sights of the reunion this week.

COL. FRANK S. EVANS FOR CONGRESS

Greenwood's Foremost Citizen Will Give Aiken the Race of His Life.

With the entry of Col. Frank S. Evans in the Congressional race in this district, The Intelligencer is willing to commit itself with whatever influence it possesses to his hearty and enthusiastic support. In so doing, we are actuated by the progressive spirit of the age, which spirit has so firmly entrenched itself into the inward workings of commercial and legislative bodies that the first laws of nature demand that the people who would become powerful and who would make their influence felt must seize upon and utilize that progressive spirit every day in the week, including Sundays.

Col. Evans is not a professional politician, but a professional business man, one of that kind who combines good, common horse sense and practical judgment with the business he has to do, and therein lies the secret of his success. It is this trait of his training that makes him both a practical politician and a practical business man. It has often been a subject of remark, not of criticism, that the South pays no attention to the business qualifications possessed by a candidate for office, but selects him because of the popularity of his father or some other distinguished predecessor who himself attained distinction because of his warm handshake and perennial smile. The time for this manner of choosing our representatives in Congress has passed, and we must select men who are practical, forceful and dynamic in their makeup, men who can cope with the business men and seasoned legislators with whom they must cross swords in debate on the great questions that will arise in the halls of Congress, that affect not only our own district, but the welfare of the country at large. The country itself is undergoing a tremendous upheaval, and conditions are rapidly changing. The sphere of influence, for so many years confined to the great East and North, is naturally shifting to the South. This is true in commercial and industrial lines as well as in political thought and action. Never since the War Between the States has a Southern candidate been seriously urged for the Presidency, and now the leading figure in that contest in our party is a Southern man. It is therefore high time that the South was throwing off the old fetter of electing "good fellows," "silver-tongued orators," "popular boys," and men who can't write their own speeches, to represent them when the full extent of that representative's influence at Washington lies in his ability to hobnob the powers that be to secure a rural route, changed to run by Bill Smith's house or to reimburse John Jones for a horse stolen by Sherman's army long years ago, and these little favors generally mean that the Representative's vote will be cast for some measure dear to the hearts of the department that grants them.

Col. Evans is a fighter of bulldog tenacity and will make his influence felt in the halls of Congress and in the councils of his party. He is fearless and aggressive in debate and will bring to his district a prestige she has not enjoyed for many years. His thorough knowledge of the great questions now uppermost in the public mind, together with his broad sympathy for the masses in their struggle for equal taxation and relief from burdensome tariff on the necessities of life will bring him prominently to the front as a leader on the floor and in committee.

A perusal of the committee assignments in the last Congress will afford ample cause for question as to why the Third District has fared so badly at the hands of a Democratic House, especially when we are taught that the best way to secure influence and prestige in Congress is to keep our Representatives there for long periods, yet with an uninterrupted incumbency, of years, the Democratic committee having the nomination of committees in hand, thought so little of the services and ability of our Representative that he was given the most unimportant committee assignments at their disposal. When the Democratic colleagues of a Democratic House, who are on the grounds and are in position to judge of the merits of a Congressman, place so low an estimate on the man we have been sending there to represent us for so many years, it is indeed time to have a readjustment and elect a man who can and will wield a more potent influence in our behalf. This is not written with any ill will toward our present Congressman. He has done everything that he could do doubtless, but the point we are making is that he is not equipped and that is not his fault, but his misfortune, a misfortune which the people of the Third District should not be called upon to share.

Col. Evans is making a close and business-like campaign and running solely on his merits, but he will at the proper time take up the record of his opponent and show the people wherein their interests have suffered. He will endeavor to have Mr. Aiken meet him on every stump in the district, as he desires that the people have the opportunity of knowing how his stewardship has been abused and that Mr. Aiken also have the opportunity of defending his course in Congress. Mr. Aiken has heretofore been somewhat averse to meeting his opponent on the stump, but Col. Evans hopes to make the meetings so interesting and attractive to him that he will attend each one of them and deliver his speeches orally and not "through leave to print in the Record."

The Intelligencer is pleased to note an enthusiastic and spontaneous interest in Col. Evans's candidacy in Anderson county, where he is widely known and universally liked. He is prominently identified with several influential secret orders, among them the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Ancient Order of Free Masons, in which order he has attained to the rank of the Ancient Order of Mystic Shrine, and he will this month be elevated to the position of Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias.

THE COURIER THE BEST YET.

Follows J. L. Browne, Formerly of Oconee, Wherever He Goes.

The Courier is in receipt of the following appreciative and appreciated letter from a subscriber in Texas, whom many of our readers will remember with pleasure:

Plainview, Texas, May 9.—Editor Keowee Courier: Find enclosed two dollars ($2) to keep The Courier coming to me. I did not get The Courier of April 27th, and I thought you had stopped it. I am taking ten papers and magazines, and when I get my mail I always look for The Courier first, and if it is not there I ask the postmaster to look again. I have been across the United States and half way back since I left Oconee. I always take my county paper, and I have never yet seen as good a county paper as The Keowee Courier. Yours truly, "J. L. Browne."

Not Follows Strike.

Atlanta, May 15.—The first violence in connection with the present strike on Hearst's Atlanta Georgian occurred last night. Strike-breakers and union men from the Journal engaged in a fight. Three union men, including F. B. Brigman, president of the Atlanta local union, are in a hospital badly beaten. Georgian Pressmen Return.

Atlanta, May 17.—The pressmen of the Georgian, who went out on a strike a few days ago, have returned to work. The following notice appeared in the Georgian of yesterday: "The Georgian is published to-day and will be hereafter by the same men in every department who have heretofore gotten out this newspaper."

Officers Decoyed, Then Shot.

Gainesville, Fla., May 13.—Marshal C. H. Slaughter and Deputy Sheriff Charles White, of Archer, Fla., were decoyed to a lonely spot near there at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and assassinated. J. A. Manning, another deputy, feigned death, and escaped after being wounded. He shot one of the murderers, capturing him and his three sons, who are now in jail.

Shortly after midnight Marshal Slaughter received a message that there was a "skin" game in progress on the outskirts of the town. He departed with White and Manning and started for the scene.

Thaw Marked Three for Death.

New York, May 17.—In a letter written by Harry K. Thaw and made public for the first time to-day, is contained a list of the names of five persons with the word "kill" marked after the names of three. Sanford White's name was third on the list. The others named were Bancroft Davis, Frederick Gebhard, Craig Wadsworth and Reginald Franklin. This letter, which was written by Thaw in December, 1903, was addressed to one of his confidential agents in this city. The letter and facts contained therein will play an important part in the State's hands in the sanity hearing now pending.

Atlanta Father Found Boys Dead.

Atlanta, May 17.—The corpses of two little boys, which were discovered in the feed box of a horse stable here to-day, turned out to be the bodies of Robert and Urban Nicholas, tots who disappeared from home April 29, and who had been sought in almost every big city in the country. The boys' father uncovered the foot of one of them when he dipped a shovel into the feed. It is believed they met death while playing about the feed box.

Col. Evans is making a close and business-like campaign and running solely on his merits, but he will at the proper time take up the record of his opponent and show the people wherein their interests have suffered. He will endeavor to have Mr. Aiken meet him on every stump in the district, as he desires that the people have the opportunity of knowing how his stewardship has been abused and that Mr. Aiken also have the opportunity of defending his course in Congress. Mr. Aiken has heretofore been somewhat averse to meeting his opponent on the stump, but Col. Evans hopes to make the meetings so interesting and attractive to him that he will attend each one of them and deliver his speeches orally and not "through leave to print in the Record."

The Intelligencer is pleased to note an enthusiastic and spontaneous interest in Col. Evans's candidacy in Anderson county, where he is widely known and universally liked. Shot Wife to Death; Ends Own Life.

Sylvester, Ga., May 15.—Mrs. Cosby Stanley was killed, her sister is wounded and Stanley is dead as the result of the latter's act yesterday near Isabelle.

Stopping his bride of three months in the road as she was returning to her home, after a visit to a neighbor, Stanley shot her to death, wounded her sister, who was with her, and then killed himself.

Mrs. Stanley had left her husband about a month ago because of ill treatment. Since then he had threatened to kill her, but the threat was not taken seriously.

As Stanley drew his pistol and aimed at his wife, her sister jumped between them. The first shot penetrated her arm and struck Mrs. Stanley. A second shot fatally wounded the wife. Then Stanley shot himself in the face.

Both Stanley and his wife died before medical aid could reach them from Sylvester, three miles distant. The wound of the sister was dressed and is not considered serious. Stanley was a carpenter.

Southwestern Roads Raise Rates.

Washington, May 17.—The Interstate Commerce Commission to-day issued an order allowing railroads operating in the Southwest to increase rates on cotton and cotton linters from Texas points to New Orleans approximately 10 cents per 100 pounds.

Deer Perish by Hundreds.

Hundreds of wild deer, as well as much smaller game, have been killed by the floods in the Mississippi valley, and hundreds more are starving in the overflowed territory, according to reports received by the American Game Protective and Propagation Association of New York. One hundred and seventy deer are marooned on two mounds in the submerged Sunflower river district, a few miles from Vicksburg. In response to requests for aid from the game protectionists in that locality, the New York association has sent one of its special agents to investigate and to help in the rescue work.
