

Pendleton, Oct. 20.—Editor Kee-wee Courier: Truly "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country and among his own people."

We have here living among us, in his native place, a very honored and accomplished man—most highly distinguished in New York and all over the country, and yet, in his own native State of South Carolina, hardly noticed in his modest retirement.

The following little incident that came to me by way of a city farther down the State illustrates what I am saying. But first let me say that we ought to learn about our boys who have gone forth into the world and made South Carolina famous in every field of noble effort and of high endeavor, and we ought to talk about them and hold them up as an example to our youth as well as an incentive and an encouragement.

Some time ago a young lady school teacher in a city of this State wrote to the president of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers of the City of the Greater New York, asking her how the women teachers of New York's five great boroughs—some twenty and odd thousands—got their great increase in pay.

The lady replied that the women teachers had agitated, agitated, agitated—and they held a big mass meeting in Carnegie Hall; that they had speaking and that then a young South Carolinian named Adger Mullally had read a poem, which brought the vast audience to its feet; that the grand Carnegie Hall organ pealed out and the song was lifted by the thousands of voices of those there assembled; that every one of the hundreds of thousands of school children, yes, millions—of New York and vicinity learned it, and that before Christmas had again come the community, the city administration, State Assembly and Senate had been awakened—and so the relief came. I send you a copy of the printed program, of which many thousands were distributed, and I think the incident worth printing.

Mr. Mullally has taken up his permanent residence in his native State, and we Pendleton people, who admire him greatly and are so proud of him, and loved his grandfather, Dr. Adger, and his father, Dr. Mullally, expect him to be our Governor of South Carolina in the near future.

When such great benefit to the New Yorkers, follows:

Justitia Fiat, Coelum Ruet.

(Air: "Onward, Christian Soldiers", or "St. Gertrude", being the Air composed by Sir Arthur Sullivan, the other Airs to which "Onward, Christian Soldiers" is sung, not including the refrain as does Sir Arthur Sullivan's Air.)

Justice for all teachers, Who our children form, Character's well moulding— Strong to meet life's storm; They the place of Mothers And of Fathers take— Plead the ones the Master-loved— Justice for their sake.

(Refrain) Justice for our Women Teachers of to-day Whom no golden guerdon Ever can repay.

Who but knows that Woman, Leader of the young, Has that which her brother— (Poets have well sung)— Never can attain to, Try he as he may— Sympathetic feeling Minds and hearts to sway.

(Refrain) Justice for our Women Teachers of to-day Whom no golden guerdon Ever can repay.

Then would simple Justice Give to women too, Just as much as we get— That at least's their due; Thus some recognition, Tardy though it be, Crowns our Women Teachers— Their Fidelity.

New York, Dec. 11, 1909.

Let me add that the above was written, my informant tells me, upon the author's knee, upon the back and interior of the long envelope containing the request for the poem, while the messenger boy waited. The mass meeting was held on the 17th—the request for the poem was made the night of the 14th of December, 1909, and great haste was necessary and many thousands of copies had to be printed the following day. Who can do so well on an instant's notice—within a short quarter of an hour?

As General and Supreme Court Judge Roger A. Pryor once said to the Reverend Dr. Mullally: We are all mighty proud of John B. Adger Mullally. Old Democrat.

Third Ginning Report Includes Results of Most Active Period.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The cotton ginned to October 18th amounted to 6,838,841 bales, or 819,780 bales less than was ginned to that date last year, when a record crop was grown, according to today's bureau report.

East of the Mississippi the ginners fell below last year's, while west of the river last year's figures exceeded in every State. Texas ginned to that date a greater quantity by more than half a million bales than ever before.

In addition to the ginning figures the census bureau announced statistics estimating the world's production of cotton from the crop of 1911 at 22,297,000 bales of 500 pounds net; the consumption for the year ending August 31, 1912, at 20,277,000 bales, and the number of active consuming cotton spindles at 140,954,000.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The third cotton ginning report of the season, compiled from reports of census bureau correspondents and agents throughout the cotton belt and issued at 10 a. m. to-day, announced that 6,838,841 bales of cotton, counting round as half bales, of the growth of 1912 had been ginned prior to October 18. This includes the results of the most active period of the ginning season—September 25 to October 18—during which, in recent years, more than one-fourth of the entire crop passed through the ginners' hands.

To October 18 last year 7,758,621 bales, or 49.9 per cent of the entire crop, had been ginned; in 1908 to that date 6,296,166 bales, or 48.1 per cent of the crop had been ginned, and in 1906 to that date 4,931,621 bales, or 38.0 per cent of the crop had been ginned.

The number of sea island cotton bales included was 15,704 bales, compared with 40,303 bales last year, 36,482 bales in 1909 and 32,013 bales in 1908.

Ginnings prior to October 18, by States, with comparisons for last year and other big crop years, and the percentage of the entire crop ginned prior to that date in those years, follow:

Bearded Man at Age of Twelve.

A dispatch from Seattle, Wash., says: Last April W. H. Williams's son Harold, then not quite twelve years old, was the size of a boy of that age. Within a month he began to grow at a phenomenal rate, losing all appearances of boyhood.

Measuring in April 4 feet 8 inches in height and weighing ninety pounds, he is to-day a man 5 feet 9 inches high and weighs 160 pounds, while his face is covered with a long, black beard.

SCHIRANK TRIAL IN DECEMBER.

Socialist State Attorney Gives His Reasons for Delay.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24.—District Attorney W. C. Zabel, who is believed to be the only Socialist State attorney in the country, gave three specific reasons for deferring the trial of John Schrank, who shot Col. Roosevelt, till the December sitting of the criminal court. He said, first, that it was only reasonable to await the results of the colonel's injury; second, that he had no desire to hurry the defendant; and, third, he thought it would be unwise to call the case before the Presidential campaign was over.

He also has sent an appeal to the State to set the record of the trial of Roosevelt, when he was convicted of the murder of President McKinley. He thinks it will aid him when John Schrank, Roosevelt's assassin, is placed on trial. The two trials will differ owing to changes in procedure, as required by varying State laws and the seriousness of the offense.

Woman Acquitted of Murder.

Gaffney, Oct. 24.—In the Court of General Sessions in this city yesterday Mrs. Frances Sarratt, a white woman of this county, was tried, charged with the murder of a negro infant and the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. The occurrence took place about a year ago. It is alleged that Mrs. Sarratt was lying in wait for a negro woman to come by, and when she made her appearance Mrs. Sarratt fired a shot from a gun at her. The negro woman had an infant in her arms, and instead of being killed herself the entire load took effect in the body of the infant, killing it almost instantly. Temporary insanity was the ground upon which the defense conducted the case.

Morning Sickness

Many women suffer this misery. It makes its appearance so regularly that they learn to expect it and arrange their household work accordingly. Few women think of seeking medical help to get rid of it for good. If women only knew of the power and effectiveness of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine they would not be without it a moment longer than it would take to get it from the drug store. It is a splendid remedy for all nausea or sickness of the stomach. The first dose settles the stomach and makes the patient feel better. Additional doses act on the female generative system, strengthening weakened organs, regulating the habits, restoring tone and strength in every part of the body. It is essentially a woman's remedy prepared expressly to meet the need of women who suffer from the ailments common to their sex.
