

SOUTHERN TRAINS COLLIDE.

No One Killed and None of the Train Crew Was Hurt.

Columbia, Nov. 20.—In a head-on collision between Southern trains Nos. 23 and 24, Columbia to Jacksonville and Jacksonville to Columbia, respectively at 3.30 o'clock this morning, a carload, 83 miles from Columbia and not far from Savannah, Ga., several passengers were slightly injured, according to official reports received here. A white passenger, T. L. Loyd, of Marion, S. C., who was concealed between two cars, was seriously injured and may die. There were no fatalities. None of the crew was injured. Among the slightly hurt were L. C. Panning of Sally, S. C., and Mrs. M. F. Mayer, of Sandy Springs, S. C.

The two locomotives and the express cars on both trains were turned over. Officially there was assigned no cause for the wreck, but unofficially it was stated a fog enveloped the two trains. The wreck was cleared by noon to-day.

SKULL OF OLDEST MAN.

This One Lived Half a Million Years Ago—May Have Preceded Ape.

Dr. J. Leon Williams, of London, an eminent authority on anthropology and geology, recently arrived in New York from Liverpool with fifteen skulls of prehistoric man, one of which he estimates to be 500,000 years old. This skull was found by workmen near Folkestone, England, in strata that dated back prior to the Pleistocene era, and its discovery has confirmed Dr. Williams in the belief that mankind is at least half a million years old.

Dr. Williams said the finding of these ancient skulls and other human bones did not disprove, in his opinion, the popular theory of evolution, but thinks it indicates that indications point to the ape as being an offshoot of an early race of the human family.

IF HEADACHY, DIZZY, BILIOUS, "CASCARETS."

Your Liver is Full of Bile; Bowels Clogged, Stomach Sour, Tongue Coated, Breath Bad.

Get a 10-cent box now. You're bilious! You have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleansing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning and gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet, and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken. adv.

To Inaugurate Medical Inspection in Oconee Rural Schools.

Editor Keowee Courier:

"The progress and development of our schools depend upon an honest investigation of their conditions, a due appreciation of their merits, a frank admission of their shortcomings, and a sincere effort to improve them."

Through the support of the County Medical Association the rural schools of Oconee are to take a progressive step in the interest of school hygiene during the year 1913-14. At the last meeting of the South Carolina Medical Association, held at Rock Hill, April 13, 1913, the association voted unanimously to examine all pupils free of charge. The Oconee Department of Education, realizing the supreme importance of such a measure, has requested each physician of the county individually to assist in a campaign to establish medical inspection in the rural schools. The heartiness of the consent was gratifying.

The plan adopted for the present is to have each board of trustees ask the doctor who practices in their district to inspect their school. Of course the doctor will appoint any time that is convenient for him. The cards to be used for the examination have been printed and may be obtained, at the request of the trustees, from Miss Annie McMahan, Richland. The following extract from the South Carolina State Board of Health Bulletin No. 8, contains reasons and instructions for medical inspection.

Medical Inspection of Schools.

(By E. A. Hines, M. D., Member State Board of Health, Seneca, S. C.)

"Medical inspection of schools is an entirely new departure for the Southern States, and especially is this true of South Carolina. This assertion doesn't mean that we deserve great credit for the efforts thus far made, but rather to the contrary. Before proceeding, however, to prove the truth of the latter statement, let us consider briefly what is meant by medical inspection of schools.

"According to modern ideas every school child has the right to demand of the State a reasonable assurance that the course of training prescribed by the State shall not prove detrimental, but conducive to health and happiness and good citizenship. To render this ideal possible, probable of attainment requires the addition of a competent physician to every school in an advisory capacity on all hygienic matters. Such a physician will advise, after careful observation of each pupil, not only proper hygienic rules of healthful living, but will also detect incipient or chronic diseases, deformities, vicious habits, mental incapacity, questionable athletic training, and as far as possible point the way to correction or remedy. This advice often involves the co-operation of the family physician, dentists, and eye and ear, nose and throat specialists, as well as the hearty support of parents, teachers and all school authorities.

"As ordinarily carried out, the medical inspector, assisted by a trained nurse or the teacher, carefully examines into the sanitation of the school building and grounds—such as lighting, heating and ventilation; also the seating capacity and character of the same. The pupils are usually brought before the medical inspector and nurse four at a time, and without undue exposure of the person. Each pupil is carefully examined for any possible defect which will in any way prove an obstacle in future development. The nurse records each defect and the same is called to the attention of the parent, who is urged to have the family physician see the case at once. The children, as a rule, enjoy these examinations, and thus seldom offer any objections.

"The Southern States have been behind almost all the rest of the countries of the civilized world in introducing medical inspection of schools. It has been in vogue for many years in the following countries: France, Germany, England, Switzerland, Japan, Norway, Sweden, Argentina, Russia, Bulgaria and Roumania. In most of these countries the system is enforced by legal enactment.

"In our own country, Boston (in 1891) made the first effort, and Massachusetts, in 1906, passed a mandatory provision (1) for the detection of contagious diseases at schools, and (2) for the annual examination of children (a) by physicians for non-contagious physical defects, and (b) by teachers for defects of eyesight and hearing. There are four or five other States with somewhat similar laws, and probably a hundred cities and towns of the North and West, engaged in this work. New Orleans was the first Southern city to take active steps in this direction in 1908, and Atlanta in 1908 and 1909. In South Carolina the complete modern idea was inaugurated in the Seneca Graded and High Schools, September 23, 1909. In the Seneca schools the examination was conducted by two general practitioners of medicine and surgery, two dental surgeons and one eye and ear, nose and throat specialist, a secretary and the teacher of each grade. The result of the examination of each pupil was recorded on this card, which is always kept in the teacher's desk for reference:

"After a reasonable time, if the treatment advised has not been instituted, the teacher visits the home and attempts to secure the same, and if she fails, the medical inspector tries himself, by a personal visit, perhaps.

"While examining the pupil the inspector, when necessary, gives advice in a kindly, fatherly way, and all habits discovered, such as cigarette smoking, the need of a tooth brush, the correctness of a careless gait, and importance of cleanliness. This is done in private when indicated.

"The medical inspector is also to record the amount of instruction which the pupils have received in hygiene."

MEN ARE A MORE AWFUL SIGHT.

A Georgia Woman Defends Woman's Rights as to Dress.

An Atlanta dispatch says: The worm has turned! A Georgia woman, tired of reading and hearing the preachers in particular, and men in general criticizing women's clothes, has arisen to demand point-blank what it is the men want the women to wear.

"We women would like to know if there is any style that would please the men," Miss Etta D. inquires. "We tried the wide skirts. All we could hear from the men and reformers was 'Hoop skirts, bustles, silk petticoats. Ridiculous!'"

"Then we tried the tight skirt, and all the men talk about is 'hobble skirts and silk hose.'"

"Some of us are so sick and tired of it that we would be almost willing to try Mother Eve's style if doing so would make the men shut up."

"What right has a man to judge a woman's clothes anyway? Is man in general well dressed, with his neck shaved high and his hair cut short, a cigarette or cigar in the corner of his mouth, a striped shirt, trousers that don't fit and pockets as large as coffee sacks, with silk socks and pugnosed shoes? Men are a more awful sight than any modern-garbed woman."
