ANOTHER ANDERSON MAN OUT
For Solicitor of Tenth Circuit—Leon L. Rice Announces Candidacy.

Leon L. Rice, Esq., of Anderson announces his candidacy for the office of Solicitor of the Tenth Judicial Circuit. Referring to his candidacy the Belton Journal says:

"The friends and acquaintances of Leon L. Rice will be interested in the announcement that he will enter the race for Solicitor in the primary this summer. Four years ago he made a very creditable race for this position. It being his first offer for public office. He was born and raised in Belton and is known by practically everybody in and around his home town.

"He has practiced law at Anderson since his graduation at the University of Virginia in 1907, and during this time has tried many cases in all the courts. He has made a success of his practice, and has a record of which his friends may well be proud.

"When the call came for men to go to France he voluntarily left a wife and three little ones to do his bit for his country and the boys. He went to France in the summer of 1918 and was there until the armistice, and remained until June, 1919, when he returned to his practice of the law at Anderson.

"He is so well known in Belton that nothing need be said of his qualifications for the position of Solicitor. He is fair and above reproach, sober, honest and true. The position of Solicitor is an important one, for it can be made one of persecution rather than of justice to big and little, rich and poor, great and small, but every one who knows Leon L. Rice knows that every man will get a square deal at his hands."

Keep Poultry Clean

Enormous Baby Chick Loss Caused Annually by Lice.

"I would not try to keep poultry without Dr. LeGear's Poultry Remedies," says Mrs. L. V. Rose, of Cuero, Texas. "We have never had any of them fall to do even more than you claim for them."

Every year millions of baby chicks are lost because setting hens are not kept clean and free of lice. Dr. LeGear's Lice Killer quickly rids your flock of lice and vermin.

Through his advice and remedies Dr. LeGear has helped thousands of poultry raisers during his 27 years' experience as an expert poultry specialist. It will pay you also to take advantage of Dr. LeGear's advice just as Mrs. Rose did, and increase your poultry profits. Get a can of Dr. LeGear's Lice Killer from your dealer. Use it according to directions. Satisfaction or money back. Dr. L. D. LeGear Med. Co., St. Louis, Mo.—(adv.)

MAYOR BROWN BACK AGAIN.

Lengthy Bombardment With Word Ammunition.

Walhalla, S. C., June 14, 1920.

Editor Keowee Courier: We are coming again asking space in The Courier in which to vindicate ourselves and the town of Walhalla from the attacks made against us in your paper of June 2d and again of June 9th.

In your editorial column of June 2d, under the glaring headlines of "Bolshevism in Our Midst," you most assuredly used your little hammer with the rapidity of a twenty-two hundred volt charge.

We, in as modest and as kind way as we knew how, called your attention to the fact that we attended the chautauqua regularly, and during this entire week did not see anything but good behavior. We rather apologized for taking so much of your valuable space. But since your issue of the 9th we can come more boldly, because it seems as for printers' ink and space you have an over abundance. Not being satisfied with giving us one dose of your "Bolshevism" you take the trouble to re-produce the entire article, for the reason, as you give it, there was some little typographical error. Also you had some "very favorable comment on this article, and numbers expressed their regret that there was something the matter with it, and it did not read right." This, Mr. Editor, is just what we think. And it was for this very reason that we called your attention to the matter in last week's Courier. It did not read right; it was not right.

For a further dose of "Bolshevism" you say in "unconscionable hoodlums,"—"It is a shame to our town that our citizens cannot safely leave their property standing on the streets of Walhalla in this year of Grace and Enlightenment. It is a shame and a disgrace that our friends from other towns and surrounding communities cannot come here without running the risk of becoming victims of our lawlessness." And then the final reason for reproduction is, "it may possibly give opportunity for what we have said to soak in." This is not the first time we have heard of things being done and then rubbed it in.

It is very common in most cases to give to each side its even number of innings. But the editor had the bat on the first inning and three times of the last issue, and firmly establishes himself in the belief that he is still right. Admitting that "some FEW of our citizens, our town officials as a whole, and our police force have seen fit to seek to discredit our statement, and to impute to us the motive of KNOCKER," if the editor will take the trouble to inquire as to how many constitute that "FEW" citizens who believe it was a knock, and altogether uncalled for, we believe that something will begin to SOAK IN on the editor.

Mr. Editor, we have long recognized that you are the "watchman" and if the watchman fails to warn, then the responsibility rests on him. You say we are Bolsheviks—we are lawless. We want to ask the editor if all these things are true—and you say they are and that "you seek to correct an evil that exists, has existed unchecked for long months, and even years,"—if you knew, or now know of such evils, why do you, or why have you not reported them to the proper authorities, so that they might have been nipped in the bud. Have you ever, (and we want to put the emphasis on the ever) gone to those vested with the authority of our town and furnished them with one whiff of information or a clue by which they could run down the lawless set in Walhalla? If you have and they have not acted, then let's have a new administration—some one who will make the violators of the law afraid to come out in open moonlight and utterly destroy so much of the people's property.

You, in your burst of patriotism and oratory, exclaim "Is that the form of democracy that our boys fought for to make safe? If it is, we think it better had they not fought." The citizens of Walhalla, we believe, have as great a respect as any people on earth for the boys who went and came back, and also as great a reverence for those of them who made the greatest of all sacrifices. They will deserve to rest in peace and not be dragged into every little newspaper controversy to give emphasis to what YOU have to say. You say this has existed unchecked for months and years. We wonder why you did not go back still farther and carry us back to the time that two little boys had a row just outside the Garden of Eden, and especially to the time of the "Bloody Thirteen," and give us hail Columbia for what they did.

We say that as far as the order at the chautauqua and grounds was concerned, we saw nothing that would have offended the most sensitive lady or gentleman, or any one who was not just hunting something with which to give us what the Cat gave the Owl.

Mr. Editor, we accept your comparison with the ostrich so far as this week of chautauqua is concerned, except that we had our heads under the tent and were not trying to find fault with everybody else. We would say further in this connection that we have more respect for the wild birds of Africa that bury their bills in the sand than we have for a certain other kind of bird with a red head, long bill and sharp claws, known as the Wood KNOCKER. Four years ago a certain gentleman ran for the Presidency of these United States against Woodrow Wilson. About all the honorable gentleman did in his public utterances was to knock the Democratic administration, without giving them one bit of real constructive ideas as to some better plan. We invite the editor to come forward with evidence necessary for conviction or with any plans for the betterment of our town. We are ready to join hands for a more perfect day, and make Walhalla a real Utopia.

As we have said before, we have nothing personal, and do not believe that the kind of newspaper advertisement we are giving the public is the Side Dress Your Cotton And Do It Now.

We have had five short crops of cotton, and this may be another. It will pay you to make all the cotton you can this year. It always does, but it will pay you unusually well this year, as cotton may be unusually high this fall.

The fertilizer used in side-dressing your cotton pays better than any fertilizer used. You apply it after you get your crop thinned and cleaned, and the crop gets all of it—there's nothing else to get it.

We are making the best Side-Dressing Fertilizer put in sacks. It is heavily charged with Soda, and then it has Meal, Fish and Tankage in the right proportions to continue the growth which the soda starts.

Ginners will tell you that 1,300 pounds of seed cotton which has been side-dressed will "turn out" as heavy a bale of cotton as 1,500 pounds of seed cotton which has not been side-dressed. There is more lint on the seed, the lint is longer, makes a better sample and sells for more money.

Side-dressed cotton does not "shed," or at least not near so much as cotton which has not been side-dressed. The reason cotton sheds is because it is short of plant food. The first application of fertilizer is nearly exhausted by the time cotton begins to fruit, and that is when there is the greatest strain on the cotton plant, and then is when it needs most plant food. When you work your mule hard it is on a strain and needs more mule food.

Side-dressing supplies the plant food just when it is sorely needed, and prevents the crop shedding. Suppose you didn't feed your mule at dinner when you are working him hard. He would "shed" too—but you would not think of not feeding your mule three times a day when you are working him. Your cotton needs side-dressing just as badly as your mule needs three feeds a day.

A little more fertilizer applied as side-dressing will prevent shedding.

Our Special Side-Dresser is far better than soda by itself. Soda by itself will give it a rapid growth, which is always watery, and then if you have a few days of hot sun the crop is badly cut. Our Special Dresser is heavily charged with soda, and then it has Meal, Fish and Tankage, which continues the growth which the soda started, and carries it on until the crop is matured and the bolls ripen and are ready to open.

Our Special Side-Dresser applied at the right time and in sufficient quantity will increase your crop enough to pay your entire fertilizer bill out of it's increase.

You can tell the difference between cotton that is side-dressed and cotton that is not side-dressed just by looking at it as you ride along the road. To do that there must be a difference of at least 300 pounds of seed cotton, and this from cotton that has been side-dressed will yield 110 pounds of lint, and this at 40 cents a pound—and it may bring 50 cents—means $44 extra to the acre. This will pay for all your fertilizer and a good part of the picking.

Side-dressing will prevent enough shedding to make a big difference in the crop, besides the extra fruit it will put on.

First put on the fruit on the plant, and then—for a sure thing, for a sure receipt, for a sure remedy, for a sure preventive against shedding—read the third chapter of Malachi, and this, "lest you forget," is the last book in the Old Testament.

Apply your side-dressing now—just as soon as you can—and put down enough to do some good.
