Co-operative Marketing of Cotton.

The long expected campaign on the co-operative marketing of cotton is expected to begin in Oconee county on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11th and 12th, with three big meetings as outlined above.

This plan is to establish a system in this State to begin operation with the crop of 1922. Co-operative marketing is not a new thing. It has been practiced in Denmark for 100 years and in California for 25 years. It is now spreading over the entire United States, all classes of farmers rallying to the cause. The grain growers of the West are organizing on a similar plan this year; the peanut growers of Virginia and North Carolina have completed their organization recently; the tobacco growers of Virginia and North Carolina are practically organized, and the COTTON GROWERS of Oklahoma, Texas and Mississippi and Arizona have organized and are DOING BUSINESS this year, handling at present an average of 2,500 bales a day, which is three times as much cotton as the largest corporation in the United States handles.

North Carolina has recently completed her campaign for 200,000 bales signed up, and will soon have 300,000 bales signed up, according to the Progressive Farmer.

South Carolina is going after 100,000 bales, Georgia 100,000, Arkansas 100,000, with Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and practically every State in the South going into the campaign to join the others which have completed their campaigns. These States plan to federate into a systematic organization for the selling of cotton on a business-like basis.

This organization DOES NOT intend to do any price-fixing, but IT DOES intend to get for the farmer-members the REAL VALUE of their product insofar as skillful salesmanship, proper grading and organization can do it. It seeks merely to apply the same horse sense rules of business to the MERCHANDISING of cotton that the manufacturers NOW APPLY to selling their own products.

Farmers will urgently need the FULL VALUE of their cotton with the boll weevil present, and this sensible, business-like plan is the very best that has ever been tried.

This is not mere theory. The beauty about this plan is that IT WORKS. It has been truly called "THE BIGGEST THING IN THE SOUTH." It is the privilege and duty of every farmer and landowner to attend one of these three meetings.

Order Trees Soon.

The time will soon be out—Nov. 22th—when all orders for fruit trees through the County Agent, co-operatively, will be totaled up and wholesale prices from leading nurseries obtained. If you have not sent in your order, it should be done without delay.

Oconee is not living up to her rights as a great orchard county, and after the boll weevil gets in heavy damage is no time to begin orchards.

The time to begin orchards is NOW—at the earliest possible moment.

For commercial orchards the following varieties are recommended in the order named:

Apples—Stayman Winesap, Delicious, Red Winesap.

It is questionable whether or not commercial peach orchards should be set out in this county, for the risks are far greater here than in the sand-hill section of the State around Alken and Columbia. Thousands of peach trees have been set out in those sections during the past season, and thousands more will be set out.

Oconee has them on apples, for no county below Oconee can grow apples that can compare with her.

Auction of Fine Jerseys.

There will be an auction sale of a large number of fine registered Jerseys at a sale on the edge of the city of Spartanburg on Saturday, Nov. 5. Heifers, mature cows and bulls will be on sale, and a number of fine registered-of-merit animals are offered.

Some progressive farmers of Oconee intend attending this sale, and it is hoped that more will attend. We should keep good dairy cattle in this State, and now that the boll weevil is threatening the chief money crop, the monthly cream check will look more golden in the future. Good cows and PLENTY of home-grown feeds mean success in dairying.

Geo. R. BRIGGS, County Agent.

HOME DEMONSTRATION NOTES.

How Can I Make My Farm Flock Pay?

Last month the Home Demonstration Agent of this county urged every person to cull out the flock of poor producers. Many of our people took this advice and will save money this winter in feed bills.

Now is the time to establish for ourselves a standard breed of chickens. A breed in which you will find a real pleasure in accomplishment of certain definite objectives. Too long our farm flocks have been bred without any care, and too often it is nothing in particular—just a mongrel flock—so mixed that we ourselves cannot recognize any of the original blood. Such a flock does not pay; each year it grows weaker.

South Carolina does not nearly produce enough chickens and eggs for its own use. We get large supplies from Tennessee and North Carolina. We have the market, but not the production. Why not produce for market? We purpose to make a beginning along this line this fall. We are organizing, by communities, into poultry associations. The members of these associations will all have one breed of chickens. It is desirable for every person in the county to have the same breed. This will standardize production. It will make marketing easier and more profitable. It will show the way for a county organization when the need demands. It is our purpose to go into this on an extensive or expensive scale, but we are going to lay strong and firm foundations, beginning with a few of the best flocks available and as the project grows.

The boll weevil is with us. What are we to do about it? There is ready relief in the poultry if we will but produce intelligently. The poultry associations purpose to make a united effort to do this. If you desire further information, see your County Home Demonstration Agent.

School Lunches

The importance of the mid-day meal for the growing child is often neglected, particularly during school time. It should not be forgotten that, as a rule, the lunch which the child takes to school is the big meal of the day, and therefore should be sufficient in quantity, wholesome and made up of the foods required by the growing body.

Growing children need good, wholesome foods because new tissue is being made, they take a great deal of exercise, and the tax of study increases their food requirement. They need simple foods, easily digested, such as milk and milk products, and meats, as beef, fish and chicken, and vegetables, fruits and cereals.

To summarize the planning and preparation of the school lunch: It should be planned so as to be satisfying and nutritious, but NOT HEAVY (heavy lunches cause sluggishness).

In packing the lunch the container is most important. It should be one that is easily cleaned and properly ventilated. Paper napkins should, when possible, be provided. Each sandwich should be wrapped in oiled or paraffin paper. For the carrying of such foods as salads, etc., small jelly glasses or custard cups are very nice. The attractiveness of the lunch has much to do with the taste of the food which it contains. When possible, the ideal way is to have one not fish or drink to accompany the home packed lunch. This, of course, is prepared at school.

The following are a few examples of properly planned lunches:

1—Two chicken sandwiches; small container of potato salad; one apple; half pint sweet milk; a small piece of peanut brittle.

2—One or two cheese and pimento sandwiches; small container of baked beans; half pint sweet milk; one piece sponge cake.

3—Two nut sandwiches; potato or mixed vegetable salad; half pint of sweet milk; one cup cake; one orange.

4—Two cottage cheese and nut sandwiches; celery or cole-slaw; baked cup custard; two sugar cookies.
