THE STAR

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Far out at the lonely crossroads huddled the little school house. Now with the dark sky above it lay like a blot on the snow, and inside the school house, placing the last available bit of wood in the box stove, Rhea still hopefully waited. She had not gone home after school with her released pupils, for there was to have been a meeting of the school board that evening, here in the tiny assembly room.

Rhea's presence was desired, so she had brought her supper, folded in one of Mrs. Browning's neat napkins, and eaten it, meditatively, seated before her teacher's desk. Mrs. Browning was the village mother, with whom Rhea found board, and Mrs. Browning's two growing sons were the girl's comfort and protection.

It was to Jack's thoughtfulness that she was indebted for the orderly pile of logs out in the auto shed. Jim had himself filled the oil lamp before departing. But as Rhea waited alone the snow which had been falling softly all day changed suddenly into a fierce blowing blizzard, so that travel for the time would be dangerous. Jack had intended to drive the flier over for her after board meeting, but Rhea, peering through the snow blurred window, wondered, troubled if he might be able to make it.

Twilight descended into darkness. The members of the school board, doubtless discouraged by the weather, failed to arrive.

The last bit of wood in the stove burned cheerily, gratefully. But it was the last that Jack had brought in. She put her cloak around her, and made her way with difficulty, even that short distance—to the shed. Then Rhea paused in dismay, for there was not one log among the many piled there, that she could possibly carry, in her frailness. Jack had been so sure that the men would be there to assist her by the time the log would be needed.

Breathless, a little frightened, Rhea fought her way back through the cutting winds. Sitting before the rapidly freezing window, Rhea looked back over the years of her own saddened girlhood. The mother, tender, unselfish and adoring always; yet a mother invalided, needing constantly her own youthful care. Youth? Rhea sighed over the word. Youth had passed her by, leaving none of its pleasures.

Then as she looked through the window Rhea saw the star; unearthed bright it gleamed through the clear of the glass, alone it seemed, a sign of promise in the lull of storm. The girl smiled, and now it was not a wan smile, but one of warm courage.

"My star of promise," she said. She went over to the creaky organ, and turned its rickety stool. Then in the empty room Rhea played a happy song. At the lonely crossroad, an objecting automobile abruptly gave up its struggle with the snow. While the driver, muttering invectives against roads and weather in general, clashed shiveringly from the car's seat—and heard the gay notes of an organ. He did not fully realize that it was an organ, his first realization being merely that shelter was near. The snow had banked itself against the schoolhouse windows, doing its best to conceal the feeble light within. But Paul Danvers found his way to the schoolhouse door, and pounded

WANTS NAME OF CAKE MAKER.

Greenwood Angel Food Cake Ticked Palate of Alton T. Parker.

Greenwood, March 1.—The local post of the American Legion is making an effort to learn the name of the maker of an angel food cake that was placed on board Marshal Foch's train when it passed through Greenwood on Dec. 9th, a duplicate of the cake being sought by the wife of Alton T. Parker, National American Legion executive committee member, who helped eat the cake.

In a letter to the local post Mrs. Parker declares that her cook has gone crazy attempting to make an angel food cake like the one her husband ate in South Carolina, and she has decided to try to get one from the maker of the Foch cake for her husband's birthday on March 9. Efforts to find out who made the cake thus far have proved futile.

MOTHER! CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP.

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipated poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "CALIFORNIA" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—adv.

TO FACE OLD MURDER CHARGE.

Aged Georgian Arrested for Crime Committed Fifty-One Years Ago.

Montgomery, Ala., March 1.—Governor Kilby late yesterday honored a requisition drawn by Governor Hardwick, of Georgia, for the return of George Nichols from Tuscaloosa county, Alabama, to Floyd county, Georgia, for trial on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Peter Mooney, at Rome, Ga., 51 years ago. The Governor directed that Nichols be delivered to C. L. Wright, deputy sheriff of the Georgia county.

Nichols was arrested yesterday at Tuscaloosa under a warrant charging that Hiram Casey Nettles, alias George Nichols, did "kill and murder Peter Mooney, on Oct. 25, 1870, by the use of a pistol or gun, and the killing was done with premeditation."

Nichols was recently divorced from his wife in Jefferson county, Alabama. This proceeding led to the man being identified as Nettles, according to George Favors, a Birmingham attorney, who swore out the warrant.

To Fight Extradition.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., March 1.—Attorneys for George Nichols, held on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Peter Mooney at Rome, Ga., on Oct. 25, 1870, were to-day preparing to fight extradition of Nichols to Floyd county, Georgia. The extradition papers had not yet reached here to-day. Governor Kilby honored the requisition drawn by Governor Hardwick, of Georgia, and directed that Nichols be delivered to a Georgia deputy sheriff. Nichols is 75 years old.

Ontie Grier Pardoned.

Columbia, March 1.—Governor R. A. Cooper granted a full pardon to Ontie Grier, a York county prisoner, who assisted Emanuel Daniels, another prisoner, to save the life of a chain gang guard several weeks ago when the guard was struck in the head by a negro convict. Daniels grabbed the guard's rifle and held eleven prisoners at bay while Grier ran for help, thus saving the life of the guard and preventing the escape of the other prisoners. A full pardon has already been granted Daniels.

THE MAKER OF CAKE IS FOUND.

A Woman of Charlotte, N. C., Placed Cake on the Foch Train.

Greenwood, March 2.—A search over two States for the maker of the famous angel food cake which was supposed to have been placed on board Marshal Foch's special train at Greenwood on Dec. 9th, has apparently resulted in the discovery that a Mrs. Harris, of Charlotte, N. C., is the maker. Part of the cake was eaten by Alton T. Roberts, the national committee member of the American Legion, of Marquette, Mich., and since that time, according to a letter from Mrs. Roberts to the local Legion post, Mr. Roberts has driven their cook to the point of insanity, attempting to duplicate the cake. Mrs. Roberts wrote the local Legion members here to procure, if possible, another cake from the same maker and send it to her for her husband's birthday on March 9.

A letter just received from Mrs. A. B. Cheatham, of Charlotte, stated that a friend of hers, a Mrs. Harris, was the maker of the famous angel food cakes, and had presented the Foch party with one, the cake being packed in the kind of hat box described by Mrs. Roberts.

Sewed Towel Inside of Patient.

Oxford, Va., March 2.—Friends in the State of Mr. and Mrs. Chevassé Mellichampe, who formerly lived here, are interested in learning the following news about Mr. Mellichampe's mother, which appeared in the Washington, D. C., papers on the 22d of February:

Mrs. Bertha Mellichampe, wife of Rev. E. W. Mellichampe, pastor of Peble church, Virginia, was removed to the Alexandri. Hospital Sunday, suffering from acute internal pains. Examination by a number of physicians failed to reveal the exact cause of the pain, and it was finally decided that an operation would be necessary to determine the source of the ailment. The operation, performed yesterday, revealed a 13-inch towel, which had been left following an operation thirteen years ago. The towel was removed, and now Mrs. Mellichampe is reported to be on a fair way to recovery.

WOMAN IN THE BRITISH HOUSE

Of Lords—Lady Rhonda is the First to Attain this Distinction.

London, March 2.—The petition of Lady Rhonda to sit in the House of Lords was granted by the committee on privileges of the House of Lords to-day. If she takes the seat awarded her by this ruling she will be the first woman to sit in the upper house of the British parliament, as Lady Astor was in the lower chamber.

Lady Rhonda is the daughter of Viscount Rhonda, Great Britain's war-time food controller, who died in 1918 from an illness brought on by overwork. His only child was a daughter.

After Lady Rhonda's right to the present title was established her counsellors agreed that the disqualification of sex act had clearly applied to a case like the present, and that the disability existing in the past now being removed, Lady Rhonda was entitled to sit in the House of Lords.

After further arguments the Attorney General, on behalf of the crown, said he raised no objection to the petition, which was, therefore, granted.

Cal. Turner, the woman's husband, is under a similar sentence, having been convicted of moonshining along with his wife.

DRAMATIC TENNESSEE MURDER

Case Ended Four Men Give Lives for the One They Took.

Nashville, Tenn., March 1.—Chas. Petree, Tom Christmas, Otto Stevens and John McClure died in the electric chair at the State prison this morning for the killing of George Lewis, of Knoxville, on May 30th, 1921. The men went to their deaths with prayers on their lips, and all except Petree met death calmly. An hour before the execution Petree became ill. The men died in the order given: Petree at 6.15 o'clock, Christmas at 6.25, Stevens at 6.35, and McClure at 6.40.

The story of how the four men were captured and convicted of murdering Lewis, near Clinton, Tenn., on May 30th, 1921, is fraught with dramatic incidents. The gruesome murder, the wild chase over the mountains of East Tennessee for the outlaws, the subsequent trial and conviction, all served to engage the interest of the people of that section more, perhaps, than any murder case for many years.

It was brought out in the trial that, having planned the robbery of the Oakdale, Tenn., bank, the men hired a taxi driven by Andrew Crumley, of Knoxville, Tenn. George Lewis accompanied Crumley on the trip which the four men hired the latter to make.

When the party had reached a secluded spot near Robertsville, in Tennessee, according to testimony by Crumley, Lewis and the driver of the taxi were bound and gagged and beaten over the head with a pistol, and left for dead. Both of the victims' throats were cut.

The bank robbery failed to materialize. Then followed a search, which was joined in by hundreds of mountaineers. Two of the men were arrested in the mountains, and the other two were later captured at Harriman, Tenn. The outlaws had killed Lewis, but Crumley lived and it was his testimony that went far toward convicting the men.

Mountaineers from many sections crowded into the little town of Clinton to attend the trial.

Excitement ran high, and for a while, violence was threatened. Before it was evident that the defense's case had collapsed an attempt was made to show that Petree had possessed low mentality since his childhood. This effort failed, and the defense entered a plea of guilty, with a request for the mercy of the court.

The four convicted men were sentenced on July 24, 1921, to die in the electric chair on Sept. 16. An appeal for a new trial was later overruled and the defense appealed to the Supreme Court of Tennessee, thus suspending temporarily the electrocution pending the final decision.

Forty Years for Abbeville Negro.

Abbeville, March 2.—Ward Thomson, a negro, charged with attempted criminal assault upon a young woman of the Antreville section, was found guilty, with a recommendation to the mercy of the court in Abbeville this morning.

Judge Wilson sentenced Thomson to serve forty years in the State penitentiary. The case was given to the jury yesterday at 11 o'clock and a verdict was arrived at early this morning. The negro was immediately taken to Columbia.

THE ORIGIN OF THE HYMN.

"SWEET BYE AND BYE."

(L. S. M., in The Tri-County Advertiser, Clarksville, Ga.)

A music writer whose name was Bennett was an intimate friend of Daniel Webster. The latter at times was subject to melancholy. Bennett dropped into his office one morning and found Mr. Webster very much depressed in spirit.

"What is the matter now?" asked Bennett, noticing his sad countenance.

"No matter," said Webster. "It will be all right by and by."

"Yes, that sweet bye and bye," said Bennett. Would not that sentiment make a good hymn?" asked Bennett.

"Maybe it would," said Webster indifferently.

Turning to the desk Bennett wrote three verses of the hymn and handed them to Webster. When he read them his whole demeanor underwent a change. Stepping again to the desk Bennett began to write the notes, and when finished he called for his violin and played the melody. In a few minutes more he had the four parts of the chorus completed, which was not over thirty minutes from the first thought of the hymn, and it was but a short while until the two friends and two others who had come in were singing all the parts together. A bystander, who had been attracted by the music and listened in tearful silence, remarked, "That hymn is immortal."

It is sung now in every land and tongue under the sun, and no collection of Sunday school or religious hymns is complete without it, and tears flow freely when it is rendered skillfully.

Jackson Passing as Military Post.

Columbia, March 1.—This is the date that has been set as the time for the passing of Camp Jackson as a military post, and within the next few days the bulk of the troops now stationed there will leave. There are possibly five hundred men at Camp Jackson now, and at headquarters it is stated that within a few days, according to expectations, orders will be received for the first battalion of the Sixth Infantry to leave the post. They will go to Camp Bragg, at Fayetteville, N. C. This will take about 350 enlisted men and 25 officers.

The departure of the first battalion of the Sixth Infantry will leave at the camp about 150 men and a half dozen officers, who, mostly of the Quartermaster Corps, will have charge of the property of the camp. They will remain until the camp is salvaged completely, the date for this work not having been yet set.

Col. Jackson will remain at the camp as commander. Col. Faucet, Capt. Gates and Capt. Pratt, officers now at the camp, will remain there. The three last named are of the Quartermaster Corps.

Hunger Striker to Die.

Chicago, March 2.—Harvey W. Church, 21 years of age, convicted slayer of two automobile salesmen, lost his last hope for life to-night when Governor Small refused a plea for clemency.

To weak to walk, and his mind a blank, the result of a forty-day hunger strike, he will be carried to the gallows strapped in a chair at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, according to present plans.

loud enough to be heard above Rhea's music.

When she opened the door, with her scarlet shawl still about her shoulders, the girl's eyes widened in delight at the prospect of companionship and deliverance, while the man's frown vanished at sight of her.

"It was any port in a storm," he explained briefly. And when Rhea pointed to the dead embers and told him her predicament, the attorney hastened to relieve the situation.

It had been many years since he had split logs for firewood and carried them to his country boyhood home, and he felt now a strange new exhilaration in this task. Later, as he and Rhea sat before the cheering blaze, they looked into each other's eyes and smiled in sympathetic understanding. "I was thinking," she said, "how wonderful it is, that you happened away out here, to come to my aid."

"And I was thinking," the man returned laughingly, "how I grumbled all day over the law errand, which forced me into the country. Why—" he stretched out his hands enjoyably, "I would not have missed this experience for a great deal. It's—happy youth back again; the rows of remembered desks, the great white world of adventure waiting just outside."

"I hope," Rhea said matter-of-factly, "that Jack, or Jim Browning will drive over soon in a sleigh to rescue us."

"But I don't want to be rescued," Paul Danvers insisted. "I am going to say something very old—but in my case, true. I feel as if I had known you, always. As if, all my life I have been trying to find my way to—just you."

From her place before the window, Rhea gave no answer. "Are you," the man asked her, "looking for the sleigh?" Then she turned to him and smiled; her face was radiant. "No," she said softly, "I was looking at a star."

Millions Awarded to Negroes.

New Orleans, Feb. 28.—Oil lands in Claiborne parish, said to be worth nearly $20,000,000, were declared to-day by the Louisiana Supreme Court to be the property of Lillie G. Taylor, a negroes, when the court denied a request for the appointment of a curator for the estate of Lone McGee, her mother.

J. Russ Wimberley, District Attorney of Claiborne parish, brought action in the District Court of that parish to have himself named as the curator for the estate, contending that the estate was a "vacant" one, as no legitimate heirs were living. Upon dismissal of his suit in the district court, he appealed to the Supreme Court, which upheld the lower court. Lillie Taylor was declared by the Supreme Court (reiterating a former opinion decreeing the land as hers), to be the acknowledged daughter of Lona McGee, wife of the former owner of the land.

She Stole for Her Babies.

Chicago, March 3.—When Mrs. Jessie Sinclair pleaded guilty to-day to theft, and said that she stole for the sake of her babies, the prosecutor withdrew the charge and contributed to a fund of $80 raised for her in seven minutes in the court room.
