MIDNIGHT FUNERAL FOR WOMAN

Long Known as "Chinatown Gertie," Was an Outcast for Years.

New York, April 13.—All that was mortal of Gertrude Merrit, known to the lowly of New York's East Side simply as "Chinatown Gertie," was laid at rest to-day at Linden Hill cemetery, Brooklyn. For years an outcast in the streets and alleys of the Bowery, when that thoroughfare was the synonym of crime and degradation, she became, almost in a single night, a ministering angel to the suffering, an interceder for the erring, a counsellor of the weak, and an avenging shadow to those who had broken their promises to follow the straight and narrow path.

Funeral services for the woman were held last night in the little chapel of the Midnight Mission, of the Rescue Society in Doyers street, the heart of Chinatown. Men and women who knew her laughed as a score of speakers, hardened to the ways of the underworld, told stories of "Chinatown Gertie."

These had known her when she was a pariah, even on the lower East Side, and most of them had been led to better things by the woman whose flower-covered coffin stood before the little pulpit. It was not all laughter, however, for here and there hands unashamed, brushed away tears that flowed in tribute to one who had been as strong in doing good as she had been weak in following the thorn-paved path.

Tourists who had gone to see Chinatown tried to get into the chapel, but only those who were respectful were allowed to enter. Those who did not show a real sense of propriety were cast into the street, and a policeman, standing near, was always looking the other way when this occurred.

It was a strange funeral to many of the strangers who witnessed it. But it was a shining, loving, remembering people who attended. It was a little fragment out of the kaleidoscopic life of a mighty city, and it was all that Gertie could have wished.

HOME DEMONSTRATION NOTES.

Vegetable Notes.

Tomato plants may now be transplanted in eastern district in open ground. In the Pee-Dee and Piedmont districts and similar latitudes we find April 10th to 15th as early as advisable. Tomato seed may also be planted in open ground, either in a bed or directly in the field where plants are intended to grow.

Snap Beans—Plant "1000-to-One" and the stringless green pod because of their superior eating qualities. Drill in the seed instead of dropping in hills, as this gives more room to each individual plant. Where you must cultivate largely, with a hoe there is some advantage in dropping in hills about a foot apart, or wide enough to let the hoe go between. Be sure to fertilize these early beans well if you want a good crop.

Butter Beans—Plant these as soon as the ground is warm and all danger of frost is past—about the same time you plant cotton.

Cabbage—Try a patch of cabbage in the field right where you intend them to grow. The All-Season and Succession varieties are the best. These cabbages will head in July, after the early crop is off. The main trouble you may have with them is the green worm, but if you keep them growing rapidly, you can keep ahead of the worms by dusting with lime and arsenate of lead, 8 to 1.

Tomato Blight or With—This fungus disease is very common. Now the only real remedy or prevention is to plant your tomatoes on land that is not affected with the fungus. Do not plant tomatoes on land that has had either tomatoes, Irish potatoes or watermelons grown on it for at least four years. Use lime liberally, broadcast on the land either before or after setting your plants. Also be sure the land is well drained.

County Home Dem. Agent.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP.

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup," and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful to-day may prevent a sick child to-morrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—adv

Castoria's Founder Dead.

A dispatch from Orange, N. J., says: "Charles H. Fletcher, whose name appears on billboards the country over, advertising Castoria, died here on Monday night, April 9th, of the infirmities incident to old age.

"Born in New York 81 years ago, Mr. Fletcher went to work at the age of 13 years in a proprietary medicine establishment. In 1872 he had saved enough money to purchase the formula for 'Castoria' from a New York physician and organized the Centaur Company for its manufacture. He retired from active management of his big plant last September."
