AGRICULTURAL, &C.

For the present the manure should be spaded or ploughed in, and its thorough incorporation with the soil will be effected when the ground is again worked over. It is now time to make arrangements as to what the different parts of the garden shall be planted with during the ensuing spring and summer. 7 Our rule is to have two crops of the same class follow each other. The system of rotation must depend upon the requirements of the family to be supplied, and the quantity of land at disposal for the purpose. Where it is necessary to have several crops on the ground at the same time, celery will be found to be an excellent preparation for peas, carrots, parsnips or cauliflowers, which may be succeeded by onions, lettuce, spinach, tomatoes," &c.; afterwards by cabbages, beans, &outhen in the following spring by celery, potatoes, &c.

Asparagus .- Prepare ground by deep trenching, &c., for permanent beds. Plenty of good well decomposed manure should be used in their formation.

CARROTS. A. little of the Early Horn may, be sown upon a warm, well sheltered border, whenever the weather is favorable.

CAULIFLOWER AND CABBAGE. - Sow on a moderate hot bed for transplanting.

Lettuce, in frames, should be kept free from weeds and decayed leaves, admitting an abundance of air during fine days. Succession crops should now be sown, and young plants planted in a gentle hot-bed for planting out a few weeks hence.

Hot-beds may be made towards the end of the month for the purpose of sowing a little of every kind of early vegetables. Early crops of lettuce; radishes, carrets, &c., may be got by sowing upon well sheltered borders, with the help of a slight protection from cold north and

Old apple and pear trees may be greatly improved by judicious pruning and by applying manure at the extrauities of their roots, and by a good top-dressing of well rotted barn-yard S, Thomas, JR.,

FARM IMPLEMENTS .- Let these be overhauled and and repaired, and such new ones provided as you may need. It is poor economy to work with a bad tool, and as bad to have an insufficiency. Let them be supplied before you are ready to use them.

GRAIN FIELDS .- See that grain fields are not trespassed on, especially when the ground is soft. If they will admit of being fed down, let it not be done till spring, when the frost is out of the ground then trampling will be useful in packing the up heaved soil.

CLOVER FIELDS. - Clover fields should be especially protected from the tread of stock In soft weather the ground is seriously injured by the trampling, and in all weather the crowns of the plants liable to be destroyed, doing much damage to the crop. Under no circumstances should a young clover field be trod by stock until there is a sufficient bite to feed them well, odT 2 H and id 1

SEEDS .- Let grass seeds be now provided. Clover seeds are very often sown in February, and it is thought, on the whole, the best time. The seed becomes covered by the action of the frost upon the surface, and starts early, which is a point of much importance. In this case there is no preparation for sowing or any other operation, but the roller will do useful service where the frost is out of the ground.

FENCES AND FIREWOOD .- Wood cutting is the peculiar work of frosty weather, and before the winter season has passed, all necessary work of this sort should be done. The fencing material required should be cut and prepared for the fence, and if possible, hauled while the ground is firm, to the place where it is needed. Fire wood quito sufficient for next winter's use should be cut, that there may not be the vexation of making fires of green wood, nor the waste of using one half of the wood, to make the other half burn, nor the extra labor of hauling a large quantity of water, which must be evaporated before the wood can be consumed.

MANURES Take advantage of any good weather to get manures to the ground where wanted, and do not fear to spread it at once upon the ground. Gather materials, as there is opportunity, to increase the quantity. Make compost heaps for any necessary purposes. Litter stock of all sorts abundantly. Manure is a good thing, of which we are not likely to liave too much.

Comprising Narratives of Personal Adventure, Army Life, Naval Adventure, Home Life, Partisan Dar-ing, Life in the Camp, Field and Hospital Togeth-er with the Songs, Balladse Ancedotes and Humo-rous Incidents of the War for Southern In lept.

There is a certain portion of the war that will never go into the regular histories, nor be embodnever go into the regular histories, nor be embodied in romance or poetry, which is a very real-part of it, and will, if preserved, convey to succeeding generations a better idea of the spirit of the conflict than many dry reports or careful narratives of events, and this part may be called the gossip, the fun, the pathos of the war. This illustrates the character of the leaders, the humor of the soldiers, the devotion of women, the bravery of men, the pluck of our heroes, the remance and hardships of the service.

The Valiant and Brave Hearted, the Picturesque and Dramatic, the Witty and Marvelous, the Tender and Pathetic, and the whole Panorama of the War are here thrillingly portrayed in a masterly manner, at once historical and romantic, rundering it the most ample, unique, brilliant and readable book that the war has called forth.

Amusement as well as instruction may be found in every page, as graphic detail, brilliant wit, and authentic history, are skillfully interwoven in this work of literary art. Send for Circulars and see our terms, and a full description of the work. Address,
