

POETRY.

A First Sorrow.

"Arise! this day shall shine For Evermore To the star divine On Time's dark shore.

"Till now thy soul has been All glad and gay; Did it awake and look At grief to-day!

No shade has come between Thee and the Sun; Like some long childish dream Thy life has run.

But now the stream has reached A dark deep sea, And sorrow, dim and crowned Is waiting thee—

Each of God's soldiers bears A sword divine; Stretch out thy trembling hands To-day for thine!

To each anointed Priest God's summons came; Oh, soul! He speaks to-day— And calls thy name.

Then with slow, revivest steps, And beating heart, From out thy joyous days, Thou must depart.

And leaving all behind Come forth alone, To join the chosen band— Around the throne.

Raise up thine eyes—be strong, Nor cast away The crown that God has given Thy soul to-day!"

Some time ago there was a trial for trespass in cutting wood from a neighbor's premises without authority. One of the plaintiff's witnesses was a plain old farmer, whose testimony went clearly and directly to prove the charge. The defendant's counsel, a blustering man of brass, thought to weaken the force of his evidence by proving idiocy to be a trait of his family. He therefore interrogated him thus:

"Mr. Hodge, you have a son who is an idiot, have you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"Does he know anything?"

"Very little."

"How much does he know?"

"Well almost nothing. Not much more than you do."

The witness was allowed to retire without further questions, amid the most uproarious screams of laughter.

THE IRISHMAN AND THE FIDDLER. An Irishman, just come to this country, had never seen a fiddle. A man came into the hotel with one under his arm, and began to screw it up. One of the screws slipped, and he spat upon it to make it hold, and then began to draw the bow. The Irishman, who was watching him could stand it no longer, but bolted across the street into another hotel, exclaiming; "I thought this was a land of freedom," but the devil take such a land where ye abuse the poor children so bad."

Landlord—"Who is abusing the children?"

"Why, a man came into the tavern just now, with a little boy under his arm, and he began to torment the little crat-cher. First, he began to pull and twist his ears, then, to provoke him more, he spit in his face, and then he drew a briar across his belly, and howl Virgin! how he did scream!"

"John," said a stingy old hunk, to his hired man as he was taking dinner, "do you know how many pancakes you have eaten?"

"No."

"Well, you've eaten fourteen."

"Well," said John, "you count and I'll eat."

Some boys in Cincinnati stole the bowels of a hand-organ which belonged to a minstrel who was stone deaf. The next morning he took his place and ground away as gaily as ever, producing, of course, no audible result. The by-passers appeared to like that sort of thing, and contributed so liberally that the troubadour divined that something must be wrong. Investigation disclosed his loss, but the unexpected pecuniary favor with which his outbreak of silence was received, inclines him to let the intestines of the thing go and run the shell for awhile.

In Arkansas, Elder Knapp, while baptizing converts at a revival meeting, advanced with a wiry sharp eyed old chap into the water. He asked the usual question; whether there was any reason why the ordinance of the baptism should not be administered. After a pause, a tall, powerful looking chap, with an eye like a blaze, who was leaning on an old rifle, and quietly looking on, remarked: "Elder, I don't want to interfere in this yer business any, but I want to say that is an old sinner you have got hold of, and I know that one dip won't do him any good. If you want to get the sin out of him, you'll have to anchor him out in deep water over night."

PLANTATION BITTERS. This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits. Wherever it is introduced it becomes a standard article—a medicinal staple. It is to-day the best and purest tonic, and the most popular medicine in the civilized world—be sure and get the genuine. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Country Stores. aug 21
