

LOCAL.

SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1871.

The weather has been so unusually hot for the past week that soda water and ice have been in constant demand.

Sheriff Riggs carried the prisoners, sentenced at the last term of Court to the Penitentiary, up to Columbia on Wednesday last.

We know personally of thirteen candidates for the next sheriff of this County. We might say "that many shall offer, but only one can be chosen."

We understand that a grand picnic was had by the colored portion of the population in the vicinity of Branchville, on Saturday last, at F. W. Fairley's mill.

THEODORE KOHN & BRO., offers extra inducements to purchasers. Read their advertisement, and be profited by it.

Communism has failed in France, and the Charleston Courier very pertinently asks, "what next?"

The Columbia Phoenix dubs the Columbia Union the Ku Klux Reporter, and the Union retaliates by dubbing the Phoenix the Ku Klux Defender, and says it, the Defender, has been recently treated to ginger-pop.

A GREAT SACRIFICE.—Mr. J. P. Harley offers his entire stock at a sacrifice. He has on hand a heavy and select supply of goods, of every description, which he proposes to sell upon the easiest terms persons wanting good and cheap bargains, can get them by calling at Mr. Harley's.

The communication signed "One Who Knows" from Branchville, in reference to the letter of "Oldster" published in our last issue, we decline to insert. Our columns are open for free and honorable discussion; but "One Who Knows" must learn the honorable part of it preparatory to the commencement of a controversy. He certainly doesn't know it now.

SOMETHING NEW TO ORANGEBURG.

In our advertising columns will be found the new and attractive advertisement of Wm. M. Sain & Co. Their splendid LAVERY STABLES, which have been in process of completion for some time, are now finished. These gentlemen are now ready to furnish transportation, and do all kinds of hauling upon short notice, and at reasonable prices. A splendid supply of horses, either for the saddle or buggy, will always be found on hand. Parties desirous of attending picnics can procure transportation from these Stables at moderate rates. In a word, this Company is prepared to furnish, at all times, saddle horses and turnouts splendidly equipped, either for pleasure or business. They are expecting, also, a fine supply of horses from Kentucky, which they propose to sell at a small advance. Persons wanting good horses, would do well to leave their names at these Stables. Horse Drivers accommodated. And what is better for our County is, hereafter, it will not be necessary for any of our citizens, who, after driving their horses twenty or thirty miles through the heat, upon arriving in town, to have to hitch them in the hot broiling sun. For a few times they can take them to these stables, have them fed, rubbed down and otherwise taken care of. And after all, these poor dumb animals are just as fond of their dinner, and the shade as their too frequently inconsiderate masters. Messrs. Sain & Co., have added an important improvement to our town, and we predict for them sure success.

THE BIBLE EXPLAINED.—There is some sort of a passage in the Bible which runs, "If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out," &c. Over this sentence it appears that the mind of a certain gentleman of Branchville, has been seriously exercised for some months past. Anxious to get the views of every exponent of the Gospel upon it, he applied one day to a well known colored theologian of that place, for his interpretation of its meaning. The colored minister feeling highly complimented, answered in an apparent earnestness, "Well, sah, I'm glad you ask me dat question, for I've bin givin it a good 'cal of study an' tention myself. It were for a long time dat I were like you, an' couldn't see trough dis sayin' ob d. Scriptor, an' I prayed dat I mite see trough it, fur my mind were boddered mightily ober it, an' one time I had do sore eye, an' it were my rite eye too, an' I tought it were jist here where dis Scriptor cumed in, an' dat if I were a good christian, I must pluck out my rite eye. But I went prayin, an' —

"And what? Never mind that long rignmole, but jist tell me what you think this passage in question means," interrupted the exercised gentleman.

"Den I'll tell you. It means dis. Ef a mans a God sarbin man, an' tends church as he ought to, you see dat many times he's got fur to go widout his wife, bekase fur de reason dat she wont go wid him. Now I's studied de Scriptor, an' fum de understandin dat I take ob it, it means your wife an' you ore as one. Well, she mout den be cilled your rite eye, an' ef she fends you by not sarbin de Lord wid you, an' by holdin your back, dis Scriptor means dat you must eider east her off, or pluck out her rite eye. It doesn't mean your own eye. Now, sah, dats zactly what it means. Doesn't you diskiver de piat?"

It is proper to state that the exercised gentleman did not "diskiver" the piat, and that his mind is as unsettled as before as to the true signification of this metaphorical passage.
