

No woman ever dresses low, says an exchange, from a high motive. No lady goes to the opera, (continues the cosmopolitan), to balls or dinner parties with her bosom bare for the purpose of pleasing her husband or her affianced lover! Neither does she denude her breast for the gratification of her own sex. What then can be the motive for this scandalous undressing in public? Let us treat this delicate subject philosophically, yet fearlessly. We readily confess that there is nothing so exquisitely beautiful as the face, the bust of a beautiful woman. And for this very reason it should not be exposed to the wanton gaze of vulgar eyes. No woman who truly loves her husband ever desires to exhibit her charms "sacred, sweet and precious" to any eye but his. And yet what do we see, or rather what do we not see, in the shape of naked arms, shoulders, backs and bosoms, at every evening gathering among the "high society." One is continually reminded of the sarcasm of Dr. Franklin, nearly one hundred years ago, who, when present at one of these gatherings of undressed English women, when asked if he had ever seen anything like it before, blushing replied, "None since I was beheaded." But we need not now dwell on the fact of the existence of this fashionable scandal. Let us strike at the root of the immoral custom of "low dressing." The motive, as we have said, was not a good one; therefore, it must be a bad one. We have heard men who consider themselves conservatives at these exhibitions of female nudity, declare that they like to see it, but would not like to see their own wives half-naked in public. No man who properly prizes his wife ever did, or ever will, like to see his better half exposing her nakedness in public. It is clean and conclusive, then, that this low neck fashion never was designed to be followed for the decoration of husbands. And even women will always "pick to pieces" the most audacious and dressed like of the ball. Why, then, do women persist in this immoral, indecent and unhealthy style of dress? One is almost afraid to press the question to an honest, logical solution. The true answer is derogatory to woman. She bares her bust to excite something more than envy in woman and admiration in men. And this she knows full well when she looks in her undecorated form in the mirror in the character of a scotte vivante. On the score of health, the fashion cannot be too severely denounced. How many fatal cases of consumption have been caused by sudden exposure to the chill and night air, or standing out of steaming ball rooms and opera houses with the most vital part of the body entirely unprotected. On the tombstone of many a beautiful woman might be truly inscribed, death from low necked dresses.

Hands and What They Mean.

Hands are infinitely varied. Their shape, tint, the nails, length, width, roundness, are as different as individuals. There are hands that seem intellectual in their symmetry, beautiful flexibility and grace of motion. Some are soft and voluptuous, and others precise, striking, and brilliant. The form of the hand often expresses the capabilities of the person to whom it belongs. The strong palm, conical fingers and small thumb indicate in woman indolence, fancy and feeling. The square hands belong to the intellectual and ambitious, and those who love influence and rule. The small, soft, almost fleshless hands, but rosy and with knotted fingers, are brilliant and witty. Fingers delicately squared at the ends, love domestic life. The small thumb and fingers, broadening at the ends, desire activity and a practical knowledge of the world. There are smooth and knotted fingers; to the first belongs grace, to the second, reason. Conical hands with pointed fingers obey inspiration and worship the beautiful in painting, poetry, romance, and nature. There are soft hands more capable of tenderness than of love, and delicate fingers that are formed for sensitiveness and sympathy of touch and made to minister to pain and grief; hard hands that know not tenderness, but are not ignorant of love; rough hands that are the tools of business and guides, and of...

The other day the teacher spelled out the word "grace," and asked the young man to pronounce it. He gave it up when the teacher, to refresh his memory asked him:

"What did your father say this morning before eating breakfast?"

The boy thought a minute, and finally said:

"Pa said, 'D—n these eggs, they are rotten.'"

To prevent calling for fading while washing, infuse three drams of salt in four quarts of water, put the calico in white hot, and leave it till cool. In this way the colors are rendered permanent, and will not fade by subsequent washing.

Fever and Ague,
from which mankind suffer over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poisonous miasm of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on water, and, sees with the watery vapor from it. While the sun is below the horizon this vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken up through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as a miasmatic poison on the internal viscera and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile miasmatic in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomach sympathize with the liver, and become diseased also. Finally, the instinct of our organism, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious miasmatic, concentrates the whole blood of the body in the internal excretories to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the vessels, and rushes to the central organs with congestive violence. This is the chill. But in this effort it fails. Then the fever follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the miasmatic poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the fits or paroxysms of FEVER AND AGUE. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health if it is not removed.

We have labored to find, and have found, an antidote.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
which neutralizes this miasmatic poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system as it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the disease. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from, the great variety of affections which are induced by this miasmatic influence, such as Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Malarial Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Eczema, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations, Painful Affections of the Spleen, Hysterics, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "Ague Cure" removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

It accomplishes by stimulating the excretories to expel the virus from the system; and these organs by degrees become habituated to do this their office of their own accord. Hence arises what we term a modification. Time may accomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, while this "Ague Cure" does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe this is a safer as well as a surer remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the miasmatic infection, than any other which has been discovered; and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheap as well as good.
