

Another Pipe of Tobacco.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY AUGUSTUS B. KNOWLTON.

PUFF I.

WHAT PLEASURE IS THERE IN SMOKING? This is a question which I am asked almost daily—it is a question which I frequently put to myself.

I have never been able to reply satisfactorily to this inquiry.

I might perhaps satisfy the reader by a gush of poetry—by talking of "spirals of blue," of "fragrant clouds," of "dolce far niente of dreamy reverie; but that would suffice only for the superficial, and it is to the serious alone that this essay is addressed.

I have tried many a time, while smoking, to analyze my sensations, but have never been certain that I experienced any sensation—save that of smoking.

All honest smokers will tell you the same thing.

Is it the sense of smell alone which is charmed by the cigar? Then the smoke of others would give you as much pleasure as your own.

Is it the sense of taste? Then the cigar must give way to fine-cut.

Is it sight? This seems more probable. Smoke with your eyes shut, and you will find that the pleasure you experienced has vanished as if by magic.

But, again, it certainly is not pleasant to watch the smoke of a cigar which is between the lips of somebody else.

So, from all this we must conclude that the senses of smell, sight, taste, touch (there is a pleasure even in holding a cigar between one's fingers), all the senses save that of hearing, are interested in the act which consists in inhaling the smoke of a certain quantity of tobacco made up in the shape of a cigar: and this it is, doubtless, which renders the pleasure so complete.

PUFF II.

Before proceeding further, I feel that I ought to disambiguate myself of certain useless details.

Before God and man I declare that I do not recognize as belonging to the true brotherhood of smokers any of those who smoke

The nargille, The outook, The hookah.

Who smoke the Turkish or Persian tobacco or any of the other drugs of the Orient.

All this is no better than smoking pastilles or cinnamon cigars.

I do not believe in Eastern music—nor in Eastern smoking in Paris—and I have an especial horror of those pachas of the rue des Martyrs or the rue Neuve-Coguesard who have their pipes cleaned by a servant girl.

Own a dozen slaves, and I permit the nargille.

PUFF III.

THE SMOKERS OF OPIUM.

I know a clever young fellow who bought a Chinese pipe last summer, on one of the quays at the Havre, for a franc and a half.

A description of the Chinese pipe is unnecessary. Those who wish to have an idea of it are referred to the Louvre. They will find a cabinet sacred to pipes in the Chinese department.

For directions as to use, read the numerous articles in the British Review, on Opium Smokers and the various ways of preparing that narcotic.

Our young friend (whom we will call Cabassal) has prepared a certain mixture which he burns in his pipe, and the smoke of which he swallows.

After five or six minutes Cabassal pretends that he is in an ecstasy—that he is soaring in the bluest ether—that he has wings—that he hears ravishing harmonies by celestial voices—that he is caressed by beautiful women—that he is swimming in an ocean of delight—and a thousand similar absurdities.

Two or three months after, Cabassal, reduced to the consideration of realities by a violent attack of gastritis, bids adieu to ecstasies and adopts a regime of Vicby water.

Now that the Chinese pipe is so cheap, the poorer class of Bohemians frequently intoxicate themselves with Strasbourg beer and strong tobacco under the pretext that they are smoking opium.

PUFF IV.

THE GERMAN SCHOOL.

More child's play.

Smokers of the German School were very numerous in Paris about the time when Hoffman's Tales made such a stir. Boeve-Weynars was the patriarch; their number, although reduced of late years, is still considerable.

The Germans smoke to drink—and drink to smoke.

the vivacity of the nation—and, besides, it dries the lips and burns the wind-pipe.

Some of Durham's tobacco factories are suspending operations on account of the stringency in money matters.

A justice of the peace at Kansas City puts it: "Now let the gaul darned jade wince."

The burly Hurley upon the burly-burly.

Tim Hurley's recent capital speech upon the State's want of capital.

The Georgetown Times is anxious for about fifty new subscribers to step up and say: "Here, mister! here ish your monish!" A well defined antipathy, supported to a certain extent by certain well known peculiarities of their religious doctrine, will probably prevent the Times from taking very deep root among the children of Abraham.

The Supreme Court of the United States has finally (?) decided that Bank of the State bills, of issue prior to 1868, are receivable for taxes. This adds, in effect, probably a million or more dollars to the State debt, and the result is a large accession of fog to the already dim and dreary financial atmosphere—and a dumping of many mountains of mud into the present monetary mudhole.

We see through a glass darkly. We don't see at all.

Oh! for a grindstone piercing vision. Oh! for some relief from the "body of this death."

THE STATE DEBT. We're floored. We give it up. It has resolved itself into a question of metaphysics and we resign absolutely.

"Jamie, mon, what is metaphysics?"

"A weel—When the audience dinna onnerstan' what they're a hearin' from the speaker—"

"Weel?"

"And when the speaker dinna onnerstan' what he is sayin' to the audience—"

"Weel?"

"A weel, that is metaphysics."

Yesterdays' News & Courier says: The committee of privileges and elections of the Senate who have been engaged for several days in taking testimony and hearing argument in have reported in favor of Judge Thaddeus C. Andrews unanimously. Benjamin Dyas, the contestant who has been moping about the Statehouse for several days, looks very disconsolate.

THE CONTESTED CASE FROM ORANGEBURG

Senator Andrews introduced the following resolution in the Senate last Tuesday:

Whereas, the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, in the matter of the bills of the Bank of the State, is calculated to work a disastrous financial ruin unless the same can be delayed in its operation or averted, therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and the House of Representatives concurring, That, in accordance with said decision, the said bills of the Bank of the State be, and they are hereby, declared a legal tender for any taxes that may be due the State, and the State and county treasurers are hereby required to receive the same therefor, but none other than the genuine bills; and that, in order to ascertain which are genuine, no bill or representation of the issue of the Bank of the State shall be received into the treasury of this State, or by any county treasurer, in payment of taxes, until the same shall have passed through the office of the comptroller-general of the State and there stamped as genuine; and for the purpose of carrying out this resolution, an expert shall be employed, with a salary, to be fixed by law, whose duty it shall be to examine said bills and decide upon the genuineness of the same.
