

Nearer Home.
Below we give the sweet hymn,
"Nearer home," by Phoebe Carey. This accomplished writer has gone to that Home, of which she sang so plaintively:
One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er,
I'm nearer my home to day
Than I ever have been before!

Nearer my Father's house,
Where the many mansions be;
Nearer the great white throne,
Nearer the crystal sea;

Nearer the bound of life,
Where we lay our burden down;
Nearer leaving the cross;
Nearer gaining the crown.

But the waves of that silent sea
Roll dark before my sight,
That brightly the other side
Creak on the shore of light.

O, if my mortal feet
Have almost gained the brink;
If it be I am nearer home,
Even to-day than I think.

Father, perfect my trust,
Let my spirit feel in death
That her feet, are firmly set
On the rock of a living faith.

Don't do it.
There are a great many things that one does not want to do. And there is an editor out in Logansport, who is in the habit of mentioning some of them occasionally. The last bulletin is here unto appended in the belief that all our readers who give heed thereunto will thereby become wiser:
Don't eat sour grapes. They injure the teeth.
Don't split wood under a clothes line,
You might cut the rope.
Don't crack jokes with the sexton.
He prefers a grave conversation.
Don't trust a politician. He will go into bankruptcy after the election is over.
Don't borrow trouble. Be patient and let it come to you in course of events.
Don't lie about your competitor in business. Better lie around your own establishment.
Don't fool with nitro glycerine, or tri fle with an angry woman. Either one will blow you up.
Don't grieve over lost opportunities.
It is not proper for a man so attend his own funeral.
Don't growl simply because your bag gets smashed. Thank your stars that it was not your head.
Don't clothe your little vices with the garb of innocence. The garment will prove too thin to shield the chilling blast of scorn.

"I and My Husband Can do without."
If this truly pathetic incident were in a drama it would be told to tiers of weeping women and admiring men; but in real life it will pass without special wonder as a mere daily occurrence among the unromantic poor of the "Streets of New York."
In New York city, on Tuesday evening, a laboring man, accompanied by his wife and six children, entered the Mulberry street station, and asked Capt.
Clinchy to give them shelter for the night. Captain Clinchy told Doorman Burrell to put them into one of the warm cells on the first floor. Soon the woman asked to go out and get food for the children. Seeing how weak she was Captain Clinchy told her to give him the money and he would send Burrell out. The woman handed Captain Clinchy four cents. "What!" exclaimed Clinchy, "what sort of supper do you intend to get for this?" "Broad, sir!"
"Well, you won't get enough for you all for four cents." "That's so, captain, but I and my husband can do without it."
Handing her the four cents, Capt.
Clinchy, accompanied by Burrell, went to a neighboring baker's, and returned with three loaves, some ham and fish, and a subscription was raised among the men, all of them gave their mite to assist the poor family.
Here is an inspiration, says the Richmond Engineer, whose simple pathos should move the world like a new sermon from the Mount. "I and my husband can do without!" What devotion what love! That poor mother is a jewel of which New York should be prouder than of all her merchant princes and railway kings.

A reporter on an Iowa paper wrote;
"Yesterday morning, Winter and Spring kissed each other on the sunrise, and spread its choicest favor on the purple air." He was married next day.

An editor who speaks with the air of a man has discovered a new fact by experience, says that the new way to prevent bleeding at the nose is to keep your nose out of other people's business.
