INDIAN TROUBLES IN THE NORTHWEST. The exercises were opened by Rev. R. G. Patrick, chaplain of the Rifle company, who gave out the familiar hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," which was sung by the entire congregation.
 After prayer by Rev. Mr. Patrick, the fu-neral sermon was preached by Rev. J. C. Galloway from Jeremiah xlviii, 17: "All ye that are about him bemoan him; and all ye that are about him bemoan him; and all ye that know his name, say, How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod." one who has read thenewspapers of the past week will guestion this. As to his religious character, I will not attempt to speak to day, for the simple reason that I know noth-ing as to his sentiments on this question. I do not know of what church he was a member, or even if he was a member at all. But in passing lightly over this phase of the question I must not be understood as is-noring this matter. I believe as God's word, that our religious belief a everything, both for time and eternity. I simply pass it because I do not know. But there is one mature in the case of which I must speak—his early life as an example to our young men. The death of our hero has, under the circumstances, caused much discussion there has not been one syllable other than that of pulse.

of all the discussion there has not been one syllable other than that of paise. Years ago I heard his instructor, Rev. Dr. Lathan, bear witness, not merely to the unusual brilliancy of his intellect, but to his great moral worth and integri-ty. I suppose his conduct was such that it never brought to his father and mother a single hour of dis-quietade. It was a life founded on such principle and such conduct, that alone made his after life possi-ble.

Young men, I would commend his noble example to you in this respect. And I would that my voice could reach every young man in our land.
Of course, a life life this is right from a moral standpoint, and this is the highest praise that can be given it. As father and brothers and sisters stand around his bler, there is nothing which brings them the satisfaction which arises from this thought.
But, young men, I would urge you to emulate his or interest of the sale word area or you to emulate his is the highest palse that can be given in the scatts faction which arises from this thought.
But, young men, I would urge you to emulate his or interest form a standpoint of business success. If George D, Walace had spent his carly years formae, licentious, ide, immoral and disobedient, his name would never been heard of beyond the limits of our town.
He had companions, as every young man has, who were of a different samp. Has the world ever heard anything of them t. Will it ever hear? Young man has, who were of a different samp. The scheme was attended with consid-erable danger, and the police were followed by a detachment of soldiers who were to re-main close enough in the rear to render such assistance as might be necessary. The police approached the old chief's house about day-light on the morning of the 14th, and found him in bed. Correspondence of The Yorkville Enquirer. FODDER, January 6.—Christmas, with all its joyous anticipations, has come and gone. To thousands of homes it brought joys and pleas-ures, while to many it was only a sad reminders of disappointments, of blasted hopes, of bereave-ments, of deep sorrow. Christmas, however, is, to a great extent, what we make it. After the funeral yesterday, Col. R. M. Wallace was seen by a representative of THE ENQUIRER, and asked for such information to the same company. as he could give about the whole sad history of his brother's death. During the conversation that followed, Col. Wallace told the story as follows:
