PATRIOTIC TO THE LAST.

A couple of Englishmen, en route for Rome, were joined by an American, whose blatant patriotism first amused, then bored them. No matter what was admirable, rich or rare, there was always something in America to eclipse it, according to our countryman. The Britishers determined to teach the Yankee a lesson, and taking advantage of the chronic thirst of their companion, they plied him with all the liquor that he could be induced to absorb, and then proposed a visit to the Catacombs. Before they reached their destination they were obliged to guide his errant steps between them, and at length, overcom by drowsiness, the American begged to be left alone to lie down at ease. When sounds as of a discharge of musketry issued at regular intervals from the nose of the prostrate patriotic, his companions concluded that he was dreaming of the Fourth of July, and would, therefore, be oblivious of anything nearer at hand. Producing a sheet, purloined from their hotel and until now carefully concealed, they wrapped the sleeper like a mummy in its folds, and then left him to "do" the Catacombs on their own account.

Returning an hour later, they found him still sleeping. One of them then drew from under his coat a tin fishhorn, and blew upon it a blast that only elicted a grunt and produced a fluttering of the eyelids of the sleeper. A second blast, however, longer and that city. louder, brought him to a sitting posture, with eyes wide open and senses all alert. A moment of bewilderment, and then he exclaimed, joyously: "Gabriel's trump! Resurrection day! First man up! Hurray! America still ahead!"—Harper's Magazine.

GUARDING AGAINST A MISTAKE .-"Hardly a day passes," said "Cupid" Danforth, the marriage license clerk, to a San Francisco Post reporter, "that some half-distracted parent does not rush into my offce and ask me not to issue a license to some such and such a person, because he or she is a little fool, who don't know what she is doing, and is under age. But yesterday I had something novel. A young girl-well, say about 16 or 17 years old-came into my office and said: "'If ma comes here for a license don't you give it to her.' " 'What's ma's name?' I asked.

" 'Mary Ann Baker.'

" 'Why don't you want her to marry? Is your father still living?' if she marries, if she don't marry John.' " 'John who?'

" 'Why, John Woolf.'

" 'Then if she asks for a license for Mary Ann Baker to wed John Woolf, I'm not to issue it, eh?'

" 'Well not unless she gives Mary Ann's age as 17 and says, "This is for my daughter."

"'Oh, I see. You want John your-

"'Yes, and John wants me; but ma is determined to have him, and I don't know but what she might marry him under false pretenses, 'cause my name is Mary Ann, too. Now, remember,' she added, as she passed out, 'if it's Mary Ann Baker, 17, it's all right, but if it's Mary Ann Baker, 37, it's all wrong.' "

SHE CHANGED HER MIND .- Mrs. Pious-I do wish, Mr. McSnorter, that you would come up and see my husband. He is very ill, and I am afraid will die without experiencing religion. Don't you think you can convince him of the necessity of atoning for his past neglect?

Mrs. Pious-Ou second thought, Mr. McSnorter, I don't believe your presence will be necessary.

SHE MARRIED HIM .- Said an aged matron to me once : "When my cousin William came home from his three years' cruise, his old blue cloth suit with brass buttons looked very old fashioned, and I said, 'Cousin William, you should buy yourself some new clothes; you can afford it.' But he answered, 'I do not worry about my clothes, Cousin Mary; I have brought home four shot-bags full of gold pieces, and the girls will marry me anyway now.'" And to my "Did any one mar-ry him?" she replied, while a faint tinge mantled her aged cheeks, "Yes, I married him."
