

Scraps and Facts.

— That the proposed Corbett-Fitzsimmons prize fight will not take place in Texas, now appears to be reasonably certain. The general assembly met on Tuesday; but there was no quorum until Wednesday. Bills were introduced in both house and senate. The senate bill was passed in about five minutes. The house was not quite so expeditious. Several members wanted to be heard and made speeches. They also made several amendments, which made the measure still more stringent. After about three hours, the bill was passed by a vote of 107 to 5. The senate is likely to accept the amendments, and there will be no friction. When the bill becomes a law, prize fighting will be a felony, punishable with imprisonment in the State penitentiary for not less than two nor more than five years. The managers of the proposed fight are now considering the practicability of having it pulled off in Mexico.

— There will be no more massacres of missionaries in China. At least, it is not likely that there will. After satisfying itself that the recent massacres were made with the full cognizance and approval of the viceroys in charge of the Sze Chuen province, the British government sent out a fleet of 12 war ships to make demand for proper reparation. After the war ships got into the Yang-tse-Kiang river, a note was sent to the Chinese emperor informing him that Viceroy Liu, who instigated the massacres, must be degraded from office, and not allowed to occupy any high position of authority under the government again. The emperor complied with the order forthwith, and Liu, a viceroy from another part of the empire, who has the reputation of being friendly toward foreigners, was put in his place. Liu is said to be a bloodthirsty brute and has been in the habit of persecuting the missionaries for the purpose of currying favor with the masses under his government. He allowed some French Catholics to be murdered about a year ago, and as the result had to pay out of his own pocket something like $1,000,000. In the event that there is any more interference with her missionaries, Great Britain promises to shake things up in the province in a way that will astonish the natives, and is as well known, she is not disposed to put up with any foolishness in such matters.

— Belle Boyd, the female Confederate spy, has come out of her troubles at Griffin, Ga., with flying colors. The main circumstances of her arrest on the charge of "jumping her board bill" were published in Wednesday's paper. It seems that when Landlord Chambers had her brought back from Barnesville, she gave him a piece of her mind in a way to leave no doubt as to exactly what she meant. When she brought charges against him for false imprisonment, he sought to retaliate by prosecuting her before the mayor on the charge of disorderly conduct. She answered the charge last Saturday. There was a large crowd, including a number of Confederate veterans, at the trial. Mrs. High told her story in a straightforward manner, and it at once became evident that she had a good case. The attorney for the prosecution made his speech, and the attorney for the defense started to reply. Before he got half through, the mayor told him to stop, that he had heard enough; he had made up his mind, and the defendant was not guilty. The big crowd broke into an enthusiastic cheer, and the old veterans showered congratulations on the ex-spy. From Griffin, Mrs. High went back to Barnesville, where she lectured Monday night. On Wednesday night she lectured at West Point, and last night she was billed for another lecture at Griffin. The old soldiers provided the opera house free, and the understanding was they were going to literally fill it to overflowing.

— Prof. Louis Pasteur, the most eminent bacteriologist of the world, and the greatest Frenchman of his day, died in Paris last Monday, of paralysis. Pasteur was born in the department of Jura, on December 27, 1822. He was poor; but that fact never hampered him in the least. He studied chemistry especially, with the closest application, and in this branch of knowledge rapidly developed as a most wonderful genius. It had long been the theory of scientists that the decay of organic substances was due to chemical action. Pasteur proved differently. He discovered that there constantly exists in the air certain forms of life that are always seeking fields sympathetic to their growth. These fields are, of course, organic bodies, under certain conditions. The forms of life referred to, now known as microbes, take possession of a favorable field, and in sustaining themselves destroy the organism with which they come in contact. Applying his discovery, he found his famous cure for hydrophobia in men and animals. Some years ago the silk growers of France were almost ruined on account of fearful disease among the silk worms. They appealed to the government and the government sent Pasteur to look into the matter. He found that the worms laid their eggs all right; but the eggs afterward became diseased and perished. He applied a preventive and thus saved to the silk growers hundreds of millions of dollars.

Up to a few years ago, brewing was largely a matter of chance. Sometimes the beer would ferment all right and sometimes it would not. Pasteur discovered the reasons, and now the making of beer is a scientific certainty. He discovered the cause and cure of anthrax in cattle and also of cholera in chickens. Another great discovery that belongs most distinctively to him is the antiseptic treatment of wounds. Altogether he was probably the greatest scientist that ever lived. He has had it in his power to be worth millions of dollars; but he never wanted money except as a means of furthering his scientific researches. He died in a room over a stable in which were a number of horses undergoing some experiment in connection with his recent discovery for the cure of diphtheria. His funeral was a public function under the auspices of the French government.

The Yorkville Enquirer.

YORKVILLE, S. C.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1895.

— Dispatches to the Richmond Dispatch from all parts of the tobacco growing sections of Virginia and North Carolina, says that the heavy frosts of last Monday and Tuesday have damaged the crop to the extent of fully one-third. The crop in South Carolina has about all been harvested and cured, and the principal effect of the frost will be to bring about a better price for such tobacco down this way as has not already been sold.

— If the present price of cotton holds up, and the crop is only 7,000,000 bales, as most of the more experienced statisticians predict, the South will receive this year over $50,000,000 more than was received for the tremendous crop of last year. This crop was raised cheaper than any other in the history of the country, and there never was a time when the men who raised it also came nearer raising everything they needed in the way of provisions. Verily, we believe the South is in a better condition today than at any time since the war.

— The News and Courier is publishing the portraits of the members of the constitutional convention. Some of the portraits are good and others are simply horrid. In last Sunday's edition of the paper appeared, among the rest, what purported to be portraits of Messrs. J. S. Brice and A. H. White. We were only able to make them out from the inscriptions underneath, and we are satisfied that were it not for the fact that Mr. Brice and Major White are both such good natured fellows, they would surely bring suit against The News and Courier for damages.

— Mrs. Culberson, wife of the governor of Texas, has been criticizing her husband for calling a special session of the legislature for the purpose of enacting a law for the prevention of prize fighting. She says that almost everybody in Texas is anxious to see the Corbett-Fitzsimmons match, and those who don't expect to see it, are interested to know which will whip. Mrs. Culberson is pretty nearly right in her estimate of human nature, not only in Texas, but elsewhere. She is wrong, however, in her criticism of her husband. There is no doubt of the fact that prize fighting is brutalizing in its tendencies, and therefore contrary to the spirit of the laws of any civilized commonwealth. It would be pardonable in the governor if, as an individual, he should be desirous of seeing the fight himself; but as a conscientious official, representing law and order, he should put a stop to it if he can.

NO DIVORCE.

Though, of course, we cannot lay claim to having influenced the convention in the matter, THE ENQUIRER was the first paper in the State to suggest that divorce laws be prohibited by the constitution, and we are much gratified that the suggestion has been carried out. There is no doubt of the fact that there are many cases in which divorce would be just and proper, and the fact that we have no divorce law will mean misery for not a few husbands and wives who may have been unhappily mated. Were it possible to limit divorces to cases where they are just and proper, there could be no objection to judicious laws on the subject. There is no law, however, that is more susceptible of abuse, and, under the circumstances, we think it better that society confine itself to a strict observance of that injunction in the holy marriage ceremony which says, "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

Nothing is more hurtful to society than an ill-considered marriage, and nobody suffers more from such a marriage than the parties to it. The more of such marriages, the more society is hurt. It might be argued that for this reason there should be some provision for their annulment. Were it not so clear that such a provision would have a tendency to increase, rather than diminish, such marriages, the argument would be a good one. No; let us have no divorce law. Then our ill-considered marriages will stand as a permanent warning to those who have not yet entered the married state, and ill-considered marriages will be kept at a minimum, not through the operation of a most dangerous law; but through enforced prudence on the part of those who might otherwise be disposed to act too hastily in such an important matter.

Again, we say that in prohibiting divorce, the convention has done a wise thing. No other provision that it can incorporate in the constitution will be capable of contributing more to the prosperity, virtue, and glory of the State.

— The people of Atlanta are especially exercised over some damaging stories that have just been told by a correspondent of the New York Herald. Among other things, the correspondent stated that the Atlantians were literally robbing the visitors to the exposition. One of the big hotels he said, was charging $20 a day for three persons. The barbers were charging 75 cents a shave, and the railway facilities for handling the crowds was not only inadequate; but positively dangerous to life and limb. The Atlanta board of trade has passed resolutions denouncing all of the correspondent's statements as untrue, and there is every reason to believe that such is actually the case. Why the correspondent should make such unwarranted statements, we are at loss to say. His conduct can only be accounted for in one of two ways. It may be that he is a big headed young fellow who thinks that as a correspondent of The Herald he is entitled to distinguished consideration, and having failed to get it, wants to even up with a little spiteful lying; or it may be that his paper fearing that Atlanta's splendid pluck and energy might be rewarded with quite a considerable amount of Yankee dollars, has instructed the correspondent to flyblow the exposition enough to keep a large number of Northern people away. We hope that neither supposition is true; but, at any rate, we are satisfied that the correspondent has exaggerated the facts beyond all reason.

BETHEL PRESBYTERY.

Full Outline of the Proceedings of the Meeting at Tirzah.

Reported for the Yorkville Enquirer. The presbytery of Bethel met at Tirzah church, in Lancaster county, on Friday, September 27, at 8 p. m. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. D. S. McAllister, the moderator, from John iii, 36. There were 22 ministers and 25 ruling elders present.

Rev. John G. Hall, for many years a missionary to Mexico, was elected moderator, and Rev. J. R. Millard was elected clerk. Rev. J. E. L. Winecoff, of Albemarle presbytery, presented a letter of dismission and was examined and received. Calls from Calvary and Woodlawn churches for his pastoral services were read and accepted by him, and he will be installed pastor over these congregations this month.

Mr. D. M. Douglas, a member of Concord church, was received as a candidate of the ministry, and Mr. J. Henry Therrall was introduced to presbytery by the session of his church, Heath Springs. He will be received (D. V.) at the next meeting of presbytery.

Licentiate A. M. McNaull was dismissed to Pee Dee presbytery, Rev. G. T. Bourne to Western District presbytery. A communication was read from several members near Bowling Green, asking for the organization of a church there. Their petition was granted to the extent that presbytery appointed a commission, consisting of Rev. W. G. Neville, Rev. S. H. Hay, Rev. J. K. Hall, Rev. J. M. McLain, G. H. O'Leary and J. J. Smith, to visit this community on Thursday before the 2nd Sabbath in October, and if the way be clear organize the church.

A memorial of the late Rev. L. W. Curtis was read before presbytery. The report of the committee on what is proper to appear in sessional records was adopted.

Rev. S. L. Wilson, of South Carolina presbytery addressed the presbytery in the interest of colored evangelization and the purchase of valuable property in Abbeville for school purposes. Presbytery listened with deep interest to addresses from Rev. H. B. Pratt and Rev. Jno. G. Hall, of Mexico, and to letters from Rev. W. B. McIlwaine, of Kuchi, Japan, and Miss Ella Davidson, of Hong Chow, China.

A call from Salem church for the services of Rev. J. R. Millard was placed in his hands and permission granted him to retain it till the adjourned meeting of synod.

Mr. J. B. McFadden, of Chester was re-elected treasurer for two years. Rev. M. R. Kirkpatrick, Rev. W. G. Neville, Rev. Alexander Sprunt, Rev. Dr. McLaughlin, and Messrs. A. H. White, G. H. O'Leary and W. B. Love were elected executive committee for the next year.

Chester was chosen as the place, and Tuesday before the fourth Sabbath in April as the time, for the spring meeting of presbytery. The question of the expediency of electing a general secretary of Sabbath schools was referred to the permanent committee on Sabbath schools to report next spring.

Rev. J. L. McLin asked for a dissolution of the pastoral relation between himself and Catholic and Pleasant Grove churches. The churches concurring, presbytery dissolved the relation. The action goes into effect at once for Catholic, and at the end of October for Pleasant Grove.

Presbytery adjourned to meet at 5 p. m. on the 23rd of October in the First Presbyterian church at Rock Hill. STATED CLERK.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Miller, Cashier—Statement of condition of the First National Bank of Rock Hill, on September 28, 1895. H. C. Strauss—Don't want you to forget his great shoe sale on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

BEWARE OF THE SWINDLER.

Though the fact is not generally known the produce commission business has, of late years, developed into a popular avenue for swindling country merchants and others, and we have just been requested to expose a case in point.

Not long ago Mr. W. L. Hill, of Sharon, was induced, by big promises, to make a shipment of eggs to the "Market Produce Company," E. E. Myers, president, of Charleston. Failing to get an answer, after having waited a reasonable length of time, Mr. Hill began to investigate the matter, and as the result discovered that there was no such man as E. E. Myers; but that the place at which it was alleged that the "Market Produce company" was doing business—38 Market street—was occupied by a rather shady character who had for years been known as a professional swindler.

Something ought to be done to make it more difficult for sharks of this kind to swindle unsuspecting country people and it has been suggested to us that it might be well for the Young Men's Business League of Charleston to take up the case.

THE EXPOSITION.

Mr. J. A. Tate, of Yorkville, returned from a visit to the Atlanta exposition on Monday. He says that all the exhibits are not yet in place, and won't be until at least the 15th of October; but still it is a big show, and in many respects more satisfactory than the exposition at Chicago.

At Paris, the most universal attraction was the Eiffel tower; at Chicago it was the Ferris Wheel, and at Atlanta, Mr. Tate says, it is "shooting the chute." The chute is an inclined plane, one end extending high into the air, and the other down into a lake. Passengers take their seats in a boat at the top of the plane. When the boat is turned loose, it darts downward like greased lightning until it strikes the water, when it bounces high in the air and then gently floats off. The chute has been shot and the passengers feel as if they have been fired out of a gun.

"Shoot the chute" has become a great byword in all parts of the exposition grounds, says Mr. Tate. This is especially the case on the "Midway." Among the attractions there is a ride on an elephant's back for 10 cents. After getting on board as many people as the big beast can provide room for, the Asiatic keeper gives the command in the slang of the hour "shoot the chute."

"Although I was at Chicago," said Mr. Tate, "I believe I was just as well pleased with Atlanta. I can't describe either one of the expositions, and nobody else can so another man can get any satisfaction; but this is not so big that a man who has had some experience in doing expositions, can't come pretty near taking it all in in the course of a week or 10 days.

STAR ROUTE CONTRACTS.

The postoffice department is advertising for proposals for carrying the mails over the star routes in this State. All proposals must be in by December 3, 1895, and the contracts, which will commence on the 1st day of next July, will last until June 30, 1900. The various routes to be let out in York county are as follows:

From Sharon to Valdora, 5½ miles, three times a week. The present price for the service is $34.84 a year. From Yorkville to Yorkville, via Zadok, Bethany, Hero, Stroup's, Clark's Fork and Carp, 4¼ miles, three times a week. Present contract calls for $180 a year.

From Yorkville to Gould, by way of Lominack, Blairsville, Hoodtown and Bullock's Creek, 19½ miles and back, six times a week. Present contract rate, $389.

From Yorkville to Point, via Bethel, Zeno, Balloon and Southpoint, 19½ miles, and back, three times a week. Present contract rate $217.92.

From Yorkville to Enquirer, via Fodder, Clay Hill, Bandana and Energy, 18 miles and back, three times a week. Present contract rate $195.27. From Hickory Grove to Etta Jane, via Hopewell, 8½ miles and back, twice a week. Present contract rate, $93.

From Clay Hill to Rock Hill, via Belmont, 15 miles and back, twice a week. Present contract rate, $97.94. Every bid must be accompanied by a bond with two or more sureties, approved by a postmaster. In the case of the above named contracts, the bonds required range from $200 to $1,200, according to the mileage to be traveled and the frequency of the trips.

LOCAL LAONICS.

THE TWICE-A-WEEK ENQUIRER will be furnished from this date until January 1, 1896, for 50 cents.

No Truth in It. We have seen no confirmation of the report that Policeman Morgan of Chester had been killed.

Declined the Call. Rev. W. A. M. Plaxco announced to the A. R. P. presbytery at Clover last Monday that he had declined to decline the call that was extended to him by the Sharon congregation some time ago.

Giving Them Away. Mr. George T. Schorb is giving to each of his friends a Lester piano. The gift, however, is not exactly the genuine article. It is just a unique paper miniature of the original.

Died Last Friday.

Last Florence, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Black of Bullock's Creek township who was accidentally scalded recently, died on last Friday, after two weeks of suffering. In their terrible bereavement, Mr. and Mrs. Black have the deepest sympathy of the community in which they live.

Lindsay; Not Wylie.

In our report of the proceedings of the A. R. P. presbytery Wednesday it was stated that Mr. Joseph Wylie was appointed a member of the committee to take charge of the proposition of the deacon's convention to pay the annual expenses of a student at the seminary. The statement was not correct. It should have read Mr. Joseph Lindsay. Accident to a Horse.

Mr. C. H. Smith had a valuable horse injured by a mowing machine last Friday afternoon. He had two mules hitched to the machine and was leading the horse. Some colored children ran out in the road and frightened the mules. They started to run. The horse also became frightened and unmanageable. It got in the way of the machine. One of the tendons in one of its hind legs was severed and it was otherwise injured.

On the Ground Floor.

Mr. H. C. Strauss is in an especially good humor over the result of his recent trip to the Northern markets. He says: "I had for a long time been of opinion that I knew how to get with a dollar in New York every cent it was good for. I know that I have always been buying as cheap as most people in this section of the country and a little cheaper than many of them; but this season I have simply run up on better bargains than I have ever before seen." Mr. Strauss is preparing to make things hum.

From the Effects of Fever.

Mr. Seth Thomas Jackson, youngest son of the late Archibald M. Jackson, died last Saturday afternoon from the effects of typhoid fever. After an illness of several weeks, he was able to be up and decided to visit his brother, Mr. John C. Jackson, who lives about six miles northwest of Yorkville. He was suddenly taken down again and died within a few hours. For many years past he has been engaged in the clock and lightning rod business. At the time of his death, he was about 35 years of age. He leaves a widow and several children. The funeral took place on Saturday, and was conducted by Rev. S. A. Weber.

Counting October 25

Intendant Moore has made arrangements with Colonel James T. Bacon, of Edgefield, for the delivery of his lecture, "An Old Man's Kranky Kaleidoscope," in Yorkville, on the evening of Friday, October 25. The lecture is well worth listening to. The door receipts will be divided with the town clock fund.

Worth Looking Into.

We have noticed that an unusually large number of people are wrapping their cotton in a very dilapidated looking second-hand bagging. If there is more money in it this way, perhaps it is all right; but it strikes us that new bagging might weigh something more on an average, and if so, with cotton at 8½ cents a pound, it will probably be the cheapest. The matter is worth looking into.

The Matter with Yorkville.

"I was up at Blacksburg a day or two ago," remarked Major Hart yesterday, and one of the railroad officials asked me "What is the matter with Yorkville? I did not understand what he meant, and when I asked for an explanation, he said that one day last week the freight train delivered a whole train load of goods. I investigated the matter when I got back and I found that it was Strauss and Ganson getting in their fall stocks." That is what is the matter with Yorkville.

Big Ones and Little Ones

Master Howard Riddle, of Zeno, has sent THE ENQUIRER a half dozen quarter sized eggs that were the production of an eccentric old hen that has heretofore been in good and regular standing among the fowls of the barnyard. It is charged against the hen that she laid a small sized egg one day and a large one the next. How long the performance might have continued is a pure matter of speculation. Last Tuesday she departed from the regulation shape by laying an egg that looked like a diminutive squash, and the dogs shortly afterwards broke her up.

Ho for the Industrial College.

Prof. A. R. Banks has been offered a rate of 50 cents to Rock Hill and return, for people who would like to visit the Industrial College tomorrow. Those who care to make the trip, should let him know as early as possible today, in order that he may telegraph for the necessary cars. The rate will not hold good unless he can get 50 people. The regular Ohio River and Charleston passenger schedule, which will give plenty of time to examine the buildings, will obtain.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Judge I. D. Witherspoon left for Columbia last night.

Dr. Jno. May went down to Columbia last Tuesday on business.

Mr. Oliver E. Grist went up to Gastonia on business last Wednesday.

Miss Amelia Kennedy leaves today for the Due West Female college.
