Elders and Deacons.
Rev. Alexander Sprunt has sent THE ENQUIRER a copy of the programme of the elders and deacons' convention to be held in the First Presbyterian church of Rock Hill on July 27 and 28. The programme will be published in our next issue.

Death of Joseph W. Steele.
Mr. Joseph W. Steele, an old and respected citizen of Rock Hill, died at his residence in that place last Sunday evening at about 7 o'clock. He was buried at Ebenezer on Monday. He leaves a family of two daughters and three sons. One of these sons is now with Company G, First S. C. V., at Chickamauga National park.
Crops About Warren.

The following is from our Warren correspondent under date of last Monday: "Chinch-bugs are not near so numerous in the Blackjack section as they generally are at this time of the year. If we continue to have good seasons, the old corn will soon be in a state that they cannot damage it much. The younger corn is also looking nice, and the prospect for a full crop of corn is more promising than it generally is at this season of the year."

Teachers Institute.
The York County Teachers institute met in the courthouse on Monday and will continue in session during the balance of the week. Thirty-two teachers were enrolled on Monday and a number of others on Tuesday. The programme as handed to us by Superintendent Shurley at 12 o'clock Tuesday, called for a public lecture by Professor Snyder, of Spartanburg, on Tuesday evening at 8.30; a lecture by Professor Monchiff, of Anderson, on "Relations of Patrons to Schools," Wednesday evening; lecture by Rev. J. W. Flinn, of Columbia, on Thursday evening. On Friday morning at 11 o'clock, the institute will commence a special session for the benefit of school trustees and patrons of schools.
Should Not Be Forgotten.

Rock Hill Herald: The alliance of this county have arranged to have their encampment at Tirzah this year, as usual, the dates being August 4th and 5th. The committee in charge has extended an invitation to the entire state campaign party, and all will doubtless be on hand. Senators Tillman and McLaurin have been asked to speak, and the latter has indicated his intention to be present. All this state's congressmen have also been invited. Colonel Talbert has sent his acceptance. Mr. W. D. Evans, formerly president of the State Alliance, will also attend. Invitations have been given Congressman Lewis, of the State of Washington, and Lentz, of Ohio, who are both expected to attend and deliver addresses. The alliance men are expecting a grand time at Tirzah.

"God's Love."
Charlotte Observer, Monday: Rev. T. M. Lowry, who represents the synod of North Carolina in its work for the Negro in the school at North Wilkesboro preached in the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning and evening. His subject in the forenoon was, "God's Love," based on the seventh and eighth verses of the fifth chapter of Romans. He discussed first the freeness of God's love; then the greatness. We can get God's love by the right of purchase; the right of labor; the right of a free bestowal based upon a request or petition. This love is great in what it accomplishes for us; in saving us. Mr. Lowry illustrated his points clearly and forcibly. The sermon was listened to most attentively. After its delivery, Mr. Lowry presented the cause which he especially represents in the North Wilkesboro school. The work of this school is first to make Negroes Christians and then industrious. The work is prospering and bids fair to increase in usefulness and scope.

NEWS OF TUESDAY.

Summary of War Developments Up to 5 O'Clock P. M.

By Telegraph to The Yorkville Enquirer.
Camara's Fleet.
WASHINGTON, July 19.—Advices have been received here to the effect that Camara's fleet was on yesterday sighted off the coast of Tunis. The Pelayo is said to have been so badly damaged by an explosion aboard that she has to be towed by a cruiser.
She'll Get Into Trouble.

The state department is advised that Morocco has refused to declare neutrality, and it may be that this country will figure in some of the operations of Watson's fleet.
Will Take the Rough Riders.
The Porto Rican campaign is to be under the direction of Generals Miles, Coppinger and Brooke. Under the advice of General Miles the troops who did the hard work at Santiago will be sent north to recuperate, and of them all only the Rough Riders will be taken to Porto Rico. Transports have been engaged to take troops from Newport News and Tampa. The present plans provide for a bombardment of San Juan by Sampson's fleet and the landing of not less than 40,000 troops. It is believed that with such an overwhelming force the capitulation of the island can be secured without much bloodshed.
General Toral has turned over to General Miles a list of the Spanish soldiers included in the surrender of Santiago. The number is 25,075.
The captured Mauser rifles are to be used for arming American troops, and the old cannons are to be brought to America as souvenirs.

FALL OF SANTIAGO.

American Flag Hoisted Sunday at Noon.

SPANIARDS TO BE SENT BACK TO SPAIN.

It Went Hard With Toral; but There Was No Other Way For It—Shafter Said That If the City Had Not Surrendered, It Would Have Cost 5,000 Lives.

The American flag now flies over Santiago, and General Shafter has possession of the city. After long drawn out negotiations, the conditions were agreed to and the flag was hoisted at noon Sunday.

The commissioners appointed by General Shafter to conduct the negotiations after the surrender had been finally agreed upon were Generals Wheeler and Lawton and Captain Mile. General Toral's commissioners were Mr. Robert Mason, the British vice-consul at Santiago, Colonel Fontaine, General Toral's chief of staff, and General Escarraj.

The negotiations were long drawn out and there were several hitches which seemed to threaten a return of the opposing armies to arms. One of the difficulties was in the confusion of General Toral's letter. In one sentence the general said he would give up the arms of his men, and in another he said he expected to have those arms returned. General Shafter refused to allow a return of the arms. He agreed to refer the matter to Washington and Washington was of the same opinion as General Shafter. General Toral almost cried over the matter. He maintained that his men had bravely defended their arms and that they were entitled to receive them back. The American commissioners were impressed with this position, and while not disposed to make any promises, agreed to recommend to Washington that the arms be returned.

There was another slight hitch over the word "surrender." General Toral desired that this and several other words of the same character be softened. He held that he had been overpowered by superior force and that the word "capitulate" would suit better. In this also the Americans agreed.

It was not until Saturday morning that the whole business was finally settled. The agreement, as signed at last, consists of nine articles which may be summarized as follows:

First. That the hostilities shall cease pending the agreement of final capitulation.

Second. That the capitulation includes all the Spanish forces and the surrender of all war material within the prescribed limits.

Third. The transportation of the troops to Spain at the earliest possible moment, each force to be embarked at the nearest port.

Fourth. That the Spanish officers shall retain their side arms and the enlisted men their personal property.

Fifth. That after the final capitulation, the Spanish forces shall assist in the removal of all obstructions to navigation in Santiago harbor.

Sixth. That after the final capitulation the commanding officers shall furnish a complete inventory of all arms and munitions of war and a roster of all the soldiers in the district.

Seventh. That the Spanish general shall be permitted to take the military archives and records with him.

Eighth. That the guerrillas and Spanish irregulars shall be permitted to remain in Cuba, if they so elect, giving a parole that they will not again take up arms against the United States unless properly released from parole.

Ninth. That the Spanish forces shall be permitted to march out with all the honors of war, depositing their arms to be disposed of by the United States in the future, the American commissioners to recommend to their government that the arms of the soldiers be returned to those "who so bravely defended them."

At 9 o'clock, Sunday morning, the Spanish flag was hauled down from the different buildings in Santiago, and immediately afterward the Spanish regiments began leaving their trenches and marching into the American lines, where they laid down their arms. During the day 7,000 rifles were surrendered along with 600,000 cartridges. General Shafter told his part of the story in the following dispatch to Washington:

"I have the honor to announce that the American flag has this instant, 12 o'clock, noon, been hoisted over the house of the civil governor in the city of Santiago. An immense concourse of people present; a squadron of cavalry and a regiment of infantry presenting arms and band playing national airs. Light battery fired salute of 21 guns. Perfect order is being maintained by municipal government. Distress is very great; but little sickness in town. Scarcely any yellow fever. A small gunboat and about 200 seamen left by Cervera have surrendered to me. Obstructions are being removed from mouth of the harbor. Upon coming into this city I discovered a perfect entanglement of defenses. Fighting, as the Spaniards did the first day, it would have cost 5,000 lives to have taken it. Battalions of Spanish troops have been depositing arms since daylight in armory, over which I have guard. General Toral formally surrendered the plaza and all stores at 9.05 a. m."

After the surrender, the newspaper correspondents had a brief talk with General Toral. The white-haired commander appeared to be nearly heart-broken.

He spoke bitterly of the fate which compelled him to sue for peace; but had no word to say against the gallant men who had conquered his army. He declared that he had little chance to win. "I would not desire my worst enemy to play with the cards I held," he said to one of the commissioners. "Every one of my generals was killed or wounded; I have not a single colonel left, and am surrounded by a powerful enemy. We have counted 67 ships off this port."

"And, besides," he continued, wearily waving his hand toward the city, "I have secret troubles there."

Speaking of the battle of the 24th of June, in which the Rough Riders and a part of General Young's command participated, General Toral said that less than 2,000 Spanish troops were engaged, his loss being 265. He would not say how many Spaniards were killed at El Caney and before Santiago. "Heavy, heavy," he said, dejectedly.

In response to an inquiry, he said that transportation would be required for between 22,000 and 25,000 men, there being that much of a force in the capitulated district. He informed the officers that Santiago harbor had been again mined since Admiral Cervera left.

While there is no doubt of the fact that the Spanish firing lines had been provided with an abundance of food to last during the fighting, it subsequently developed that there was little more to spare. The city itself had been robbed. On Sunday the Spanish soldiers who came into the American camp to give up their guns, were but little more than living skeletons.

The thousands of refugees who left Santiago two weeks ago upon notice of the threatened bombardment, and went to El Caney and other points, were ordered back into the city on Sunday. Many of them were in a starving condition, and there was no food to be had in the city for love of money. The shops and dwellings had already been plundered by Spanish soldiers, not only of mere food; but of money and everything else portable that was of special value.

The Red Cross steamer State of Texas entered the harbor during Sunday afternoon and began distributing supplies as rapidly as possible. Other supply ships were also ordered in and were expected to arrive Sunday night or Monday morning.

At last accounts the question of government for the city had not been definitely settled. This has been under consideration for a week or more. The Washington authorities are still in doubt as to the best course to pursue, and until they reach a conclusion, all authority will be vested in General Shafter.

WHILE WAR IS RAGING

It is necessary to keep the plow on the move, and while the drums are beating and the air is filled with martial music and the army is organizing for the front, we should not become so demoralized as to allow our farms and various businesses to become disorganized. The soldiers will fight the war, while we "speed the plow." Let us prepare our lands with the same thought and care as the general and his staff prepares for battle; let us sow an abundant crop of wheat, oats and peas, together with grasses and clover, and the fields will bloom in all their glory while the martial music of the war will be drowned with the fairy-like song of the birds in the spring, and plenty will most likely be our reward.

GUANO AND ACID are essential to the success of farming as gunpowder is to war, and we have both in almost unlimited quantities, and we would be glad to supply those who expect to begin a campaign for any of the above crops. The Guano and Acid will show the proper analysis, and will produce bird-singing results in the spring.
