"SMALL CAP." SHAFTER .- "Pecos Bill is not the only nick-name that General Shafter ever enjoyed," said an old newspaper man the other day. "Out in Denver he was known for years as 'Small Cap. Shafter,' and as he is anything but small, the title calls for an explanation. It seems that a banquet of some sort had been given to a lot of army officers, and among the guests was General, then Colonel Shafter. The old Denver Tribune printed an account of the affair, and a list of those present was included in the article. "When the proofs were examined promptly marked them 'small cap.,' meaning that they should be reset in capitals of a small size. The intelligent compositor supposed that the inscription indicated some military title with which he was unfamiliar, and instead of making the proper correction, substituted 'Small Cap. Shafter,' and thus it appeared on the following morning.

"Pecos Bill was mad enough to bite everybody else roared, and the title stuck to him until the yarn was gradually forgotten. It is still remembered, however, by plenty of old-timers."

"Over the top of the holes is a cover with a hinge in the middle, and when you swallow beefsteak the little door over the œsophagus fles open, and the little door over the œsophagi drops down, and vice versa when you take a drink of coffee." This description proved too much

LESSON XI. FOURTH QUARTER, IN-TERNATIONAL SERIES, DEC. 11.

ory Verse, 32-Golden Text, Isa. xl, 8. Commentary Prepared by the Rev. D. M.

[Copyright, 1898, by D. M. Stearns.] 20. "And they went in to the king and told all the words in the ears of the king.' This is King Jehoiakim, a son of Josiah, who reigned 11 years, but did evil in the sight of the Lord. In the fourth year of his reign the Lord told Jeremiah to write in a book all the words He had spoken against Israel since the days of Josiah and read them to the people if perchance they might turn from their sins to the Lord and have their iniquity forgiven. Both in the fourth and fifth years of Jehoiakim's reign of this chapter), and now some who heard them tell them to the king.
21. "So the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll, and Jehudi read it in the ears of the king." Baruch the scribe, who had written the words of the Lord from the mouth of Jeremiah, had also read the book in the ears of the people and of the rulers (verses 6, 8, 10, 15, 16), but now Jehudi reads. It does not matter much who reads provided he reads distinctly and give the sense and cause the people to understand the reading (Neh. viii, 8). As to the origin of the words, they were from the Lord, the Lord's words. He used Jeremiah's mouth and Baruch's pen and mouth, but the message was neither from Jeremiah nor from Baruch, but from God. Now it is Jehudi's mouth, but it is still the same message from the Lord.

22, 23. "He cut it with the penknife and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire." Thus did Jehoiakim with the roll containing the message from the Lord. Thus he despised and treated with contempt the message from the Lord and turned his back upon the Lord and would not hearken to Him. What a contrast to Josiah in our last lesson, who humbled himself before God and turned to Him with all his heart! Jehoiakim was a Cain man, while Josiah, like Abel, had faith in God. All are either for or against God. 24. "Yet they were not afraid, nor ren their garments, neither the king nor any of his servants that heard all these words." The hard hearted, rebellious king would influence those about him in some measure to be rebellious, like himself. When once the heart turns away from God, the hardness ofttimes increases very quickly. When we receive not the truth in the love lie (II Thess. ii, 11, 12). It is a fearful thing to even listen to a word against God or against His word, for, while holiness is

25. "He would not hear them." Three are mentioned who pleaded with the king not to burn the roll, but he would not listen to them. He thought that he knew better than his counselors, he was in his own esteem wiser than his father who had believe that "He that, being often re-proved, hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy

(Prov. xxix, 1). 26. "But the Lord hid them." This re fers to Baruch and Jeremiah, whom the king would now like to lay hands upon and put a stop to such words as these. In verse 19 we learn that when the book was about to be read to the king some advised them to hide so that they could not be found, and now we learn that in their or kingdom (I Kings xvii, 8; xviii, 10). There is a rock, the Rock of Ages, in whom we may so securely hide that no evil can befall us (Ex. xxxiii, 22; Isa. ii, 10; xxvi, 4, margin). The life of all who said to be hid with Christ in God, for He is our life (Col. iii, 3, 4). 27, 28. "Take thee again another roll and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll." I have for some years reveled in the blessed assurance of Ps. cxix, 89, "Forever, O Lord, Thy word is settled in heaven." On my way home from India last year it was my privilege while spending a few days in London to rejoice in some blessed fellowship with my dear brother in the Lord, Rev. John Wilkinson, author of that wonderful book, "Israel My Glory." I found him one day greatly rejoicing in Ps. cxix, 89, on which he expatiated somewhat after this fashion: "Just think of what we have here! What is settled? Thy word. Where is it settled? In heaven. For how long is it settled? Forever. Whose word is it? Thine, O Lord! Let the enemies throw out Jonah and his book, and Daniel and his book, and whatever they do not like, they can no more destroy the word of God than Jehoiakim could destroy the words of Jeremiah's roll. When we reach heaven, we

29. "The king of Babylon shall certainly come and destroy this land and shall cause to cease from thence man and beast." These were some of the words in the roll which Jehoiakim burned which caused him to hate it and burn it. Jonah was a wondrous type of our Lord in His death which satan hates and may be one reason why he would if possible set aside the book of Jonah. In Daniel perhaps more than in the things of God is made manifest, and for that reason, among others, the book of Daniel is disliked. Revelation tells of the devil's downfall and final doom and therefore he would like you not to read that 80, 31. "Therefore thus saith the Lord of Jehoiakim, king of Judah." Then follows a statement of what would come upon him personally for this sin, but he would not hearken In chapter xxii, 19, it was written that he should be buried with the burial of an ass. God is not willing that any should perish, has no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but if in spite of all His warnings and entreaties the wicked will persist in his wickedness he is sometimes given up so to do (II Pet. iii, 9; Ezek, xxxiii, 11: Deut, xxviii, 15).

32. "Another roll was given by Jere miah to Baruch the scribe, and from the mouth of Jeremiah he wrote all the words that were in the former roll, with the addition of many like words. This suggests to us that all efforts to destroy the word of God or any portion of it only results in the increase of that word. Since the days of Jehoiakim the word of God has been bought in order to be burned, but the money thus obtained produced a larger edition.

The consequences of telling the truth, however painful they may be, are never as hard to bear as the consequences of telling a falsehood.

As gratifying as this remarkable gain in total production and value of the crop is, however, it is due mainly to an increase in the acreage itself.

Compared with 1897, most of the southern states show a small gain in acreage, running from 1 per cent, in Georgia to 8 per cent. in Texas, though Maryland, Tennessee and Kentucky show a decreased acreage of from 2 per cent. to 5 per cent. The gain in the average yield per acre was very marked in nearly all southern states, except in Georgia, in which there was a decline in the average of two bushels per acre, thus cutting the total yield in that state down very materially. Adjacent states had a considerable inon Mr. J. W. Dunnovant's place, had crease in the average yield. The total crop by states, as compiled by The Southern Farm Magazine from advance government reports, and as compared with 1897, was as follows:

The total corn crop of the United States for 1898 was 1,926,000,000 bushels, against 1,902,000,000 bushels in 1897, a gain of only 24,000,000 bushels; whereas, the gain in the south alone was 114,000,000 bushels. Omitting the south, the figures would show a large decease for the rest of the country. This is a very gratifying exhibit as a partial offset to the low price of cotton this year, but before the south congratulates itself too heartily upon these figures as evidence of the growth of the idea of the diversification of crops it should remember that college.
