

dainty, fair-haired little maidens, Misses Marguerite and Blandina Springs, were ribbon girls. A pair of bridesmaids—Misses Elise Moore, of Yorkville, S. C., and Pearl Clarkson—were followed by two groomsmen, Messrs. Paul Van Ness, of Yorkville, S. C., and James Yorkville, S. C., and Sadie Clarkson, of Charlotte, formed the second duet of bridesmaids, and Messrs. W. H. Twitty and Earle Pegram, of Charlotte, completed the group of groomsmen.

The gown of the bridesmaids were extremely dainty combinations of white organdy and lace. Each of the four young ladies carried a bouquet of American Beauties, tied with apple-green ribbon.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Sam Moore, of Washington.

The maid of honor, Miss Annie Clarkson, was attired in white and carried a cluster of snowy carnations. The bride was escorted by her brother, Captain T. S. Clarkson. A quaint and pleasing old English custom was followed by having the betrothal service take place at the foot of the altar, while the last binding vows were uttered before the altar itself, where the spreading palms and cross of white flowers made a fitting background for the solemn scene.

Rev. E. A. Osborne was the officiating clergyman, and Bishop J. B. Chesire pronounced the last words of benediction.

At the entrance of the first member of the bridal party the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march were played by Miss Addie Williams. A gentle musical undertone added its melody to the service, and Wagner's "Bridal March" formed the accompaniment to the departure of the wedded pair.

At the residence of Capt. T. S. Clarkson the wedding reception was held. The guests entered a hall whose crimson hangings were an effective background to clusters of golden rods. In the drawing room, artistically decorated with slender vines and cream roses, the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends.

The bride's gown was a rich and effective costume of heavy corded silk, with yoke of chiffon and ruffles of the same filmy material. The veil of tulle was held by a single white rose bud, and the bouquet was a lavish cluster of white roses. The dining room, elegantly in green and white, the bridal table, with exquisite lace centerpiece, brilliant candelabra and fragrant roses, forming an attractive picture.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore left on the north-bound train for Washington and New York. On their return they will continue to reside in Charlotte.

The bride is one of the brightest and most popular members of the social circle of the Queen City, and the groom, whose native town is Yorkville, S. C., has been, for three years, a resident in Charlotte, and during that time has won the respect and friendship of all who know him.

A large collection of handsome gifts showed the esteem in which the bride and groom are held, and a host of friends hope that their wedded life may be as cloudless as the day that witnessed their union.

—The members of the bar are busy getting ready for court.

—There are more traveling men to be seen in Yorkville than at this time last year.

—The tiger business is flourishing about as usual—picking up rather than losing ground.

—The sales of furniture are unusually large for this season of the year. To mention a better sign of good times would be difficult.

—The Carolina and North-Western is still running on schedule. The South Carolina and Georgia Extension is backsliding a little occasionally.

—John R. Hart, Esq., found the pointer dog he advertised Wednesday. A Negro in the lower end of town had gotten possession of the dog and tied it up.

—If the police will take a census of the people who do not carry concealed pistols, it will probably be easier to determine who are violating the law on this subject.

—The Negro, Brice, who shot another Negro named Rawlinson in the York Brick Works enclosure last Sunday, did not go to the chain gang. His fellow-laborers chipped in and helped to pay his fine.

—We have seen a copy of Mr. Elder's map of Yorkville. The map shows streets, railroads, streams, distances. It is well executed, and those who know how to appreciate such things will find a copy a convenient thing to have handy.

—Mr. H. C. Strauss said Thursday afternoon that Wednesday was the busiest day of the season so far. At times his salesmen were unable to wait on the trade. He sent a wagon load of bundles to the trains, for customers who had come from out of town by rail.

—The cotton sales have been larger here up to date than for several years past. The circumstance is due to the good prices that are being paid, and the good prices are probably due in a measure to the fact that this is headquarters of cotton men who have a large number of buyers scattered over the country.

—The first frost of the season appeared on Thursday morning. It was not heavy enough to kill a great deal of vegetation; but it was frost. Believers in the katydid reports its first notes as having been heard from July 22 all the way back to June 22. The understanding is that frost should appear within 90 days after the katydid announces his presence.

—The graded school conditions complained of in Rock Hill, do not exist here in the same form. There, it seems, that tuition is charged in all the grades, and this appears to be unconstitutional.

Here the trustees charge tuition after the pupil passes the sixth grade, and enters into studies beyond the free school requirements. It is presumed that by this time the pupil has passed the free school age, and has no further right to demand free tuition. If the pupil, however, does demand free tuition on the ground of not having passed the age limit, the trustees have merely to keep him or her in the sixth or a lower grade. This is generally believed to be lawful. In addition to tuition in the higher grades, the trustees require a small contingent fee of 10 cents per month from each pupil, whether above or below the sixth grade. As to the constitutionality of this practice they are not sure; but they are sure of the necessity for the money. It is used to pay the janitor, furnish wood for warming the school rooms, and for other like expenses. While not sure of the constitutionality of this charge, the trustees will continue to exact it until the courts restrain them. There are good grounds for believing that the charge is lawful and right. It is also a fact that if the trustees should be prevented from collecting this fee, the school year would be cut down to eight months instead of nine. To say that the Yorkville graded school is getting along absolutely without friction would hardly be correct; but it is a fact that the trustees are doing the very best they can, and there seems to be no reasonable grounds for any disturbance of the statu quo at this time.

LOCAL LAONICS. Until January 1st, 1901.

THE TWICE-A-WEEK ENQUIRER, filled with the latest and most reliable news, will be furnished from the date of this issue until January 1, 1901, for 38 cents. Proceeding Slowly.

The work of constructing the dam and power house of the Indian Hook Power company, is not progressing rapidly. People who have been in the neighborhood say that there are only 40 or 50 hands at work, where there ought to be at least 500, if the work is to be completed within the next year or two. As to just what the trouble is THE ENQUIRER has no information, except the general statement that labor is scarce, notwithstanding the good wages of $1 a day that are being paid.

Circus Day in Gastonia. There was a tremendous crowd in Gastonia Thursday to see the big Sells-Forreugh circus. About 100 people went from Yorkville and 175 from Clover. Large parties went from other stations along the line of the Carolina and North-Western. Gastonia was crowded and there was hardly standing room in the great circus tents. The show was a gigantic affair. There was a herd of 18 elephants for one thing, and for the parade to pass a given point required 15 minutes. The day passed off without special incident. There was but little drunkenness or disorder. The Carolina and North-Western passenger train ran late on the return trip, delayed in order to give the conductor time to take up tickets. For this purpose he stopped the train on a high trestle, and he was enabled to make a clean sweep.

Died on the Train. Says an Aiken special of Tuesday to The News and Courier: Mr. Frank P. Beard, editor and proprietor of the Graniteville News, died very suddenly this morning while on the Charleston train en route from Augusta to Graniteville or Aiken. He boarded the train while it was crossing Broad street, in Augusta, and took a seat and shortly afterward expired so suddenly that a passenger seated in the same seat with him, it was said, did not know it. The conductor discovered that Mr. Beard was dead when he called on him for his ticket. The body was taken off the train at Warrentonville and Coroner Lee was notified. Mr. Beard was in Aiken yesterday and appeared in his usual health. He returned to Augusta on the 9.20 p. m. train. No further particulars are obtainable here.
