

When the case came to trial Tuesday, Solicitor Henry transferred it to the contingent docket, and had the following order of court spread upon the minutes: That the defendant having entered his plea of guilty, and been sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or work on the public works of the county for a period of three months, and the clerk of the court, and the other indictments against the said Cardoza Hampton having been placed on the contingent docket by the clerk of the court, the express understanding and agreement that the said defendant, Cardoza Hampton, depart from the county within ten days from the date of this order, and remain therefrom, now on motion of B. F. Townsend and Thos. F. McDow, attorneys for the defendant, it is ordered that he be discharged from further custody of the sheriff and allowed to go hence.

As much as Nancy Jeter, Cardoza's wife, was not included in this order, and inasmuch as Cardoza had failed to keep his original agreement, Constable Scoggin, Sheriff Logan and Policeman Love, feel that much of their work has gone for nothing, and that with a great many others, think that the tigers should have been punished much more severely; but if Cardoza and Nancy will now get out of the officers' hands, and be disposed to regard the incident as closed.

AT THE YORK MILLS. How that financial difficulties have been satisfactorily adjusted, and orders have been pouring in, the situation out at the York Cotton Mills appears again very much the same as before the recent suspension.

Representative of THE ENQUIRER walked out to the mills a few days ago, and on being shown through the mammoth concern and the grounds surrounding, was surprised to note the many developments that had taken place during the months that had elapsed since a previous visit. In addition to the main mill building since last fall, and the new machinery that is now being placed and about ready for operation, brings the total number of spindles, an increase of 9,200 over the number with which the original start was made.

And the village, too, has grown to considerable proportions. It now includes 73 cottages, large and small, laid out in regular streets, and presenting the appearance of a well-ordered town that is gradually beginning to consider the question of independent incorporation. The incorporation question has not been definitely determined, and it may not be the principal incentive just now is the road question. All of the male operatives who are subject to road duty, and who live without the incorporate limits, belong to the section which includes the recently improved five miles stretch of the Charlotte road. They have but little occasion to use the road east of the mill, and claiming that the road does not require much work now anyway, they think it rather a hardship that they should be called upon for service, the only escape from which seems to lie in incorporation.

It seems that there have not been a great many changes on account of the recent suspension. A dozen or more families moved away to other mills, but most of the older families stuck to the village and saw the thing out. Superintendent Grimes claims that he has the model mill community of the South, and at the request of the reporter, made out a list of his heads of families as follows:

H. M. Abernethy, G. W. Adams, J. E. Adams, Lum Adams, J. A. Alderson, J. W. Alexander, J. C. Allen, C. Allen, C. Allen, W. L. Baber, W. R. Barr, W. H. Barron, J. W. Bennett, R. J. Blackmon, A. F. Bradford, Joe Brown, R. A. Burrell, C. H. Byers, C. W. L. Burris, H. S. Burris, Wm. Camp, Mrs. Carpenter, J. S. Cashion, W. F. Caston, T. D. Cline, Wm. Clinton, J. C. Comer, J. R. Comer, Sam Davidson, L. P. Davis, H. A. Gordon, L. H. Hambricht, J. Hannon, L. S. Helton, R. L. Helton, J. E. Helton, M. A. Helton, A. C. Hogue, J. A. Howe, T. N. Huddleston, Mr. Kincaid, Mrs. Lemmons, T. J. Lewis, J. E. McSwain, S. A. McSwain, H. R. Merritt, J. L. Miller, C. Morrow, J. W. Mullis, Jas. Parker, Cal Parish, D. A. Popplein, I. A. Pugh, J. M. Robinson, Mrs. Jane Querry, John Quinn, J. M. Robinson, A. C. Sheppard, L. F. Shuford, Mrs. Stowe, Mrs. Summett, Robt. Vandoren, D. C. Walker, C. H. Williams, Eskine Whitesides, Wm. M. Williams, Jack Wisher, Sam Woods, Mrs. Woods, John Lee.

Owing to the new machinery now being put in, and the fact that there is still scarcity of labor and the community is still calling for a number of additional families.

McLAURIN IN CHARLOTTE. There were quite a number of South Carolinians in Charlotte last Thursday. Some were present as guests at a reception given by the Manufacturers' club, and others were there because of curiosity on account of the expected launching of the new paper, heralded by many newspapers throughout the country. A representative of THE ENQUIRER was among the newspaper men who were present because of the interesting nature of the event, and, along with others put in the day keeping his eyes open looking for sounds and his ears open listening for things. But, as might have been expected, it turned out to be a useless trip. Except to those who had been especially invited to attend the banquet of the manufacturers, there was nothing of especial interest outside a glimpse of the famous Minister Wu, and a social chat with Senator McLaurin at his room in the Buford hotel.

those I met, was Senator Jones. We had a pleasant little conversation, during which Senator Jones asked me whether I cared to be invited to a caucus on the ship subsidy bill, about which there had been numerous caucuses. He explained as to how he felt a delicacy in asking me about it, and when I told him that on account of my irreconcilable views on the subject, I thought it better not to embarrass my associates or myself by attending these conferences, Senator Jones replied that he respected my attitude and that he thought was entirely right. That was about all that occurred, and I thought no more about the matter.

Returning to the hospital, I did not go to the Capitol again for several days afterward. Mrs. McLaurin was still very ill, and I was still giving her my entire time and attention, to the exclusion of politics. Joe Kelley, of Texas, met me, and after an exchange of greeting, made a remark to this effect: "Say, McLaurin, you are entirely wrong about that caucus. I think your places of business; in fact anything that is liable to be destroyed by fire, and the list includes everything of which wood forms a part, or that is near wood, with the possible exception of brick and stone, because these are about all that is usually left after a fire, and they have been damaged from a commercial standpoint. It is my business to sell insurance and to sell the kind that insures. Eleven years' experience has taught me exactly how to write it to protect every interest of the insured. I represent OLD, STRONG and TIME TESTED companies. I would be pleased to write your insurance. I have no other business than insurance, and therefore devote all my time and attention to it. It is no side issue with me—something to make 'pin money' out of, but my all."

I can INSURE your life; INSURE you against loss by fire; against loss by accident, or I can furnish you with a bond if you need one as an administrator, guardian, executor or in any other capacity.

During the day, Senator McLaurin remarked that it was his purpose to make several speeches in different parts of South Carolina during the summer, and he suggested that unless something should turn up in the meantime to prevent, he would come to Yorkville on the first Monday in June. He was assured that there are a good many people in this section who would like to hear him on whatever subject he cared to talk about, and about the last thing he said to the reporter was, "You can depend upon it, that it is my intention to come. I have every reason to be especially grateful to the people of York county, and I want to give them an opportunity to judge me in accordance with my own testimony, rather than from the standpoint of the newspapers."

To Save Potatoes. Mr. W. J. Moorhead, of Hickory Grove, writes that he thinks he has a plan to save sweet potatoes that is better than any that has yet been suggested. He weatherboards a frame all around, ceiling on the inside and filling in with dirt or straw—anything to keep out the air. Then he makes a bed of dry pine leaves, and puts on a five or six inch layer of potatoes, alternating with leaves and potatoes until all of the potatoes are provided for. The top must be covered with a roof to keep out the water. All air must be excluded from the bottom, but there is no danger from the top. The potatoes should be dug before frost, as frostbitten surface potatoes are dangerous. Put up in this way, Mr. Moorhead says he can keep his potatoes through the winter without the slightest danger of loss, and that they are much sweeter and better than when protected under dry dirt alone.
