Three Eels and a Girl.

There lives a family on Delaware place with a palate for eels. As often as twice a week the head of the family carries home from the fish marke two or three of the slippery, snakelike wrigglers. He usually returns B. Betts, of Lesslie, shipped 25 pigeons home late at night, and it is his custom to put the eels in a bucket of water, where they are kept until morn ing. In the front rooms of the apartment where lives this family are two young women from Indiana, who, during their sojourn in the city, are boarding with Wednesday night on the mixed train

One night last week the man of th house took home three eels. After stumbling about the darkened house in a futile search for a bucket, he hit upon another plan. He tiptoed to the bathroom and turned the eels loose in the bathtub.

As soon as the house was quiet the younger of the two sisters, dressed for trial of the case in which they are inher dreams, stole out of her room with terested was postponed until the term a heavy crash towel thrown across of the court to be held in March. That was all she remembered. With one hysterical scream she began kicking furiously and crying for help. Her elder sister, fearing she was being murdered, ran to the bathroom, but found the door locked. After a couple of moments had elapsed, the girl imprisoned in the bathroom fell out of our agricultural exhibit. Their comthe tub and managed to unlock the bined weight is five pounds eleven door. Not hearing the anxious questions, her frightened sister was crying at her, she fairly flew down the hallway, clad only in the darkness. The whole family was aroused by the screams, and lights flared up in every apartment in the big building. The women of the house and the elder sister, after fifteen minutes work, succeeded in calming the frightened bather.

wish that his reformers might be successful. THE RE-FORMER is a characteristic Sheldon story in the author's best vein. It is the story of a wealthy young man who gave up home and fortune, friends and social position, and the sweetheart who would not follow him into poverty, to devote his life and talents to reform work in the slums of a great city. Among the interesting characters in this story are: John Gordon, the hero; Mary Marsh, the sweetheart; David Barton, a newspaper writer; Harris, the proprietor of the News, a yellow journal; Miss Andrews, the head of Hope House, a charitable institution in the heart of the slums, a descendant of an aristocratic old southern family; Louie Caylor, a child of the slums; Mrs. Captain George Effingham, of Salem, a rich widow; Tommy Randall, the political king of the slum district; Rev. Mr. Falmouth, pastor of a fashionable church, who is not satisfied with social conditions; Mrs. Constance Penrose, a rich society woman, etc. THE REFORMER is a story that is not overdrawn, as it pictures actual conditions in many of our large cities. It is clean and high-tone in language, and can be read with profit and interest by old and young. Even if you are not an habitual story reader, we are sure that you can read THE REFORMER with pleasure and profit. One result of reading this story will be to make you compare your happy surroundings with the conditions that exist in the slums of a great city, where the very air is reeking with filth and disease. If you are not an EN-QUIRER subscriber, NOW is a good time to begin. You can get THE ENQUIRER from now until January I, 1904-more than thirteen months-for $1.75. See your nearest clubmaker.

THE REFORMER is intensely exciting, holding the interest of the reader from start to finish. The first chapter of THE REFORMER will appear in THE ENQUI-RER of December 10. Watch for it and read it.
