

L. M. GRIST'S SONS, Publishers.

3. Samily Rewspaper : for the Promotion of the Political, Social, Igricultural, and Commencial Interests of the People.

YORKVILLE, S. C., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1903.

TERMS $2.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE. SINGLE COPY, FIVE CENTS.

TRAMPS CAPTURE TRAIN.

In Jail.

NO. 73.

ESTABLISHED 1855.

۰.

4

By WILL N. HARBEN, Author of "Westerfelt."

Copyright, 1902, by Harper Bros. All rights reserved.

no luck at all, returning empty handed to the farmhouse for a late dinner. They passed the afternoon at said, pale with pleased excitement. target shooting on the lawn with rifles and revolvers, ending the day by a reckless ride on their horses across the out heer from town." fields, over fences and ditches, after the manner of fox hunting, a sport not now, standing in the shadows of the often indulged in in that part of the others, as if bewildered by what seemcountry.

In the evening, as they sat in the big sitting room smoking after supper ci- finally found voice to say. "Oh, is it, gars, accompanied by Abner Daniel, Pole?" with his long, cane stemmed pipe, Mrs. Bishop came into the room in her quiet way, smoothing her apron with her delicate hands.

"Pole Baker's rid up an' hitched at the front gate," she said. "Did you send 'im to town fer anything, Alan?" "No, mother," replied her son. "I reckon he's come to get more meat. Is father out there?"

"I think he's some'r's about the sta ble," said Mrs. Bishop. Miller laughed. "I guess Pole isn't the best pay in the world, is he?" "Father never weighs or keeps ac-

"Well," grunted Daniel, "I'm glad you spared his life. And I thank God spent that day on the river you got the money."

Miller was now hurriedly running over the bills. "You say you counted it, Baker?" he "Three times-fust when it was turned over to me an' twice on the way Mrs. Bishop had not spoken until ed a mocking impossibility. "Is it our money-is it our'n?" she in'."

"Yes'm," replied Pole; "it's yo'rn." He produced a crumpled piece of paper and handed it to Miller. "Heer's Craig's order on his wife fer it, an' in it he acknowledges it's the cash deposited by Mr. Bishop. He won't give me no trouble. I've got 'im fixed, He'll leave Darley in the mornin'. He's afeerd this 'll git out an' he'll be lynched." Alan was profoundly moved. He transferred his gaze from the money to Pole's face and leaned toward him.

"You did it out of friendship for me," he said, his voice shaking.

"That's what I did it fer, Alan, an' wish I could do it over ag'in. When l laid hold o' that wad an' knowed it was the thing you wanted more'n anything else, I felt like flyin'."

"Tell us all about it, Baker," said Miller, wrapping up the stack of bills. "All right," said Pole, but Mrs. Bishop interrupted him.

"Wait fer Alfred," she said, her voice rising and cracking in delight. "Wait; 'll run find 'im." She went out through the dining room, toward the stables, calling her husband at every step. "Alfred! Oh, Alred!" "Heer!" she heard him call out from one of the stables. She leaned over the fence opposite the closed door, behind which she had heard his voice. "Oh, Alfred!" she called. "Come out, quick! I've got news fer youbig, big news!" She heard him grumbling as he emptied some ears of corn into the trough of the stall containing Alan's favorite horse, and then with a growl he emerged into the starlight.

'That fool nigger only give Alan's to it. He sat crouched up in his tilted chair as if burning up with the joy of his release. The silence was broken by Abner Daniel as he filled his pipe anew and stood over the fireplace.

never done such a thing in the presence of others, and he could not pull himself

"They say money's a cuss an' the root of all evil," he said dryly, "but in this case it's give Pole Baker thar a chance to show what's in 'im. I'd 'a' give the last cent I have to 'a' done what he did today. I grant you he used deception, but it was the fust wates sort that that Bible king resorted to when he made out he was goin' to divide that baby by cuttin' it in halves. He fetched out the good an' squelched the bad." Abner glanced at Pole and gave one of his impulsive inward laughs. "My boy, when I reach t'other shore I expect to see whole strings of sech lawbreakers as you a-playin' leapfrog on the golden sands. You don't sing an' pray a whole lot, nur keep yore religion in sight, but when thar's work to be done you shuck off yore shirt an' do it like a wildcat a-scratch-

No one spoke after this outburst for several minutes, though the glances cast in his direction showed the embarrassed ex-moonshiner that one and all had sanctioned Abner Daniel's opin-

Bishop leaned forward and looked at the clock, and, seeing that it was 9, he put the money in a bureau drawer and turned the key. Then he took down the big family Bible from its shelf and sat down near the lamp. They all knew what the action portended.

CHAPTER XXIV.

BOUT a week after the events A recorded in the preceding chapter old man Bishop, just 12. 2. at dusk one evening, rode up to Pole Baker's humble domicile. Pole was in the front yard making a fire of sticks, twigs and chips. "What's that fer?" the old man questioned as he dismounted and hitched his horse to the worm fence.

"To drive off mosquitoes," said Pole, wiping his eyes, which were red from the effects of the smoke. "I'll never pass another night like the last un ef I kin he'p it. I 'lowed my hide was thick, but they bored fer oil all over me from dark till sun-up. I never 've tried smoke, but Hank Watts says it's ahead o' pennyr'yal."

"Shucks!" grunted the planter. "You ain't workin' it right. A few rags burnin' in a pan nigh yore bed may drive 'em out, but a smoke out heer in the yard 'll jest drive 'em in." "What?" said Pole in high disgust. "Do you expect me to sleep sech hot weather as this is with a fire nigh my bed? The durn things may eat me raw, but I'll be blamed ef I barbecue myse'f to please 'em." Mrs. Baker appeared in the cabin

"Well, it's yores," he said.

money will do! When you got the cash, things seem to come at bottom figures." Old Bishop drew a folded paper from his pocket and slapped it on his knee. "Yes, I closed the deal this evenin', an' I was jest a-thinkin' that as you hain't rented fer next yeer-I mean"-Bishop was ordinarily direct of speech, but somehow his words became tangled and he delivered himself awkwardly on this occasion. "You see, Alan thinks that you 'n Sally ort to live in a better house than jest this heer log cabin, an"-

The wan face of the tired woman was aglow with expectation. She sank down on the doorstep and sat still and mute, her hands clasping each other in her lap. She had always disliked that cabin and its sordid surroundings, and there was something in Bishop's talk that made her think he was about to propose renting the new farm, house and all, to her husband. Her mouth fell open; she scarcely allowed herself to breathe. Then, as Bishop paused, her husband's voice struck dumb dismay to her heart. It was as if she was falling from glowing hope back to tasted despair. "Thar's more land in that farm 'an could do jestice to, Mr. Bishop, but ef thar's a good cabin on it an' you see fit to cut off enough fer me an' one hoss I'd jest as soon tend that as this heer. I want to do what you an' Alan think is best all round." "Oh, Pole, Pole!" The woman was crying it to herself, her face lowered to and if you do so pay, you certainly her hands that the two men might not cannot be deemed a guest. the agony written in her eyes. A If a man introduces me int house like that to live in, with all as his guest, I do not expect to pay those rooms and fireplaces and winfor what I may consume there; and dows with panes of glass in them! She when I read that Lady-So-and-So's fancied she saw her children playing riverside residence is full of guests for on the tight, smooth floors and on the the week-end, I do not understand that honeysuckled porch. For one minute the charming hostess will present a these things had been hers, to be little bill ere her friends set out to snatched away by the callous indiffercatch the train to town on Monday. ence of her husband, who, alas, had This expression, "paying-guests," is never cared a straw for appearances! justified on no grounds whatever, and "Oh, I wasn't thinkin' about rentin' is as much a contradiction as the hideit to you!" said Bishop. And the woous mixup, "his wrong side of the man's dream was over. She raised her road." which one often hears in conhead, awake again. "You see," went nection with street happenings." Moon Bishop, still struggling for proper torists, coachmen, cyclists and pedesexpression, "Alan thinks - well, he trians, in discussing the rule of the thinks you are sech a born fool about road, are very prone to make use of not acceptin' help from them that feels this obviously contradictory phrase. nigh to you an', I may as well say, If a man is on "his" side of the grateful, exceedingly grateful, fer what road, how can it be "wrong?" And if you've done, things that no other livin' it is "wrong," it certainly is not "his." man could 'a' done-Alan thinks you once heard a worried cloak room atort to have the farm fer yore own proptendant calling out: "Has any gentleerty, an' so the deeds has been made nan got his wrong hat?" The same out to"thing applies; but I am afraid the mis-Pole drew himself up to his full take is too firmly welded into our naheight. His big face was flushed, half tional speech ever to be uprooted. with anger, half with a strong emotion Another common mistake is to speak of a tenderer kind. He stood towering of any object as "most unique." There over the old man like a giant swayed can be no degrees in uniqueness, for if by the warring winds of good and evil. a thing is unique there is only one of "I won't heer a word more of that, Mr. Bishop," he said, with a quivering Some speakers and writers seem to lip-"not a word more. By golly, I have a deal of trouble with the simmean what I say! I don't want to heer ple looking little word "nee." If they another word of it. This heer place is would remember that it is simply French for "born," men confusion good enough fer me an' my family. It's done eight yeer, an' it kin do anmight be spared them. To speak of other eight." Mrs. Henry Brown, nee Miss Mary "Oh, Pole, Pole, Pole!" The wom-Smith," is obviously wrong, for noan's cry was now audible. It came body in this world was ever born with straight from her pent up, starving a Christian name all complete. soul and went right to Bishop's heart. The most gorgeous blunder on rec-"You want the place, don't you, Salord in this connection was made by a ly?" he said, calling her by her given writer who mentioned "Mrs. Cornname for the first time, as if he had wallis-West, nee Lady Randolph just discovered their kinship. He could Churchill." We all know that the lady not have used a tenderer tone to child in question is a most brilliant woman; of his own. but even she would hardly be clever

"What's the use o' me tryin' to git even with Alan." Pole exclaimed, "ef he's eternally a-goin' to git up some'n? I've been tickled to death ever since I cornered old Craig till now, but you an' him has sp'iled it all by this heer trick. It ain't fair to me." "Well, it's done," smiled the old man as he went to his horse, "an' ef you don't live thar with Sally I'll make 'er git a divorce."

Bishop had reached a little pigpen emerged from a patch of high corn in paper was the first to be published in front of him.

"Is he a-goin' to take it, Mr. Bishop?" she asked, panting from her hurried name Washington had not yet reached ning between Bound Brook and Trenwalk through the corn that hid her from the view of the cabin.

to send two wagons over in the mornin' to move yore things. I wish it was ten times as good a place as it is, but it will insure you an' the children a livin' an' a comfortable home."

After the manner of many of her

Miscellaneous Reading.

HINTS ON GOOD ENGLISH.

Mistakes Commonly Made By Writers and Speakers.

Numbers of people who ought to now better speak of this paper as a 'journal." It is not, for it is published reekly, and there can be no such thing as a weekly journal. The original form of the word journal was 'diurnal"-from the Latin "dies," a day-and it meant a sheet published or written every day. A dairy—also from "dies"—is often called a journal, because you are supposed to enter up the record of each day, and generally don't. Remembering that 'jour" in French means "day" might aid in preventing one from speaking about a "weekly journal."

Reading the account of a fashionable wedding in a fashionable paper the other day, I noticed that "the centre aisle was lined with non-commissioned officers and men of the bridegroom's regiment." Very nice; but there happens to be no such thing as a centre aisle in a church. The aisles are invariably at the sides; and what the reporter meant by the "centre aisle" was the nave. Aisle comes from a Latin word meaning wing, and it is obvious that wings are at the sides. Lots of people just now are advertising in the papers for "paying guests." The essence of being a guest is that you do not pay for anything;

WASHINGTON AN ADVERTISER. ion is that the great notoriety and publicity given to the simple incident

Knew How to Show the Advantages grew out of the fact I was pushing of the Land He Had to Lease. Burton very hard on the race question The Baltimore American in celebrat- and the Republican papers seized on ing the one hundred and thirtleth an- this opportunity to create a diversion niversary of the birth of the Maryland and it is notorious that my enemies Journal and Baltimore Advertiser, never let slip an opportunity to abuse which was the precursor of the Amer- and misrepresent me."

ican, publishes a facsimile of the first issue. It bore date Friday, August 20, 1773. The Journal and Advertiser was in a fence corner farther along on his a small folio of three wide columns to Run It Thirty-five Miles and Wind Up

> With clubs for weapons a party of Baltimore. Of course, there was then a dozen tramps captured a Reading no city of Washington, and even the Railroad company's freight train run> the great fame to which it afterward ton the other day and by fusilades of attained. Yet one of the most note- ears of corn, watermelons, potatoes worthy things about this old-time and apples repulsed a force of the newspaper is that its largest adverti- company's workmen who tried to reser was George Washington. take it.

After the train had been kept going He was then in his forty-first year, and was in the real estate business on continuously from Belle Meale, where a very extensive scale. His advertise- it was captured, to Trenton Junction, ment was dated "Mount Vernon, in a distance of about thirty-five miles, kind, the woman uttered no words of Virginia, July 15, 1773," and announced three constables and three policemen, thanks, but simply turned back into the that the subscribed, "having obtained summoned by telegraph, defeated the corn, and, occupied with her own vision patents for upwards of twenty thou- tramps in a hand to hand fight and of prosperity and choking with grati- sand acres of land on the Ohio and took three prisoners. The other nine Great Kanhawa (ten thousand of escaped.

which are situated on the banks of the The train was a regular freight first mentioned river, between the from Bound Brook to Trenton, stopmouths of the two Kanhawa, and the ping at all stations to take on the remainder on the Great Kanhawa, or produce of the Jersey marke: garden-New river, from the mouth, or near it, ers for the Trenton and Philadelphia upward in one continued survey) pro- markets.

poses to divide the same into any When the train came to a halt at sized tenements that may be desired Belle Meade the tramps can e out of and lease them upon moderate terms, the woods with a whoop. Four of allowing a reasonable number of years' them climbed into the engine cab and rent free, provided, within the space five more into the caboose, where were of two years from next October three the conductor and three other memacres for every fifty contained in each bers of the train crew. The remainlot, and proportionably for a lesser der of the tramp squad climbed on top quantity, shall be cleared, fenced, and of the cars or into them. Few of the tilled; and that, by or before the time cars were locked because of the stops limited for the commencement of the made at such short distances for tak-

the train!"

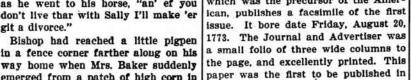

first rent, five acres for every hun- ing on freight. Along the tracks on the way to dred, and proportionably, as above, shall be inclosed and laid down in good Trenton Junction the train had to pass grass for meadow, and moreover, that at least five gangs of workingmen. at least fifty good fruit trees for every On approaching any of these gangs of like quantity of land shall be planted workmen the engineer risked the blow of cudgels and slowed the train, while on the premises."

Would-be purchasers were told to other members of the crew should apply to "George Washington, near lustily: Alexandria," or in his absence to Mr. Lund Washington. The later was Gen. Washington's favorite cousin and the great-grandfather of the late Col. L. workmen refuse to attempt to recap-Q. Washington of this city.

ture the train from the tramps, but General-then colonel-Washington every attempt proved futile. Waterwas an excellent "ad" writer, and his melons burst over the head of the atstyle might be studied to advantage by tacking parties; potatoes and hard some real estate sellers of today. He apples struck them in their eyes and suggestively intimated that "any per- on their noses. son inclined to settle on these lands As the train halted at the junction would do well in communicating their the police rushed aboard. The tramps intentions before the first of October made a desperate fight against arrest. Two constables and a policeman were next in order that a sufficient number of lots may be laid off to answer the knocked unconscious. The clubs of demand." Then followed an ornate the policemen and constables cut long description of the good thing he had to gashes in the heads of the tramps. offer, which it would trouble any of The fight lasted for more than fifteen the moderns to beat by way of induce- minutes.-Exchange.

"Yes," Bishop told her. "I'm a-goin'

tude, she hurried back to the cabin.

TO BE CONTINUED.

"That's yore money! It's all that."

"They both make a guess at it when cotton is sold. Father calls it 'lumpthe lump. But he's all right, and I lock for an instant, then he moved toing' the thing, and usually Pole gets wish we could do more for him. Fa- ward her, his lips hanging, his eyes ther was really thinking about helping protruding. him in some substantial way when the crash came"-

"Thar!" broke in Daniel, with a gurto myse'f jest now that ten minutes wouldn't pass 'fore Craig an' his bu'st up would be mentioned."

"We have been at it, off and on, all day," said Miller, with a low laugh. anything I ever encountered."

"Do you know why?" asked Abner seriously, just as Pole Baker came through the dining room and leaned bull story when I see"against the door jamb facing them. "It's money."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that!" protested wouldn't say that."

"Well, I would, an' do," said Abner, in the full tone of decision. "I know he's got it!"

"Well, yo're wrong thar, Uncle Ab," said Pole, striding forward and sinking into a chair. "You've got as good judgment as any man I ever run across. thought like you do once. I'd 'a' tuck my oath that he had it about two hoars by sun this evenin', but I kin swear he hain't a cent of it now."

"Do you mean that, Pole?" Abner stared across the wide hearth at him fixedly.

was beginning to smile mysteriously. to git some women out of a burnin' "He did have it, but he hain't got it house they'd want to have the'r way now. I got it from 'im, blast his ugly about it. She read the order an' got pictur'!'

"You got it?" gasped Daniel. "You?" "Yes. I made up my mind he had it, then wanted to ax questions. That's table near Alan. "God bless you, old got her in a trot. She fetched it out boy." he said, "thar's yore money! It's purty quick, a-cryin' an' abusin' me an' hundreds." Breathlessly and with expanded eyes me to ride fast. I wanted to come heer Alan broke the string about the packet | fust, but 1 felt sorter sorry fer Craig, and opened it. "Great God!" he muttered.

stack of bills, but said nothing. Abner, 'im thar. He looked like he wanted to leaning forward, uttered a little, low | hug me. He says Winship wasn't much laugh.

"You-you didn't kill 'im, did you, Pole, old boy-you didn't, did you?" he cabbage on the $25,000." asked.

"Didn't harm a hair of his head," said Pole. "All I wanted was Alan's money, an' thar it is!"

hoss six ears o' corn." he fumed. know, beca'se I counted the cobs. The hoss had licked the trough clean an' gnawed the ends o' the cobs. The idea ' starvin' my stock right before my"-"Oh, Alfred, what do you think has happened?" his wife broke in. "We've got the bank money back! Pole Baker managed somehow to get it. He's goin' to tell about it now. Come on in!" Bishop closed the door behind him. He fumbled with the chain and pad-

"I'll believe my part o' that when"-"But," she cried, opening the gate for him to pass through, "the money's gling laugh. "I've won my bet. I bet thar in the house on the table; it's been counted. I say it's thar! Don't you believe it?"

The old man moved through the gate mechanically. He paused to fasten it with the iron ring over the two posts. "The truth is it makes me madder than But after that he seemed to lose the power of locomotion. He stood facing her, his features working.

"I'll believe my part o' that cat-an'-

"Well, come in the house, then," she beca'se"-nodding a greeting to Pole cried. "You kin lay yore hands on it along with the others-"it's beca'se you an' count it. It's an awful big pile, an' know in reason that he's got that nothin' less than fifty dollar bills." Grasping his arm, she half dragged, half led him into the house. Enter-Miller, in the tone of a man of broad ing the sitting room, he strode to the experience in worldly affairs. "I table and, without a word, picked up the package and opened it. He made an effort to count the money, but his tingers seemed to have lost their cunning and he gave it up. "It's all there." Miller assured him,

"and it's your money. You needn't bother about that."

Bishop sat down in his place in the chimney corner, the packet on his knees, while Pole Baker modestly and not without touches of humor recounted his experiences.

"The toughest job I had was managin' the woman." Pole laughed. "You kin always count on a woman to be

"He hain't got it, Uncle Ab." Pole contrary. I believe ef you was tryin' white about the gills an' screamed, low, so nobody wouldn't heer 'er, an'

an' it deviled me so much that I de- the female of it. She knowed in reason termined to have it by hook or crook | that Craig was dead fixed an' couldn't ef it killed me or put me in hock the git out until she complied with the inrest o' my life." Pole rose and took a structions, but she wanted to know all packet wrapped in brown paper from about it. Then I told 'er she'd be arunder his rough coat and laid it on the rested fer holdin' the money, an' that all thar. I counted it. It's in fifties by turns. As soon as the money left 'er hands, though, she begun to beg an' went an' let 'im out. He was the gladdest man to see me you ever looked Miller sprang up and looked at the at. He thought I was goin' to leave > to blame. They both got in deep water speculatin', an' Craig was tempted to

> When Pole had concluded, the group sat in silence for a long time. It looked as if Bishop wanted to openly thank Pole for what he had done, but he had | Mr. Bishop. Ah, that's what ready | good an' holy, you sha'n't!"

door holding two of the youngest dren by their hands. "He won't take my advice, Mr. Bishop," she said. "I jest rub a little lamp oil on my face an' hands, an' they don't tetch me."

Pole grunted and looked with laughing eyes at the old man. "She axed me t'other night why I'd quit kissin' 'er," he said. "An' I told 'er I didn't keer any more fer kerosene than the mosquitoes did." Mrs. Baker laughed pleasantly as she brought out a chair for Bishop and invited him to sit down. He complied, twirling his riding whip in his hand. From his position, almost on a level with the floor, he could see the interior of one of the rooms. It was almost bare of furniture. Two opposite corners were occupied by crude bedsteads; in the center of the room was a cradle made from a soapbox on rockers sawed from rough poplar boards. It had the appearance of having been in use through several generations. Near it stood a spinning wheel and a three legged stool. The sharp steel spindle gleamed in the firelight from the big log and mud chimney. "What's the news from town, Mr.

Bishop?" Pole asked awkwardly, for it struck him that Bishop had called to talk with him about some business and was reluctant to introduce it. "Nothin' that interests any of us, I reckon, Pole," said the old man, "except that I made that investment in Shoal Cotton factory stock." "That's good," said Pole, in the tone of anybody but a man who had never invested a dollar in anything. "It's all hunkey, an' my opinion is that it 'll never be wuth less."

"I did heer, too," added Bishop, "that It was reported that Craig had set up a little grocery store out in Texas, nigh the Indian Territory. Some thinks that Winship 'll turn up thar an' jine 'im, but a body never knows what to believe these days."

"That shore is a fact," opined Pole. "Sally, that corn bread's a-burnin'. Ef you'd use less lamp oil, you'd smell better.'

Mrs. Baker darted to the fireplace, raked the live coals from beneath the cast iron oven and jerked off the lid in a cloud of steam and smoke. She turned over the pone with the aid of a case knife and then came back to the door.

"Fer the last month I've had my eye on the Bascome farm," Bishop was saying. "There's a hundred acres even, some good bottom land and upland an' in the neighborhood o' thirty acres o' good wood. Then that's a five room house, well made an' tight, an' a barn, cowhouse an' stable."

"Lord! I know the place like a book," said Pole, "an' it's a dandy investment, Mr. Bishop. They say he offered it fer tifteen hundred. It's wuth two thousand. You won't drap any money by buyin' that property, Mr. Bishop. I'd hate to contract to build jest the house an' well an' outhouses fer a thousand."

"I bought it," Bishop told him. "He let me have it fer a good deal less 'n fifteen hundred, cash down."

"Well, you made a dandy trade,

"Mind mind what you say, Sally!" ordered Pole from the depths of his fighting emotion. "Mind what you say!"

The woman looked at Bishop. Her glance was on fire.

"Yes, I want it-I want it!" she cried. "I ain't goin' to lie. I want it more right now than I do the kingdom of heaven. I want it e we have a right to it. Oh, I don't know!" She dropped her head in her lap and began to sob. Bishop stood up. He moved toward her in a jerky fashion and laid his hand on the pitifully tight knot of hair at the back of her head. "Well, it's yores," he said. "Alan thought Pole would raise a kick about it, an' me an' him had it made out in yore name, so he couldn't tetch it. It's yores, Sally Ann Baker. That's the way it reads." The woman's sobs increased, but they were sobs of unbridled joy. With her apron to her eyes she rose and hurried into the house.

The eyes of the two men met. Bishop spoke first:

"You've got to give in, Pole," he said. "You'd not be a man to stand betwixt yore wife an' a thing she wants as bad as she does that place, an' by all that's enough to be born already married to the late inventor of Tory Democracy. You very frequently hear young lalies who ought to know better say things like this: "Father is going to ake Eva and I to the theatre." One has even seen a sentence like this in print, but it is obviously wrong. You would not say, "Father is going to take I to the theatre." And though Va., has given out a letter he has re- and there its waters will be diverted you are polite enough to put Eva before yourself, the verb "take" still governs the accusative, as those tiresome old grammarians call it, and therefore man that he would not believe the sto-Father is going to take Eva and me to the theatre" is the correct form. "Neither of us has been" sounds is perfectly correct, as "neither" must be singular, and not plural. In common speech we often put our prepositions at the end of the sentence, where they have no business, thus producing such an amazing query as this: "What would you like to be read to out of?" -London Answers.

The railroad car will carry as can carry.

ents. He said: "As these lands are among the first which have been surveyed in the part of the country they lie in, it is almost Will Hold a Whole River For Nearly needless to premise that none can exceed them in luxuriance of soil, or Pitt, up the Monongahela to Redstone, navigable branches of the Mononga- nadian side at Niagara. hela, it is thought the portage to Potomac may, and will, be reduced with- a power house, a machine shop, boiler in the compass of a few miles to the shop, office and boarding house. To great ease and convenience of the set- carry the parts from the shops to the tlers in transporting the produce of point where they will enter into the their lands to market. To which may large flume or pipe a temporary railbe added, that as patents have now ac- road will be built along the route of tually passed the seals for the several the flume to handle the steel. It is tracts here offered to be leased, set- such a mammoth contract that to build joy the lands in peace and safety, not- months. withstanding the unsettled counsels respecting a new colony on the Ohio: and as no right money is to be paid for these lands, and guitrent of two shillings sterling a hundred, demandable some years hence only, it is highly presumable that they will always be held upon a more desirable footing than where both these are laid on with a very heavy hand. And it may not be amiss further to observe, that if the scheme for establishing a new government on the Ohio, in the manner talked of, should ever be effected, these must be among the most valuable lands in it, not only on account of the goodness of soil, and the other advantages above enumerated, but from their contiguity to the seat of government, which more than probable will be fixed at the mouth of the Great Kanhawa."-Washington Star.

TILLMAN EXPLAINS .- W. E. King, a Turkish-Bath manager, of Norfolk, ceived from Senator Tilman with ref-The story is that King wrote Mr. Tillry until it was confirmed by the senator himself, and in reply he is said to have sent the following in an auto-clumsy somehow, but, nevertheless, it graph letter from Trenton, S. C., under date of September 1:

"All the hullabaloo which has been kicked up recently had for a foundation the fact that I lost a card case containing passes over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy system which and as these are broken in we are able I had never used. I notified the rail- to make better time. You know a new much as twenty teams of horses could the use of such courtesies has influhaul, and the great ocean steamers will enced my actions or utterances. A til they are ready to do the work of til they are ready to do the work of veterans."-Col. W. A. Turk ir intertransport as much at 400 railroad cars man who can be bought with a pass veterans." can be bought with money. My opin- view with Charlotte News.

AN EIGHTEEN FOOT PIPE.

"Help us! Tramps have captured

At no time did any of the gangs of Six Thousand Feet.

Steel is the material to be used by convenience of situation, all of them the Ontario Power company in the lying upon the banks either of the construction of its proposed big flume Ohio or Kanhawa, and abounding on the Canadian side at Niagara Falls. with fine fish and wild fowl of various This flume will be one of the largest kinds, as also in most excellent mead- steel pipes in the world. It will have ows, many of which (by the bountiful a diameter of 18 feet and will be 5,880 hand of nature) are, in their present feet long. The steel plates from which state, almost fit for the scythe. From it will be made have a thickness of every part of these lands water car- half an inch and in putting them toriage is now had to Fort Pitt, by an gether over 200 tons of rivets will be easy communication, and from Fort used. Its diameter is so large that it would be impossible to put it together vessels of convenient burden, may and at any machine shop and ship it to do pass continually; from whence, by Niagara, and so a temporary plant for means of the Cheat river, and other building it will be erected on the Ca-

This temporary plant will consist of tlers on them may cultivate and en- the flumes will take from ten to sixteen

> It was intimated some little time ago that the Ontario Power company would use California redwood in the construction of this flume. It was also intimated that other woods have favor, and the fact is a careful search was made and a thorough investigation made of other notable flumes carrying water in the country. These flumes are not so numerous in the east as they are in the west, but after all the research steel has been adopted as the material to be used. Advocates of wood claimed that a steel flume would rust and rot quicker than a flume made of wood; but the fact was evident that should the flume be built of wood steel hoops would have to be used to make it firm, and these stood just as much chance of going to pieces as the allsteel flume.

The flume will extend from the forebay of the Ontario Power company along the base of a bluff at the rear of Victoria Park to a point just below Table Rock, the famous view point, through penstocks to turbines to 'be erence to the latest free pass incident. installed in a power house at the water's edge. The flume, from an engineering point, will be well worth watching during the construction, for no doubt it will have important features.-Philadelphia Record.

BREAKING IN NEW ENGINES .- The Southern railway was also handicap-ped by not being able to secure loco-motives ordered long ago. The shops had more than they could do and our orders were delayed. Many new enroad so they could protect themselves from any impostors. My record in Washington will show whether or not curves and the grades and they are never assigned to passenger runs un-