The Decay Half Crown. John Percival, Bishop of Hereford, attended the International Peace coagress in Boston. A lifelong friend of the prelate's said of him with a smile: When Dr. Percival lived in Birmingham he went one Sunday to preach in a village on the Humber.

"The village church was small, and the collection. This person, an aged up and down the aisles with the colinto the chancel and advanced to lay congregation he did a dreadful thing. From the collection, which was unusually generous, he took a silver half crown, and this coin he slipped quietly into his pocket.

"No one had seen him but Dr. Percival. Dr. Percival was horrified, but he said nothing. As he preached the perfidious old man sat and listened with a righteous air. The minister could scarcely refrain from denouncing
