ALEARTHANDELALEART

THE NEGRO AND THE SOUTH .- We note the following in the State of September 28th:

"A meeting of negroes in Fort Mill, S. C., last Sunday was held in honor at 8 o'clock. of Capt. S. E. White(who erected a demonstration was a sharp contrast to that shown when the monument was unveiled, there being then only 25 negroes present. Two negro speakers were present for the occasion and both gave sound advice to their race, advising the negro that his only hope lay in the south and the southern white man. That the south contributed more for his advancement intellectually and otherwise in one year than the north did in ten years. Both speakers condemned assault and claimed that when a negro died for assault on a white woman he died justly. They also endorsed the separation of white and blacks in railway and street car service and claimed that the negro had no right to protest so long as he was no ri receiving the same accommodations. This advice is timely and sound doctrine and if the negro race had a few more such leaders to direct its course and point out the way for its race the negro would see in a few years the folly of his way and become as he should, a peaceful and law-abiding citizen, free from the avarice and crime that now stain his history as a race and as an individual."-Clifton Chron-

HAYNE TALKS COTTON .- A special to the Atlanta Constitution from New Orleans says

Frank B. Hayne, the noted cotton bull operator, returned to New Orleans today, after a three months' absence on the floor of the New York cotton exchange, declared that the bull pool now operating to raise the price of cotton is the richest pool ever organized in America, and is amply able to do what it has set out to accom-

Hayne's statements regarding the pool have broken the mystery which surrounded the new aggregation which expects to put cotton at the top notch. Heretofore the greatest secrecy has been maintained regarding every detail of the pool's personnel and movements, and even Mr. Hayne was not ready to give the whole matter to the public. He stated, however, that the pool was not composed of southern men although many New Orleans men, he declared are very bullish on cotton. Mr.

Hayne would not admit nor deny that he was in the pool himself, but stated that his ideas were in line with the ideas of those in the deal, which was that cotton is cheap at the present price, and that during no month of the coming year will the staple sell for less than 10 cents. Hayne estimates the crop at 10,500,-000 bales. The demand, he says, will FAIR PRICE FOR COTTON .- The British cotton spinners say through Pres-with American cotton planters. All the

with American cotton planters. All the ident McAra that they have no quarrel former want, says Mr. McAra, is 8 cent cotton. He seems to expect the New England spinners to join him in the demand because the cost of the carriage of cotton to the New England mills is as great as the cost of carriage by sea to Lancashire. The spinners, whether gratified by a return to 8-cent cotton. The grower is not well rewarded when cotton sells at 8 cents. In this respect Mr. McAra is misinformed. In no season is 8-cent cotton reasonably remunerative. Ten-cent cotton leaves elever margin of profit in the hands of the farmer, but 8-cent cotton does not, and the demand for a return to 8-cent cotton can not be granted. It would mean a serious reduction in the crop, sire smaller crops of raw cotton. If the price of cotton could be established at ten cents the best possible results would be obtained. The farmer would secure a satisfactory profit and the cotton held on their farms the same as if the cotton were stored in a warehouse in town. Write or call at my office for rates of insurance and other information. secure a satisfactory profit, and he would proceed to make all the cotton world needs, and the spinner would simply base the price of his goods on the price he paid for raw cotton. Why then should not the price be ten, in-stead of eight, cents?—Birmingham RECORD BREAKING COTTON DELIV-FRY.—Under the heading "Price forces Hoadley to buy and pay for 130,000 bales," The New York Evening Journal of September 30, says in part: The Hoadley syndicate in cotton and its friend were forced to accept and pay for 130,000 bales of actual cotton at the market price of $715,000. That is the second largest delivery ever made in New York. It was exceeded two years ago when an attempt was made to break the cor-ner of W. P. Brown and Frank Hayne. The delivery was planned by Theodore H. Price, the bear leader. It was believed that the Hoadley people would be unable to pay and the market would collapse. The delivery of this vast amount of cotton almost cleans up the stock in There are on hand 160,000 bales that can be delivered. Hoadley comes into possession of practically the entire supply. Mr. Hoadley was seen at his home this evening, and after reading the foregoing stated that he and his associates had taken this cotton by reason of his absolute confidence in assurances given by Harvie Jordan that the growers of the south would live up to their agreement to hold for a minimum of eleven cents.

JUST A LITTLE SORE.-Referring to what it calls the College Fiasco, the Sumter Item in its issue of yesterday says among other things: Clinton retains the college, upon which she undoubtedly has a strong moral claim, and it is to be hoped that the next time the board of trustees find the college in need of monthey think Clinton should furnish they will say to Clinton in all candor, "the college needs $20,000 or $50,000 or whatever the necessity of the case demands, and you must furnish it. If you cannot or will not say so now or forever after hold your peace." If Clinton refuses to comply with their demands, the way the block to be knocked down to will then be open to put the college the highest bidder. It is unfortunate that the misapprehension of the situation was created, for it has aroused unpleasant feeling and instead of the college being strengthened as a result of the agitation it has lost friends here and elsewhere. Clinton retains her college but it will remain Clinton for many years to come-at least until Sumter and other communities forget their soreness over the false and unexpectedly disagreeable position they were led into assuming.

REPORT OF THE GINNERS .- The census bureau at Washington on yester-day issued a bulletin showing the quantity of cotton of the growth of 1905 to September 25 to be 2,358,031 bales. The figures by states are fol-

The Past and the Future.

You may not know a great deal about what the future of an individual about what the future of an individual or corporation will be but if you have any faith in any promises that your neighbor or a corporation may make you is it not based on your knowledge of that neighbor's or corporation's past record for honest, clean, dealing with yourself and others? Is there any way to did to the future except by the past? o judge the future except by the past? While there are in the neighborhood of 100 life insurance companies doing, or trying to do, business in the United States today on the old line, legal reserve plan there is not one that has as long and clean a record for fair, as long and clean a record for fair, honest dealing with every policy holder as has the Mutual Benefit, and although old in years it is the youngest of all the companies when it comes to modern methods. It adheres to its original principle of doing business, because the management has always kept in sight the fact that business principles are the same today as before the flood—they never change. Watch Repairing

Watch repairing is always delicate work and to be satisfactory must-be done just right—otherwise there is no use to have it done, because the watch will thereafter run either too slow or too fast and everybody knows how annoying an unreliable time-piece is. I do lots of Watch Repair-ing on fine watches and cheap watchs and do just as careful work on the cheap timepisce as on the most ex-pensive. I do such good work that my Absolute Guarantee goes with every job to run—barring accidents, like a fall, etc.—for One Year. If your a fall, etc.—for One Year. It your watch doesn't go just right I can make it right for you. My charge will be according to the amount of work I do, but will always be moderate. Give me your Watch work—I'll give you first-class work for your money. I also repair Clocks, Jewelry, etc.

THE PEOPLE

Of this state are opening their eyes the fact that the SECURITY LIFE AND ANNUITY is issuing the most attractive line of policies ever offered to the people of South Carolina, and that on account of higher interest rates in the South and economy of management the company is making a big saving in the cost of life insurance. There are thousands in South Caro lina who are shipping their money to the north when they can get the same thing or better at home for much less
