The case of the United States vs. Benjamin D. Greene and Julian F. Gaylor, the two consuls charged with conspiracy in connection with the generally accepted interpretation of the Monroe doctrine, the United States handicapped in any desire they might have to make him behave and at the same time, he knows that this government cannot afford to let any other government give him such a trouncing as he deserves.

We have a letter from Columbia calling our attention to the fact that the committee on claims has printed a bill providing that election notices shall be printed in only one newspaper in a county, and suggesting that we write to our representatives and call their attention to the alleged injustice of the measure.

covered by an advertisement in a single newspaper; but in the case of other counties it is necessary to use two or more papers. We don't think that the publication of this or any other advertisement should contemplate anything other than carrying information to the people, and well general advertising is the better to that basis it will do well.

The Yorkville Enquirer.

YORKVILLE, S. C.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1906.
