V. HUNT, D. P. A. Charleston, S. C. Atlanta, Ga. Clubmakers For The Enquirer.

As is pretty generally understood it is the rule of The Enquirer to discontinue all subscribers at the expiration of the time paid for. The reason for this rule hardly needs explanation. It is business. After we have sent the paper during the period specified in paper during the period specified the subscription price we have filled our part of the contract, and we do not feel warranted in assuming the right to try to bind the subscribers into a new contract without his consent. And that is not all. It is a violation of the postal law to continue sending a paper to a subscriber after the expiration of his subscription period, and for violation of this law the publisher is liable to lose his second class postal privilege. Already quite a large per cent of the subscriptions which expire in January next have been renewed through club-makers and otherwise. There are quite a number of others that have not been renewed. Of these there are some no doubt who do not want the paper another year. Their subscriptions will be stopped promptly upon expiration. There are others who do not desire to miss an issue, and for the benefit of these we gives below a list of club-makers who have either already commenced sending in names for next year, or who wi'' do so on the request
