- Washington, March 4: Declaring that the practices of the New York cotton exchange were intolerable and that the cotton growers of the south determined to use all lawful means to end them, Mr. Sims, of Tennessee, today in the house of representatives advocated the passage of landial agent of Greenville Female Roderick the Burleson bill prohibiting the use college. of the mails, telegraph and telephone service in dealing in "cotton futures" where the delivery and acceptance of actual cotton is not intended. He said that if there was any good left in the New York cotton exchange "it was so overshadowed by the bad as to make it desirable to wipe out the good rather than to longer tolerate the bad effects of its reprehensible practices." Mr. Sims asserted that there was no legitimate benefit to the cotton industry of the United States in any form growing out of the transactions on the cotton exchanges of this country as now conducted. Dealing in cotton futures was denounced as an "unmitigated evil" with no compensating advantages. He said the largest crop of cotton ever grown in the United States was in round numbers 13,500,-000 bales, and yet in the same year this crop was grown the sales for futhis crop was grown the sales for fudelivery of cotton on the New York exchange were between ninety and one hundred million bales; that not exceeding 5 per cent of these sales were in any way connected with actual cotton transactions; that fully 95 per cent of all the sales of futures on the cotton exchange in New York were purely speculative and would fall under the ban of the law if the Burleson bill were passed. He said the grades of cotton that were delivered on contracts in the cotton exchange in New York were such as to offer a premium on lowgrade, undesirable cotton. The result was that a large amount of this class of unmerchantable cotton ac cumulated in the warehouses in New York instead of going into consumption and was delivered and redelivered on contract. The effect of this practice, he said, was to cause holders of contracts of any particular month to sell at any price before the month of 9.95; Dec. 9.96.. delivery arrived, rather than take this lowgrade, undesirable cotton that could be used in no other way than redelivery on some other future cotton contract. "The logical and praceffect," he declared, "is to depress the price of futures for the nearest month, which in turn depresses the price of actual or spot cotton. He charged that by the successful manipulation of the future market the near or immediate spot price of cotton was controlled. - Washington, March 3: A careful canvass of the senate to ascertain the sentiment in regard to the Aldrich currency bill indicates that when the bill comes to a vote there will be more Democratic senators recorded for it than Republican senators against it Since the speech by Senator Smith, of Michigan, in opposition to the railroad bond feature of the measure, it has been stated persistently that there is a Republican deflection that endangers the passage of the bill. Senmith today announced that he will vote for the bill. He will go on record as favoring the amendment to eliminate railroad bonds as security for the emergency circulation, but if this is lost, as is probable, the failure of his effort will not turn him against the measure as a whole. Smith takes the position that "it is the Several Aldrich bill or nothing." dates for a vote have been suggested from time to time, but for one reason or another it has been necessary to postpone the time. The reason for the delay as stated on the floor today by Senator Aldrich is that several senators who desire to speak have been compelled to postpone their remarks by other business or illness in preparing their argument. It appears now that not more than half a dozen Republicans will vote against the meas Of these Senators Nelson, La Follette and Hepburn are already or record. They may make speeches it opposition. Senator Clapp, the colleague of Senator Nelson, and Senator Stephenson, the colleague of Senator LaFollette, are said to be in favor of the bill. Senator Borah, of Idaho, is against the railroad bond feature, but has not decided how he will vote on the bill. Five Democratic senators the bill. Five Democratic senators have signified their intention to vote for its passage.

MORE POWERFUL THAN THE DREAD-NAUGHT.—The new battleship South Carolina, now being built, is equal in every respect to the great English ship every respect to the great English ship Dreadnaught, according to a statement made to the senate committee on naval affairs by Admiral W. L. Capps, chief of the bureau of construction and repair of the navy department.
Comparing the Dreadnaught, with ter heavy guns, and the American battle-ship South Carolina, with eight big guns, Admiral Capps surprised the committee by declaring that in action he would prefer to command the South Carolina. He claimed that while the Dreadnaught had ten guns and the South Carolina eight of large calibre, the Dreadnaught could bring into ac-tion at one time no more than eight, and, therefore, the broadside capacity of the South Carolina was equal to that of the Dreadnaught. He explained further that the South Carolina was seventy feet less in length and therefore, offered a smaller target, and that the South Carolina's armor was as good as that of the British bat-In view of this statement Admira Capps had recommended ships of the Delaware type. He replied that he considered the Delawere much superior to the Dreadnaught.

When it is considered that the Dreadnaught is now considered the greatest fighting ship in commission and that Admiral Capps is an authority on battleship constructed, it may be seen what a tremendous and powerful ship the South Carolina will be when comto make a careful, impartial investiga-tion have become convinced that the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company is in a class all by itself when the matter of caring for the interests of its members or policy holders are con-cerned. It is a fact that the entire record of all life insurance companies can be obtained by any who desire the information, and a comparison of any or all of them with the Mutual Benefit shows that none have furnished as much for the money paid as has the Mutual Benefit. It has always been conservative, economical and at the same time more liberal than others in the matter of guarantees. Its new policies have caused would-be competitors everywhere to sit up and take notice. The new contract is so liberal that even experienced insurance men are amazed and had a company without so long and clean a record—63 years—for carrying out every agreement it ever made to the letter, offered such contracts they would have been inclined to doubt its ability, but they all know that the Mutual Benefit never leaps before it looks. You have a perfect right to buy life insurance from any company you desire, but there is not a shadow of doubt of the fact that if you look into the Mutual Benefit and compare it with others that you will enlist in its army of 187,-500 members.
