The Yorkville Enquirer.

Entered at the Postoffice in Yorkville as Mail Matter of the Second Class.

TUESDAY, MAY 26, 1908.

LITTLE Joe Brown is making quite a fuss in his campaign for governor of Georgia.

It was given out on Thursday that congress would adjourn on Saturday; but when Saturday came it was clear that an adjournment could not be reached for several days.

The New York courts are not yet willing to release Harry Thaw from prison. At Poughkeepsie yesterday Justice Morehouse filed a decision declaring that the commitment of Thaw to Matteawan was constitutional and that Thaw would be a menace to the public if set free.

A DISPATCH from Rome, Ga., says that in obedience to the advice proffered by the Farmers' Union, they are now planting ten per cent of the acreage they had planted in cotton.

WHILE no one is likely to accuse the Enquirer of being insensible to the importance of the creation of new industrial enterprises of any kind, we desire to say that the erection of a church building like that just completed by the Baptists of Flint Hill, is one of the most unmistakable evidences of real progress and prosperity that we are able to mention.

EDITOR DeCamp is to publish the Ledger daily during the meeting of the Press association, and rely upon the editors for "coop." He thinks that with so many editors available he ought to be able to print a dandy good paper.

JAMES A. HOYT, the Columbia correspondent of the News and Courier, writes Bleese and Rosdale credit for the defeat of Gonzales, first as delegate and then as alternate to the Democratic national convention at Denver.

THE first night was an eventful one for the young people of Forest Hill and the surrounding country, as the closing exercises of the school were held at that time at the home of Miss Sallie Campbell.

There is nothing the matter with prohibition and there is nothing the matter with the ability of our people to enforce the prohibition laws, if they only would.

While a good deal of first-class work has been done in running down moonshine distillers and a certain amount of the good effect of work of this kind is undone by the nambypamby way of dealing with other offenders who are just as objectionable.

Somebody said long ago, "beware of the first drink," and just what this the first drink fully understands.

In the enforcement of the liquor laws—that is, if prohibition be the object—there is no room for the exercise of any discretion, and there should be no temporizing.
