Defective Flues
Fire insurance statistics prove that three-fourths of all fires originate from defective stove flues. Heretofore many of the insurance companies have been accepting dwellings insuring them where bricks in the stove flue were set on edge and also where the flues were used, with extra charge. On November 10, 1910, a rule was promulgated which provides that in future the rate on all buildings, including dwellings, where there is any other than a standard flue or flues, there shall be an additional charge of 25 cents on the $100 cash, which means $2.50 for each $1,000 insurance. Those who have no insurance and desire to reduce the chance of having their buildings burned are advised, if they have other than standard flues, to have them torn out and standardized immediately and those who have insurance and expect to continue to carry it are also advised to have their flues standardized in order to reduce their chance of being burned out and at the same time keep their rate from being raised when their policies are renewed. The foregoing statement is made for the information of all property owners, including my own clients, and as I am paying for the space in which it is made, do not feel called upon to go to the additional expense of describing what's meant by a "standard flue," but will take pleasure in informing you if you will ask me about it.
