- A measure that may revolutionize the present shipping and export of cotton in bales, is being discussed by the Georgia Bankers' association, in a circular sent out to the farmers, ginners, cotton seed oil men, cotton exports and compressers of that state. It calls attention to the resolution recently passed at a meeting of the steamship companies and railroad es. Under these resolutions of the railroads, agents are instructed to note on all bills of lading, the exact condition of the cotton in regard to damp-ness, lack of proper bagging, weather stain and similar conditions. "It is of grave import that you exert effort within your power to see that all cotton within your territory conforms to these rules; to see that the bale when ginned is the proper and stand-ard size; and that it is kept at all times under cover and not subject to rain and other weather hazards, and that sufficient bagging of good quality be used."

— During the delivery of a lecture at Hendersonville, N. C., Sunday, Sec-retary of State William J. Bryan paus-ed in the course of his lecture to state that he is compelled to deliver chatau-qua lectures in order to supplement his government salary, which he de-clared is not sufficient to meet his ex-penses. "As this is my first chautauqua lecture since becoming a member of the cabinet," said Secretary Bryan, "it may not be out of place to say that I find it necessary to lecture in order to supplement the salary which I receive from the government. As I have lectured for 18 years, this meth-od of adding to my income is the most natural one to which to turn and I regard it as extremely legitimate. I did not think it improper to go from the chautauqua platform into a presidential race, and if I had been elected, I would have thought it no stepping down to return to the lecture plat-form. These meetings enable m to keep in touch with the people." Thousands of people were present to hear the secretary of state. - Secretary Garrison on last Friday

- Washington, July 14: Represen tatives of the 80,000 conductors and trainmen of eastern railways who have voted to strike for higher wages and managing officers of the railroads agreed at the White House today to submit their differences to arbitration under the provisions of the Newlands Clayton act, which President Wilson and congressional leaders promised to make law by tomorrow night. In the meantime no strike will be declared officials of the employes' brotherhoods agreeing to an armistice until Wedesday night. This victory for arbitration over the strike was the result of a two-hour conference at the White House between President Wilson and congressional leaders, both Republicans and Democrats, the presidents and managers of the railroads and representatives of the Brotherhoods of Trainmen and Conductors. The agreement not only averted, temporarily least, the strike which threatened to tie up railroad traffic generally in the east, but smoothed out differences of opinion that had arisen in both house as to the composition of the board o mediation and provided a permanent commission to deal with railroad dis-

- Washington, July 14: A proposa outlined by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo in a statement several days ago amending the administration currency bill's provisions for refunding Federal two per cent circulation bonds by the issue of three per cent bonds, precipitated a heated discussion in the conference of members of the house banking and currency committee today. After three hours' fruitless argumen the conference adjourned tonight with the members in a rather excited frame of mind and the McAdoo proposal still pending. Although the refunding section of the bill had not been reached in the consideration of the measure, Chairman Glass today offered the McAdoo proposal as an amendment. In a statement tonight Mr. Glass said the "plan was designed to clarify the meaning of the bill as to the disposition to be made of United States two per cent bonds and to give assurance to the holders of such bonds, that the government has no purpose to abro-gate the circulation privilege attached to them until the end of the 20-year period provided for in the refunding were found guilty by a Chester county

jury Saturday evening of the murder on April 23, last, of John Q. Lewis, a respectable Confederate veteran and farmer of that county, at his home near Cornwell. The four negroes were sentenced to die in the electric chair at the state penitentiary on September 26. The conviction was seured principally through the evidence of Monk Stevenson, who was a member of the gang, who made a confession after the detectives had practically foretold the crime on him. The case attracted wide-spread interest throughout the state and especially in Chester county, the trial being attended by large crowds. Solicitor Henry and A. L. Gaston, Esq., represented the state, and W. H. Newbold, Esq., was attorney for the defense. Briefly, Stevenson's story was to the effect that he had gotten word from Meeks Griffin a few days previous to the tragedy that "there was a man 'we 'lowed to rob;' " and that "three other fellows were going." On the night of the murder, April 23, he ("Monk") and the other defendants, one of them carrying three quarts of whiskey, had proceeded to within a short distance of Mr. Lewis' home, he said, where he was told to wait, as he couldn't run on account of being a cripple. The other four negroes went on to the house and did the killing. A short found at a negro revival and was traced to Stevenson, who had "swap-ped" it a number of different times.
