The Yorkville Enquirer

Entered at the Postoffice at Yorkville, N. Y., as Second Class Matter of the Second Class.

YORK, N. Y., C. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1915.

It is estimated that nitrate of potash is now worth something over $300 per ton.

We have been talking and talking about improved markets and now we want to get them.

We agree most heartily with the suggestion that the best thing to do with the surplus stocks of liquor in the dispensaries is to pour them into the gutter.

A farmer who fails to raise his own supplies is quite foolish; but until something is done to improve market conditions, he is foolish to raise a surplus of supplies.

It seems to be admitted that about the only hope the Allies have of conquering the Germans is by starving them, and if this be a fact, the hope is rather a slim one.

The Christmas spirit is beginning to pervade the atmosphere, and a glorious spirit it is!
