Keller, of Yorkville, No. 1, and the following sisters also survive: Mesdames Edward Landrum, Annie McFarland, Mrs. S. Smalling, Grand Junction, Tenn.; Sam Youngblood, Yorkville No. 6; Mrs. J. C. Dickson, Yorkville No. 1, and J. W. McFarland was for many years a member of the First Presbyterian church of Yorkville, and was held in high esteem by numerous friends and acquaintances.

Chester County Man Kills Self

Chester Reporter, Dec. 20: Mr. W. L. Fennell, a native of this county and son of Mrs. Fannie Fennell of East Lacey street, committed suicide yesterday morning at his home in Charlotte as the result of a mental health. Today a Charlotte Observer has in this about the sad occurrence: In a fit of melancholia brought on by his embittered condition, the result of health, which he had suffered for more than a year, Mr. W. L. Fennell, 39 years old, committed suicide yesterday morning at his home near the North mill by shooting himself through the brain with a rifle. Mrs. Fennell was at home at the time, getting breakfast and she rushed into the bedroom as soon as she heard the report. Her husband was lying in bed, with a bullet wound in the forehead, and she picked up the rifle, placed the muzzle above his right ear and then pulled the trigger with his thumb. His death followed within a few moments.

Mr. Kirkpatrick Wins

The North Carolina supreme court has reversed the court below in the case of J. W. Kirkpatrick and Kate Kirkpatrick against the Piedmont and Northern Traction company. The complaint in the case was because of alleged damage to residence property of the plaintiffs by the raising of the bed of the railroad on the street. The suit was for $2,000. The traction company secured a writ of mandamus to prevent the street railway it also had a right to the street. The supreme court holds that the character of the work to be done is determined by the character of the business it does and as the Piedmont and Northern road hauls freight it should properly be treated as a common carrier. The court also holds that the question as to whether the fee of a street in the town or the fee of a property owner is not material, but the abutting property owner has such proprietary interest as will enable him to prevent the wrongful use of the street. The effect of the court decision is to give the plaintiffs and all who may have similarly damaged the right to have a jury assess those damages.

Drowned in Broad River

Gaffney Ledger, Dec. 21: While his friends were going to some matches and kindling "wits" who had fallen to dry his clothes after he had fallen in Broad river, about a mile above the Ninety-Six Island dam, John Spurling, an iron worker, fell into the water and was drowned Saturday night about 9 o'clock. The body was recovered Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock by several parties. At an inquest held Sunday night by Coroner E. R. Parker, witnesses swore that Spurling was on the bank of the river. Mr. Owens, according to the coroner's inquest, was at the home of Mrs. J. H. Harris, near the river. Spurling came in and asked the way to Jet Davis's. Owens and Rufe Harris went out to Jet Davis's. When they found Marmon Moss, who said he wished to cross the river, Owens volunteered to take them. At the time they were on the river, Spurling was so drunk that he was not in a condition to continue the trip. When Owens and Harris were on the river, Spurling had fallen into the river but had managed to climb onto the point where the bridge crosses the ground slopes down to the river at such a steep grade that it is almost impossible for a man to keep his footing. After making several ineffective efforts to get Spurling up the hill Owens and Harris decided to take a fire as it was apparent that he was getting cold. They placed the drunk man in a safe position by a pine sapling stump and left; when they returned a short time later he had disappeared. Owens and Harris immediately began a search that proved unsuccessful. Sunday morning the bodies of Spurling and Marmon Moss were found. Spurling disappeared, and Sunday afternoon Marmon Moss found the body of Spurling in removing it from the water by Ed Upchurch.

Hockey at Winthrop

An unusual precedent was set at Winthrop last Saturday afternoon when the freshmen hockey team defeated the seniors and thus won the championship of the college. Hockey was only introduced at Winthrop during the present term and because of that fact all the classes were on an equal footing, the principal advantage of the higher classes being longer training in athletics. The freshmen team first defeated the "specials," and then the sophomores. The seniors already defeated the freshmen, and if the juniors had been able to defeat the freshmen, there would have been no occasion for the seniors to meet the freshmen and seniors. However, the freshmen had little difficulty in defeating the juniors. The matter was brought down to an issue between the freshmen and seniors. The game took place last Saturday afternoon with the entire student body in attendance. The freshmen team won by a score of 10 to 0. The freshmen team was backed by the freshmen, there was a lot of banter, deft and challenge on both sides preliminary to the game. The freshmen were the opposing lines of backers handed class yell at each other with vigor and spirit. Each goal was greeted by a chorus of yells and yells of encouragement that would have done credit to the rosters at a National League game. The freshmen went back to their rest lines at the end of the first half with the score standing 5 to 0 against the seniors. In the second half the freshmen scored ten goals, the seniors scored none. The freshmen were very enthusiastic in hugging and kissing, yelling and shouting their praises. The seniors were so tired that they were unable to defend against the freshmen. There were but a few spectators outside of the faculty and student body. Hockey is very similar to the old time game of shinny, but not quite so rough.

They All Look Good

There are over 250 so-called Old Line or "Legal Reserve" Life Insurance companies in business in the United States today, and 175 of them are less than 10 years of age. The agents of each of these companies claim, no doubt, that the particular company which they represent is the best in the business and issues the most liberal contract, etc. They do not appear to be concerned with the large majority could not do so but for the fact that the average insurer in buying life insurance, buys the policy holder's contract. The contract is old, strong, and well established and has a record, covering its entire career, for giving each policy holder a liberal contract.
