The council of four has agreed on most of the mandates for the former empire and is sending news of that the United States has been offered Armenia and Constantinople, with Great Britain getting the mandate for Palestine, France being the mandate for Syria and Cilicia, Italy for Adalia and Greece for Smyrna. The sultan of Turkey would like to see a capital probably at Bursa. Greek and Italian claims to the Dodecanese islands off Asia Minor have been given up by Italy during the war with Turkey over Tripoli.

night, and as an extra precaution; but as Commander Towers had gotten 300 miles out of his course in the fog, he was beyond touch of these vessels. As soon as it was fully realized that he was, the vessels began to bear toward him and he indicated location in a great semi-circle. Upon receiving news of the success of the NC-4, Harry G. Hawker and Frederick P. Raynham, who had for several weeks been waiting at St. Johns, Newfoundland, for a vessel suitable for a hop-off, determined to try it anyway. Raynham broke an axle of his starting truck and into the air and within six minutes was on his way for Ireland. Hawker and Raynham were in no way competing with the Americans. There was to be a non-stop flight clear across in competition for a prize of $50,000 cash offered by the U. S. Navy. Also, of course, if Hawker wins in his gamble with death he will get riches and fame as an airplane man to cross the ocean in the first.

The Yorkville Enquirer

Entered at the Postoffice at York as Mail Matter of the Second Class.

TUESDAY, MAY 20, 1919.

Europeans were the first to sail to America, but Americans were the first to fly to Europe.

But while the airship goes the faster while it is going, it has not yet made the time across that is made by a fast steamer.

The uncertainties of the airship are fully exemplified in the performance of the NC-4, which was to cross the ocean under a cloud and to the Azores in a blaze of glory.

There is bound to be more or less re-construction of this country along with the balance of the world, as the result of the war. Our own opinion is that there is more or less need for such re-construction; but at the same time we think that the harder each individual works at productive industry while the re-construction is going on the better he will fare.

The cotton conference in New Orleans on last Friday expressed itself as opposed to selling Germany another pound of cotton until she signs the peace treaty. This is a very patriotic feeling to have, and it is necessary, as this country is not likely to do business of any kind with Germany until after peace has been agreed upon.

Protesting against the trade restrictions in the economic terms of the peace treaty, Count Brockington-Rantzau, of the German legation in Washington, who introduced a concurrent resolution in the Florida house of representatives last Friday, with that object in view. The resolution provides that the federal secretary of agriculture be requested to recommend to congress and to the president the enactment of legislation to carry out the plans for a Sabbath day for the cotton growing states. The plan is endorsed by prominent cotton experts, scientists and economic entomologists. To carry out the proposed legislation would mean to prevent planting of cotton east of the Rocky Mountains in the boll weevil infested area. It is the purpose of the project, to provide for the accumulation of a supply of cotton and cotton products to meet market needs during the epidemic year, and to provide against induction of the boll weevil into the United States after the eradication of the pest. The plan makes it essential that it be under government jurisdiction, with the cotton growing states co-operating. The plan would be to have some year in advance so that enough cotton might be raised to tide the world over the Sabbath day. Stringent legislation would have to be perfected for accurate and complete growing of cotton in that year. Arrangements would have to be perfected for accurate and complete growing of cotton in that year. Arrangements would have to be perfected for accurate and complete growing of cotton in that year.

Something of a row has been stirred up through a proposal of the secretary of war to sell in Europe about $250,000,000 worth of American meat, bought from the packers for the use of the army. This sale represents the entire American production for a period of about two years. It is being charged that the sale was made abroad so as to prevent disturbance of the high prices in America, and a congressional investigation is threatened. One of the excuses given by the packers for the sale is that the meat was put up in plain, unattractive packages that it is unsuitable for the American market, which is accustomed to pretty labels and the like. The answering argument is that millions of Americans who helped pay for this meat with their taxes ought now to have the benefit of it at prices within the range of their ability to pay.

The time limit within which the German plenipotentiaries must sign the peace terms, which are going to be signed next Thursday. The treaty was given to the plenipotentiaries on Wednesday, May 7, and they were allowed fifteen days in which to make examinations and observations. A number of protests have already been submitted; but to these the Allies have paid no attention. There has been talk in Germany in the newspapers and among members of the government to the effect that Germany could not and would not sign the treaty; but this talk is regarded mainly as propaganda. The common belief in Paris is that the Germans will sign. There is very little concern about the matter, however, because in the event the treaty is not signed the Allies propose to immediately proceed to the occupation of the whole country.

One of the important incidents anticipated in connection with the opening of congress yesterday was the presentation of Victor L. Berger, Socialist, of Wisconsin, for membership, and the question of what congress would do. It will be remembered that Berger is under conviction for violation of the espionage act—for sedition utterances in connection with the war. He was elected to congress after his conviction. His seating will be opposed on several grounds, mainly because he is under conviction, and both Republicans and Democrats were expected to take the position that he is ineligible to membership in congress until he has answered the law. But also it is a fact that the offense for which he was convicted was of a political nature, and much consideration will have to be given to the proposition that since he was elected by his constituents in full knowledge of his status, to deny those citizens their right of choice will be an exceedingly grave matter.

Reports have been received of injury to the cotton crop as the result of the cool weather. In the last week many good stands of cotton had come to a good stand and was growing off nicely, the cold injuriously affected the plant at the roots and much cotton was killed outright.

News and other matter has been crowded out of today's issue of the Enquirer by advertisements which came in after it was too late to be included in the issue and which simply had to be accommodated. It is an unsatisfactory situation for the publishers, but they simply have not been able to help themselves. It is the present intention to make good in part by giving extra matter in the next paper, and the publishers are negotiating with the printer to make good in part by giving extra matter in the next paper.

WITHIN THE TOWN.

After due consideration, the various bids submitted for the purpose of the $50,000 bond issue offered by the town of Yorkville, the town council on last Friday decided in favor of the bid of Sidney Spitzer & Co., of Yorkville. This company offered a bonus of $400 for the issue of 50 cents.

BAGGING THE STILLS.

Six whisky distillers were captured in York county during the week ending last Saturday, two in Ebenezer township and four in Broad River township, and six men, all colored but one, were arrested in connection with the various outfits.

Magistrate Glenn and constable worked up the Ebenezer cases, and Sheriff Johnson got the Broad River cases, and Magistrate R. L. A. Smith had the lead in the Broad River cases, and the sheriff's office had more or less to do with the other cases.

The sheriff estimates that there are probably a hundred of these outfits in operation in different parts of the county. A large per cent of the operators are negroes; but a good many of them are white. The outfits are usually in the form of a moonshiner, for which an old time moonshiner would have scorned to be responsible. Indeed, it lacks a great deal of common sense to what the moonshiner designated as "singlings."

Although this stuff, which sells at $15 a gallon, is probably being made to a greater or less extent in every part of the county, just at the present time the Broad River township is being the authorities to have it on all other sections in the number of people engaged in the business.

HERE AND THERE.

John R. Blair, county demonstration agent, told Here and There, Friday, that he was down about Cornwall, Chester county a few days ago, and had been hearing stories of what small farmers in that vicinity are doing with thoroughbred Guernsey cattle and how the check is pleased with them. He said he visited Mr. McKee, along with the others. Mr. McKee is a small farmer, having only 20 acres, but he is an enthusiastic booster for thoroughbred cattle. He told Mr. Blair that he had a cow that he had bought from a neighbor and that she was about five years old and having several of her offspring he decided to sell her and valued the animal at $250. A Tennessee man, who had seen the cow and had had any cows he could sell. "Yes, I have one," said Mr. McKee. The visitor asked the price and was told that it would take $250 to buy the cow. The Tennessee man was an experienced trader and offered $225. The cow was sold and the check passed. Then the visitor said, "Well, sir, you certainly have a nice cow here, but you don't know how much you have given for it as quick as I did $225. I am going to take that cow back to Tennessee and I'll get not less than $275 to $400 for her."
