THE VALUE TO THE FARMER of having his truck equipped with heavy cord pneumatic tires has not been fully understood by him. Motor trucks must operate continuously in all weather. The oversize pneumatic grip a slippery road and prevent skidding. They permit speed, absorb road shocks, reduce fuel and repair bills, and make comfortable driving.

The thick, tough, broad-faced pneumatics on the Indiana Farm Truck wear long, insure greater traction surface, and in a sandy soil their buoyancy overcomes the heavy drag common to solid tires. Where solid tires would stall in snow and mud the pneumatics have no trouble. This cushioning feature is also planned to reduce the damage done to the truck and its loads by the severe vibrations and jars on solid tires. It can be loaded and driven in an open field and neither road nor weather condition affect its day-in and day-out usefulness.
