

Scrap and Facts.

Deciding an appeal taken by the president of Erskine college, at Due West, South Carolina asking that his powers be defined, the annual synod of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, in session at Rosemark, Tenn., Saturday, re-affirmed its previous action holding that all authority in administering the affairs of the college rested with the board of trustees of the institution. This stand was taken by the trustees at a recent meeting and was approved at Saturday's meeting of the synod.

Berry Boling, aged 30, white, alleged "mountain bad man," was lynched Saturday night at Huntsville, Tenn., when 50 armed men forced their way into the Scott county jail, seized Boling and hanged him to a tree a quarter of a mile away. Boling was charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary Jane Harness, aged 30, who was shot and killed at her home, May 8, 1920, by William H. Harness, killed by Boling about six months ago. The victim of the mob stood trial at the March term of circuit court for this murder but a mistrial resulted. He was captured May 4, given a presidential pardon and fled to the mountains in connection with the second murder and bound over to the next term of court without bond. Mrs. Harness was killed in the presence of Boling's mother, Mrs. Nancy J. Tolbert, aged 69, and his nephew, aged 11. She was a former sister-in-law of the mob's leader, the widow of John Boling when she married Harness.

Police Officer Oakes, of the Greensboro force, is held under $2,500 bond for court as result of the verdict returned by a corner's jury at 1 o'clock Saturday morning at Reidsville, N. C., following an all-night quest in the neighborhood of Greensboro. Oakes, a bootlegger, shot by pursuing officers after the murder of W. T. McCuiston, Greensboro police officer. Oakes said he fired several times, but did not know he hit, opening fire when he saw Robertson move as though he was shot. Oakes' name has been learned and who sat beside him in the pursuing car also shot at Robertson. This man has not been found and all that is known of him is that he is a traveling salesman. The jury is apparently this unknown man as partly responsible for Robertson's death. Carl Talley, sought for three days, is believed now to have escaped.

There have been some very serious developments in Upper Silesia during the past few days. The Poles, never having acquiesced in the proposed annexation of this territory to Germany through the League of Nations, have been waiting their opportunity. Last week while the country was but feebly garrisoned by Allied troops, mainly French and Italians, the Poles commenced taking possession with so-called irregular troops; but really regulars in disguise, largely contingents of the German army, friendly to the Poles, were in duty bound to resist the Polish invasion, and fought half-heartedly against overwhelming odds until forced to retire. Quite a number of Italians were killed in the fighting during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The Poles were able to enter several thousand troops and were able to force the Poles in check, notwithstanding the fact that their services were exceedingly distasteful to the French. A few British troops appeared on the scene. All Poland is in a ferment and indications are that the Allies are going to be forced to either send in fighting troops to drive the Poles out of Silesia or leave the job to the Germans, who seem to be real anxious to take care of the situation.

A verdict of manslaughter with recommendation for mercy, was returned by a jury in the court of general sessions at Raleigh, N. C., against E. M. Little, for the killing of J. H. Patterson, of Rowlesville last November 14. The case went to the jury last Saturday. Judge J. W. Bowman expected to pass sentence on Little this morning. It was announced, however, that the attorneys said they would appeal for a new trial. The verdict of the jury in this state carries a sentence of from two to 30 years. On the first ballot Saturday, after hearing arguments for more than six hours, the jury stood 10-2 for the death of the murderer. The jury was in the morning entered the court room with a compromise verdict. Little killed Patterson last November as the latter left the home of Mrs. Star Jackson, in his statement to the jury the defendant claimed he was in self defense. Little said to have gone through a marriage ceremony with Mrs. Jackson, an employee of his bank, but they had been separated when her parents learned he had been divorced from his second wife. Patterson's attention to the woman are said to have aroused Little's enmity, according to the state's evidence. Former Governor Cole Blaise made the closing argument for the defense while Mendel L. Smith spoke last for the state.

Washington, May 7: Announcement of President Harding's decision to have American representation on the supreme council of the League of Nations commission was followed today by intimations from Republican leaders in the house that action of the Knox peace resolution might be deferred until the larger economic and other problems growing out of the war had been settled. Representative M. C. Nease, of Virginia, the committee leader, said that the resolution which was adopted by the senate a week ago, would not be considered next week as had been expected in some quarters. He would not say how soon it might be taken up. House leaders generally, however, said the committee would remain with the foreign affairs committee for a month, perhaps, or certainly until the European situation had cleared. It was said that this met the approval of the senate. Some members insisted President Harding preferred that no effort be made to rush it through at this time. Ambassadors Wallace and Roland W. Boyden are expected to resume their places almost immediately. Their instructions were prepared today at the state department. George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain will receive his instructions from the president after his arrival at London next week, but it probably will be a month before he begins his duties as the executive representative on the supreme council, as the body meets usually once a month. Ambassador Harvey will be empowered to take part in the council's deliberations and it is understood will have authority to initiate such discussions as the president may direct. His status will be quite different from that of Mr. Wallace and Mr. Boyden, who will act as observers only. The proceedings of the ambassadors and the negotiations, the commission, respectively. fleets believe the presence of an American representative at that meeting will serve to strengthen the position of the United States and facilitate a final settlement of the question. There was only passing reference in the senate today to the acceptance of the invitation of the supreme council for American representation on the three allied bodies. During debate on the emergency tariff bill, Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, said that by sending the invitation the allies were "merely rubbing it in" and that he also charged that in accepting the invitation, the administration had "switched" on its foreign policy. There was no reply from the Republican side.

The Yorkville Enquirer.

Entered at the Postoffice at York as Mail Matter of the Second Class.

TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1921.

Judge by the amount of money the people are spending the times do not seem so hard after all.

In agreeing to league of nations dispositions that are favorable and in dissenting from dispositions that are unfavorable, the Poles are not different from other people.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, wants to satisfy the demand of the service men for a bonus by giving them the interest on the debt owed by the Allies. It is calculated that the interest now due amounts to between $700,000,000 and $800,000,000. The idea is a good one; but the question is, how are we going to collect that interest?

According to dispatches from Berlin, the present German cabinet is unwilling to sign acceptance of the ultimatum submitted by the Allied supreme council, and President Ebert is sorely perplexed as to where and how he is going to get a cabinet that will sign. It seems to be the common belief, however, that the ultimatum will be signed.

Thos. A. Edison recently gave out a statement in which he characterized college-bred men as being "amazingly ignorant" of things practical, and now comes United States Commissioner of Education Claxton and avers that Mr. Edison does not know what he is talking about. "All of Mr. Edison's inventions," declares Mr. Claxton, "consist merely in the application of principles that have been discovered and established by college-bred men." Then too, Mr. Claxton points out, it was Walter Reid, a college-bred man, who brought the health conditions on Panama up to a point where Gen. Gorgas, another college-bred man, was able to construct the canal.

During the late national campaign The Yorkville Enquirer took occasion to observe that the league of nations idea would materialize to a greater or less extent whichever side should win. That fact seemed to be evident. America was already so tangled with the Allies that there seemed to be but one way out—an alliance with Germany—and that, under the circumstances, was unthinkable. But the league of nations idea as embodied in the treaty seems calculated to make of America a selfish desirer of England and France, and that will never do. The task of the American government now is to cut itself loose from its present entanglement, and how long that will take no man can tell.

The flight of Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, against confirmation of David H. Blair, of Winston-Salem, N. C., as commissioner of internal revenue has not yet been settled. Johnson's grouse against Blair seems to lie in the fact, as Johnson claims, that having gone to Chicago with primary instructions to vote for the nomination of Johnson he instead voted for Harding. The opposition of Johnson commanded but small respect until Johnson based his fight on grounds of eligibility. He set forth on grounds of eligibility, J. W. Cannon, was claiming a rebate of excess profit taxes to the amount of some $1,300,000, and as internal revenue commissioner Blair would be in a position to influence the case in the interest of his father-in-law. It was shown that the case has been settled in large part, down to some $300,000 or $400,000; but Johnson and associates, claiming that the new commissioner will have a deciding say in the adjudication of this sum, have succeeded in securing a postponement of a final decision until next Thursday. As to what the outcome of the case is going to be remains to be seen. If Mr. Harding insists upon the confirmation of Blair, of course Blair will be confirmed. In the meantime it is interesting to wonder whether the matter that is disturbing Senator Johnson would have disturbed him if Blair had voted for him and he had gotten the nomination.

The proposition of the war department looking to the publication in the newspapers of a complete list of all of the thousands of men who have been charged with having evaded the draft law during the World war, has suggested many complications that were not at first taken into consideration. One of the first questions raised was the liability of a newspaper for damages in cases of typographical and other errors that might hold out as a slacker some soldier who performed full service. The legal department of the government gave out a ruling in which it held that there would be no legal liability in cases where the newspapers were not responsible for the errors; but this did not settle the question. It is pointed out that in the list of service men there are hundreds of cases where a dozen or more have exactly the same name, and it is certain also that men who slacked have identical names with other men who served. Among the list of slackers in one Benjamin Kaufman, of Brooklyn, and in this same city of Brooklyn there is another Benjamin Kaufman who is within a few months of being the same age as the other, and who is wearing a medal of honor for heroic service rendered in the Argonne. On the entire list there are 1,933 men bearing the name of Kaufman. It is known that there are many cases of actual deserters who received honorable discharges, and many cases of men who gave faithful service who are down on the records as deserters. Many of the newspapers of the country are unable to see why they should incur responsibility in the publication of such lists, and the solution of the whole problem is probably found in a resolution passed by the house the other day to print the entire list in the Congressional Record.

Trouble With England.

The labor troubles in England are of the same general nature as in the United States, except that England is suffering from a more aggravated condition of a world-common complaint.

England's social organization consists of a nobility, a middle class and proletariat class.

Each of these classes is graded in about the same proportion as the others, with upper crust average and hanging on by the eyelids.

Generally speaking the nobility had everything it wanted, including money power and social prestige. The middle class had mainly money power footing up in the aggregate more than that of the noble class, and therefore ease and luxury in large measure.

The proletariat ranged from comfortable livers down to the poverty-stricken, according to individual industry, intelligence and physical health.

The war took away the noble class and pretty well thinned that class out, after which it made proportionately large drafts on the middle and lower classes.

But the most important and significant development was the necessity of stimulating labor with high wages, which high wages gave labor such an opportunity for luxury as it had never known before and also stimulated a taste for luxury.

If labor had been provident and economical while times were good, it could have improved its condition perhaps; but it was not. It spent its princely wages as rapidly as it received them and never got anywhere much except into a state of increased requirements.

But since the war, labor has not been able to understand why it should not be paid as much now as previously, and it has not been willing to work for less than it used to get.

With the cessation of labor, the resources of the other classes have notably been reduced in proportion; because without labor there can be no wealth or luxury.

The wealthier classes are unable to figure out how they can give labor what it demands and at the same time continue in the enjoyment of the superior advantages it has heretofore enjoyed, because as a matter of fact the thing cannot be done. Labor is not willing to give up that which it believes is its God-given right and hence the deadlock.

England seems to be confronted with the alternative of leveling up or leveling down. Either that, or the proletariat must be beaten off starved back into its old relation, a process which is not now recommending itself as either safe or pleasant.

Federal atronage.

The many conflicting stories of the probable control of the Federal patronage in South Carolina are confusing, mystifying or amusing according to the political knowledge and experience of the onlooker.

We have been told in the papers that Jos. W. Tolbert, of Ninety-Six, has the full recognition of the dominant Republican organization, and the probability is that this will be found to be correct; but until the matter is finally settled by the announcement of recommendations of South Carolina appointees sent into the senate, there will be a continual muddying of the waters.

has any other newspaper in the state. It has originated a number of stories in connection with the matter, and this McLaurin story was probably launched without a shadow of substantial foundation, merely for the purpose of confusing the situation.

Then last there has come out a story from Columbia to the effect that one Campbell, a Republican from Ohio, who has been living in this state for several years, and who has an eye on the job of collector of internal revenue, is arranging to organize an entirely new "respectable" Republican party out of new material throughout to take charge of and administer the situation.

All of these stories, except as to Tolbert, have been published for the most part on a "they say" authority, but whatever else may be said of Tolbert and his associates, the fact remains that they went to Chicago with a delegation that secured the recognition of the national Republican executive committee and which voted for the nomination of Mr. Harding from the beginning until the nomination was effected.

Of course all these stories as to who is going to control the patronage are interesting, especially interesting to those who are more or less concerned about the matter, and while The Yorkville Enquirer does not pretend to any inside dope on the subject, it would suggest that until there is more definite and certain information to go on, those who are betting on Tolbert and his associates are most likely to have picked the winners.

SOUTH CAROLINA NEWS

J. P. Miller, an electrician, in charge of the light plant at Lake City, was shot and killed on the Lake City, between Lake City and Kingstree last Saturday night by Tom Poston. Miller was going to his home at Kingstree, in an automobile and Poston, with a young woman in his car, was going the other way. The two cars collided well on Miller's side of the road and Poston fired on Miller with a heavy revolver, killing him after three shots, one of which took effect. When seen at his home later Poston is quoted as saying that "Miller collided with me in the road and I shot hell out of him."

There was no witness except the young woman. Poston was taken to the penitentiary for safe keeping.

Columbia, May 8: Rufus Roberts, of Lakesland, a 14-year-old boy was almost instantly killed and Edmund Roberts, the boy's father, seriously injured this afternoon when the cap of a "dud," picked up on the Camp Jackson artillery range, accidentally exploded. Mr. Roberts was brought to the Columbia hospital immediately after the accident where physicians think that blood transfusion may save his life. The large projectile, which had failed to explode when fired on the camp range, had been brought to the house nearly a year ago and the cap taken off. The boy, who was seated beside his father on a bench near his home, attempted to use the cap as a hammer to drive a nail and evidently struck the primer to set off the charge of high explosive used as a detonator. The bench was completely demolished and the boy almost instantly killed, his body being literally blown in two.

Mr. Roberts had his left side severely torn by the explosion, his left arm lacerated and his right hand painfully cut. The elder Roberts died yesterday.

Greenville, May 7: William Thompson, negro, alleged to have shot and fatally wounded City Policeman Burroughs, last night, was captured by police officers and citizens about 8 o'clock tonight about seven miles from the city near the old Camp Sevier reservation, after an exchange of shots in which one of the pursuers was slightly wounded. Officer Burroughs died about 4 o'clock this morning. Thompson was spirited away from the jail tonight and is believed to have been taken to Spartanburg. The jailer and a city police officer say he confessed to the attack upon the policeman. Thompson was picked up about 6 o'clock this afternoon in the neighborhood of the Camp Sevier site. The negro opened fire upon officers but none of his bullets took effect. The chase was joined in by several hundred citizens of the surrounding vicinity, members of the United States public health service hospital and city and county officers to whom the alarm had been sent. Shortly after 6 o'clock the negro was forced out of the woods to the railroad track. John Shelburn, a farmer, was struck in the scalp when the negro opened fire again. The negro was hit in the leg but again got away and his trail was lost until about 8 o'clock when he was captured without resistance by a city police officer and two citizens while crossing a road. Officer Burroughs, although off duty, went to the house of the negro, a man who was living in the house, neither of whom said they saw the actual shooting. At the coroner's inquest today the jury returned a verdict that Policeman Burroughs came to his death at the hands of the negro William Thompson. Mayor H. C. Harvey today offered a reward of $200 for information leading to the arrest of the slayer.

YORKVILLE MAN RECOVERS RING

David Krivis of the firm of Feinstein & Krivis, merchants of Yorkville, is in Charlotte today to testify against a negro porter formerly employed in the Stonewall Hotel who is charged with the theft of a diamond ring valued at $450 which was stolen from Mr. Krivis while a guest at the Charlotte hotel Sunday, last week.

According to Mr. Krivis, he left the ring in his room and did not miss it until he returned to Yorkville. He telephoned the hotel seeking information, feeling sure that he had left it there. Instead of going to look himself, the hotel clerk sent a messenger into the room to find the ring. The negro reported that there was no ring in the room. Krivis had notified the Charlotte police and pawn brokers, and one day last week when a negro attempted to set a pawnbroker to put a valuation on a diamond ring, the pawnbroker managed to stall him off until he could call a policeman. The ring, a handsome solitaire is again on Krivis's finger and he expects that he will give today the testimony in court which Dr. E. D. Tricketson of Mecklenburg in the state of North Carolina for a period of not less than two and not more than five years.

A. R. P. SYNOD

The annual synodical meeting of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church ended at Rosemark, Tenn., Sunday night after a series of services lasting throughout the day, at which Dr. J. W. Carson, Newberry, S. C.; Dr. J. P. Pressley of the theological school of Due West, S. C.; the Rev. W. S. Patterson, Lancaster, S. C. and the Rev. O. W. Carmichael, Rock Hill, S. C.

MERE MENTION

Senator Penrose has given out the dictum that international disarmament is idealistic foolishness. Over one-third of the population of the state of New York is foreign born. The first cur load of the Georgia peach crop for this season was started from middle Georgia for New York last Friday. The crop is estimated at 7,000 cars. There is very serious talk in London of mobilization for the purpose of invading Germany. There has been considerable street fighting in Paris led by the socialists.

PASSING TO THE PAGEANT.

Yorkville people who for one reason or other missed going to Winthrop last Friday, did not entirely escape the atmosphere of the great pageant. Cars were passing backward and forward through the town all day. At times during the noon hour streams of cars poured into East Liberty street from the west, north and south that was suggestive of the traffic of a large city.

The passing cars came from Greenville, Anderson, Laurens, Spartanburg, Cherokee, Union and from South Carolina counties, and from Mecklenburg, Gaston, Cleveland and other counties in North Carolina, many of them coming more than 150 miles. While there was no effort to count the cars, their number certainly ran into the hundreds.

Quite a large number of the passers had stopped here for refreshments both coming and going and the Shandon hotel cafe was pretty well crowded practically all day. The other eating places and the soda fountains also got considerable patronage. The gas stations also did considerable business.

GENERAL REPLANTING.

Not less than 50 per cent of the cotton of York county has been and is being replanted, and it is probable that before the crop is well on its way the replanting will reach 75 per cent. It is the same story for all parts of the county and from all kinds of land, red, mulatto, sandy and blackjack. Where the cotton was planted during the first two weeks of April it has been doing no good. Some of it broke through the top surface, some of it broke through and curled up under without breaking through and some of it came up and died. It is the common opinion that the cold weather was the cause.

People who have planted within the past two weeks, are for the most part still waiting results hopefully. Some have standing but they are few and far between. Most of those who planted previous to two weeks ago are planting again, and planting is going on almost as generally as during the first part of April.

It is recalled that the crop was late in 1911. It was not before cotton planting had come to a stand; but nevertheless there was a large crop that year.

ROCK HILL MEN HURT

Sidney Friedheim, Joe Rawlinson and H. C. Geiger of Rock Hill who were seriously injured Sunday evening when a Cadillac automobile in which they were riding with W. L. Still and Dolph Friedheim, also of Rock Hill, crashed into a tree a short distance south of Crowder's Creek station were reported going nicely in a Gastonia hospital this morning where they were taken immediately after the accident. Sidney Friedheim had his right shoulder and left hip broken; Geiger had his left leg broken and Rawlinson suffered four broken ribs on the left side, one of which punctured his lung. Rawlinson is said to be the most seriously injured of the trio. Still who was driving the car and Dolph Friedheim who was beside him escaped with comparatively minor injuries. The car which was totally wrecked was carried to Rock Hill yesterday afternoon.

At the Gastonia hospital this morning it was stated that Mr. Rawlinson had a very bad night. He was restless and unable to sleep. Pneumonia has not set in as yet, it was stated, and it does not seem to be in a stage regarded as very slight. Otherwise he is expected to recover. Messrs. Friedheim and Geiger were reported resting comfortably.

According to reports, the party were returning to Rock Hill from Cleveland Springs, N. C., where they had gone to spend the day. Going through South Gastonia at a pretty rapid clip, a motorcycle speed cop started in pursuit of them for alleged violation of the city speed ordinance. They undertook to outrun the officer. When rounding a sharp curve, in the road Dolph Friedheim attempted to assist Still in rounding the curve with the result that the car smashed into a tree. The officer, it seems, had already given up pursuit although the men were not aware of it.

The injured men were picked up within a short time and returned to Gastonia. Dolph Friedheim and Still were able to return to their respective homes yesterday.

CEMETERY FENCE FUND.

Thanks to the liberal co-operation of the people of Yorkville and relatives and friends of people whose bones rest in the enclosure, there are sufficient funds in hand and in sight to put a substantial fence around the old Methodist cemetery in Yorkville, and to give the place other needed attention.

Of the $345 asked for, subscriptions to the amount of $24 were acknowledged last Friday, and since then a number of additional subscriptions have come in, raising the total considerably above estimate. The fund now stands as follows: Treasurer acknowledged $324 00 Cannon Mill Union Sunday School, Ada Curry, Treas. 7 05 Charlotte St. Baptist Sunday School Bible Class, W. E. Morton, Teacher 5 15 Yorkville Cemetery Assn. 30 00 Yorkville Enquirer 10 00

Total $376 20 The above sum will be more than ample to pay for the carrying out of the original purpose in view, and no further subscriptions will be required. Mr. F. L. Feemster, on the cost of the original estimate, on the cost of the work on last Saturday informed the representative of The Yorkville Enquirer, who has the matter in charge, that he made an error in his original estimate and that the fence will be built for less than he figured. He has been instructed to proceed with the erection of the fence.

Such sums as may remain on hand after the fence has been paid for will be used in leveling up sunken graves and straightening up leaning gravestones. After the available funds have been disbursed a further report of receipts and expenditures will be published in The Yorkville Enquirer.

As has been stated, no further subscriptions are desired; but it is requested that unpaid subscriptions be paid to Mr. C. F. Shearer by or to him at once, for the money placed in his hands for the purpose of making good on the subscriptions.

Mr. W. J. Thackston, of Greenville, was among the visitors to Yorkville last Sunday on account of the pilgrimage to the Church Home orphanage. Mr. Thackston will be remembered by most of the older citizens of the town as the first superintendent of the Yorkville Graded school on the establishment of that institution thirty-two years ago. Upon him devolved the task of getting the new institution in good working order and he achieved the undertaking in a manner which, under the circumstances was quite remarkable. Mr. Thackston gave up school teaching shortly after finishing his work here, and for many years past has been one of the leading business men and most prominent citizens of the city of Greenville.

WITHIN THE TOWN

This town is in need of more streets. —Mother's Day was pretty generally recognized Sunday by the wearing of white flowers for mothers who are dead and red flowers for mothers who are living.

Chief of Police Ed Steele, Policeman Jack McCarter and Magistrate Fred Black flushed a party of poker players in the Charlotte woods Sunday. Three of them, all white, were captured and paid fines. Two escaped by making line drives through the woods, and the policemen didn't have a chance to take them.

Dr. A. Y. Cartwright and associates have decided to lend to the town for a playground, about five acres of the O'Leary property, including the old spring. The plot is located just west of the northeastern corporate limits and being well wooded is a delightful place for picnics. Also there is plenty of water and a good site for a much needed swimming pool.

A Ford touring car in use a few weeks ago as a carrier of moonshine liquor and which was captured by Sheriff Fred Quinn and other officers, will now be used by an officer in attempting to catch other Fords used in the same work. The captured Ford which was sold at auction by the sheriff before the courthouse door Friday morning was bought by Constable R. F. Lee of York township who bid $175 for it.

Episcopalians of Upper South Carolina to the number of about 400 were in Yorkville Sunday on account of Pilgrimage Day to the Church Home Orphanage. Most of the visitors of the occasion came by automobile returning to their respective homes late in the afternoon. A feature of the occasion was the presence of the choir of the Church of the Advent (Episcopal) of Spartanburg, which furnished music for the occasion. A bounteous basket dinner was served on the Orphanage grounds shortly after the noon hour. In the afternoon an inspection of the orphanage buildings and grounds was made by the visitors, many of whom saw the property for the first time. A number of speeches were delivered in the afternoon, among the speakers being Bishop Kirkman G. Finlay of Columbia; Christie Bennett, Esq. of Columbia; W. B. Moore of Yorkville; Aug. W. Smith of Greenville and Rev. T. P. Noe, superintendent of the Church Home Orphanage. At the meeting Sunday it was decided to make such Pilgrimage to the Church Home an annual affair.
