Chester Reporter, Oct. 3: The following marriage licenses were issued Saturday from the office of Judge of Probate A. W. Wise: Mr. Sidney B. Cooper and Miss Nioma D. Robinson, both of Great Falls; Mr. W. J. Crenshaw, of Chester, and Miss Virile Smith, of Columbia; and Mr. Lewis Miller and Miss Maude Bailey, both of Lando. At the County Health Clinic, which was conducted at the courthouse Thursday and Friday, a total of 122 persons were examined, 68 whites on Thursday and 54 colored people on the second day. Dr. Ernest Cooper, of the State Tuberculosis Hospital, who conducted the examinations, was highly pleased with the number present for examination and the spirit of co-operation shown by the physicians, the hospitals and the nurses of the community, and believes that immense good will follow. As a result of the examinations five-four white and one colored—will go at once to the State Tuberculosis Hospital and others whose condition from one ailment and another is the source of anxiety will be watched closely by Miss Linduff, the county nurse, and their respective family physicians. Numbers of those examined are suffering from some trouble which can easily be removed with the proper treatment, and if the proper steps are followed they can soon be restored to complete health. Yesterday morning the congregation of the First Baptist church had submitted to them the plans for the new church and Sunday School buildings, as prepared by Mr. A. D. Gilchrist, the Rock Hill architect and voted to accept the plans and proceed with the erection of the buildings as soon as feasible. The original plans provided for common brick, but upon motion it was decided to use pressed brick which will give a decidedly more handsome finish. The estimated cost of the two buildings, exclusive of furnishings and equipment, is estimated at $75,000. One of the things that does most to give the cause of law and order in South Carolina a setback is the practice in vogue among some attorneys of promptly filing an appeal for their clients, upon conviction, no matter how heinous the crime for which the defendants are convicted and how utterly lacking in merit any appeal in their behalf might be. A case in point is the appeal in behalf of Gappins and Kirby, two of the trio charged with the ruthless murder of Brazell, the young Columbia automobile driver, who confessed their part in this awful crime, and were very promptly convicted and sentenced to die in the electric chair. It was a verdict that the whole state approved, and was one that ought to help the cause of law enforcement mightily, as mobs pursued the murderers for days, and had they been given an opportunity would have made short shift of them. Now since two lawyers, possibly for no other reason than a few dollars have been shoved at them as retainers, have seen fit to file appeals, the sentence of the court has been stayed, and people will begin to reason among themselves that it's the same old story—these murderers, or two of them at least, have secured a delay, and finally after the case hangs fire in the courts a long time the defendants may escape with some modified sentence. It might not turn out that way, but what has already happened will certainly hurt the cause of law enforcement in the state. A lawyer ought to be faithful to the interests of his client, but when his client is as guilty as Gappins and Kirby, he has certainly discharged his duty to the defendant when he makes a plea for mercy, and what further efforts he makes for the convicted man are not in the interest of justice, but are thwarting justice.

Cleveland Star (Shelby) Oct. 4: "On last Wednesday night Messrs. J. B. Lattimore, L. A. Blanton and S. B. Cooper arrived on Briar Creek for a fox chase with a pack of eleven fine Walker and Goodman fox hounds. The hounds can catch a fox if he will stay on the ground, so off the dogs went for the chase. On arriving at the hunting ground they struck him and in about fifteen minutes they had him going in full speed. In one hour and thirty minutes they had caught him, and this was the best race the writer has heard of in many years. The twenty-five hundred bushel sweet potato storage house which is being built at Boiling Springs is nearing completion and will be ready in a few days for storing this years crop of potatoes in. Twenty men in this community joined together to build this house, and will hire a competent man to look after curing potatoes and keeping of the house. Mr. Monroe Wellmon who lives just outside of town on the Fallston road, found a pilot three feet long on his porch one night last week. Mr. Wellmon had eaten supper and gone out on the porch where he sat for awhile. When he started in the house he reached to pull open the screen door and looking down, he saw the large pilot coldly ready to strike him. He called his wife who was inside the house and told her to bring a hoe with which he killed the snake. Forty-nine years ago last month Mr. Wellmon was bitten by a pilot and came nearly dying as a result of the poison. Negroes from Georgia farms are coming into North Carolina to do farm work, the Georgia fields not being able to supply them with work since the boll weevil has ravaged the crops. A prominent farmer stated to The Star yesterday that he saw several cars loads pass through Cliffside a few days ago coming to North Carolina to pick cotton and that Messrs. Cicero Falls, Billy DePriest and a number of other farmers in this section have imported nine to ten each to help raise cotton. It is reported that R. J. Elliott, Am Palmer Chas. and Barrett Whisman and perhaps others will go this week to Georgia to move families from that state to this.

Gastonia Gazette, Oct. 4: Beginning with the meeting of the executive committee Wednesday afternoon and continuing through Thursday evening the Womens Synodical of the North Carolina Synod of the Presbyterian church will be in session in the First Presbyterian church as the guest of the local auxiliary. Officers of the Synodical are: Mrs. E. F. Reid, president, Lenoir; Mrs. S. A. Robinson, secretary, Gastonia, and Miss Margaret Lovell Gibson, treasurer, Wilmington. The Wednesday and Thursday evening program will be of popular interest. William Irvine Paysoux, Gastonia's noted hypnotist and manager of the Canvas Theatre, gave a public exhibition of his wonderful powers yesterday afternoon when, blindfolded, he drove an automobile through the crowded streets of the city, stopped at the Carolina Auto Service Company's place on West Airline avenue, found there a hidden post-office key, drove back to the postoffice unlocked a box and took from it a letter placed there for the purpose of testing him. Last night Paysoux gave an exhibition of his hypnotic powers to a large audience at the Canvas Theatre. He will give similar exhibitions at his theatre each night this week. Some years ago Paysoux became famous as a hypnotist and mind reader and travelled over the United States and Mexico, giving exhibitions of his power. The marriage of Miss Willard Jenkins and Mr. Warren Gardner was solemnized this morning at 8:30 in a simple but most impressive ceremony which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins, in Chesterplace. Dr. J. H. Henderlite, of the First Presbyterian church, pronounced the service and only members of the immediate families were present. In the nature of a return visit, Charlotte and Mecklenburg will come to the Gaston county fair Thursday, October 13. Gastonia and Gaston county turned out a thousand strong to the Carolinas Exposition in Charlotte a few days ago.

Nellie Cordell is a Remarkable Little Girl.
Nellie Cordell, 9 years old, who for five years has astounded all who saw her as a mind reader, has returned to her home near Middlesboro, Ky., after a visit of several days to Cincinnati. Before Nellie could read writing she could read minds. Although as a child of 5 Nellie could not tell time by reading the numerals on the face of a clock, she could tell the hour and the minute by reading the mind of a person who had just looked at the clock. Nellie is in the fifth grade of school, two years ahead of other children of her age. She has bobbed hair and preternaturally bright gray eyes.

NEW A. R. P. PROPERTY
Development at Flat Rock, N. C., Will be Very Extensive.
Plans for the transformation of the Old Hidelberg Inn property at Flat Rock, N. C., 38 miles above Greenville on the Hendersonville highway, into a beautiful spot which can be used by all Associate Reformed Presbyterians of the South as a summer assembly ground and a summer residential property, have been definitely formulated, says the Greenville Piedmont, and leaders of this denomination now are having these plans consummated. Overlooking Highland lake and comprising some 65 to 75 acres, the Old Hidelberg Inn property no doubt will be developed into one of the most beautiful assembly grounds in the South. Adolf Schulze, landscape architect of long experience and of rare ability, who has his offices in the Masonic Temple, Greenville, has been engaged to have charge of the work of developing this property, and Mr. Schulze said today that the work of beautifying the grounds already is under way. A large auditorium is to be built on the property, an athletic field is to be provided and arrangements are to be made so that good boating and bathing facilities will be available. The beautiful Highland lake adds greatly to the attractiveness of the grounds, and the entire development work is being carried forward along lines which display this lake to the best advantage. It is expected that numbers of Associate Reformed Presbyterians of the Greenville church will visit the Flat Rock development often, and that the place will become one of the most beautiful in this section.

BOY SCOUTS SAVE
Train in Nebraska Narrowly Escaped Being Wrecked.
James Caldwell, 13, and Clarence Swingbold, 12 Omaha Boy Scouts today were heroes. By rare presence of mind and speedy application of scout rules, they saved passenger train number 6, a through train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy between Omaha and Chicago, Monday from what road officials said would have been a serious wreck. The scouts, who with a party of companions had been on an all night hike, found a large tree lying directly across the railroad track near Camp Gifford, a seat, camp six miles south of Omaha. At the same time they heard the whistle of the train, which carried more than a dozen coaches, on the other side of a curve 300 yards away. Pulling young Caldwell's red sweater from his back, the scouts ran down the track waving it frantically. The engineer stopped the train a few yards from the tree. Special agents of the Burlington said the tree was a bee tree and that evidently, when it had fallen across the tracks the bee hunters had fled. REPLACEMENT

YOUR CLOTHING, your household furniture, your automobile, etc., will sometime need replacing. You have perhaps already experienced a time when too many of these things required replacing or repairing at once. When such things demand attention, in addition to regular living expenses, the question arises, "Where is the money coming from?"

To prepare for such occasions a good plan is to deposit a certain portion of your income in a SAVINGS ACCOUNT before making any expenditures. Your funds then will be earning interest while waiting for use.

Chilly rooms made comfortable in a few minutes

And you don't have to "drive" your coal heater

With delightful autumn days there always come chilly nights and frosty mornings. You dislike to start up the furnace or steam heater until it is actually necessary.

Next to the great convenience of the Perfection Oil Heater is its unusual economy. It burns for about 10 hours on a single gallon of kerosene which costs only about half what it did last year.

It is an expensive luxury to keep seldom-used rooms and hallways heated all the time. Hundreds of thousands of families will cut down their coal bills this fall and winter by using the Perfection as an auxiliary heater. Keep the house warm with the coal heater but use the Perfection to make the living rooms comfortable.

The Perfection Oil Heater placed in front of an exposed door or window will make drafts warm and healthful.

Your hardware, housefurnishing or department store probably carries Perfection Heaters. Ask the salesman to explain their simple, sturdy construction and the smokeless wick adjustment.
