to refill the seemingly exhausted vessels from which the living stream sprang. That was the overshadowing element in the cycle of honors heaped upon this nameless soldier, this son of the people come home to claim the great reward his valiant heart had earned.

The Yorkville Enquirer.

Entered at the Postoffice at York, as Mail Matter of the Second Class.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1921.

Honest, earnest, straightforward integrity counts for as much as it did before the war. Almost everything else seems to be at a discount.

There is but one thing that will make a complete success of the disarmament conference and that one thing is a sincere effort on the part of all of them to cut out all selfishness.

The question of who makes the laws is not nearly so important as the question of who interprets them. The law is an exact science when administered in sincerity, wisdom and truth.

Gentlemen of the jury, it is up to you. If you really desire to do your duty it is next to impossible that you can make a mistake. The defendant cannot deceive you and neither can his attorney.

What is the motive of Bob Ott's? Well, it might mean anything; but anyhow it amounts to the selection of a justice of the supreme court by a single individual instead of by the whole people.

Every present member of the supreme court has been selected along the lines which Bob Ott is now following. It is a fact that at every judicial election for years, every candidate, either in person or through his friends, has maintained a regular political headquarters and worked for success just as do the candidates for the presidency at a national convention.

self or allow his friends to do it for him, and although showing great strength every time he has been nominated, has invariably had his name withdrawn rather than participate in such a disgraceful scramble.

Work.

There has never been a time that has been entirely free from complaint about difficult and discouraging conditions.

There is nothing more familiar than the talk of hard times, for this kind of talk comes from all kinds of people under all kinds of circumstances.

Although conditions are not as they should be, the fact of the matter is that we have been through much harder times than we are now experiencing in very recent years.

There is little or nothing to be said in favor of this deflation business except that despite all the hardship and injustice of it, had it not been for something of that kind conditions at present would be worse than they are.

The principal dissatisfaction of today grows out of the recollection of the speculative spree of two years ago.

We want plenty of money without a thought of the effect that too much money has on prices and production. And we are regretting the loss of the big profits which we thought we had, but which we really did not have.

THE HUGGINS MURDER. As to whether Pink Huggins was killed by Albert Zimmerman or by his wife has not been definitely established; but it is morally certain that the killing was done by one of them and that one is as guilty as the other.

It is an unusually ugly case, with the reproach bearing equally on all three parties to it. Albert Zimmerman and Mrs. Huggins have been married for many years, with the full knowledge of Huggins, who had been shoring the price of his wife's shame. But the woman is as guilty as the man, for it was she who first became infatuated with Zimmerman.

is a matter of common knowledge that Huggins has sent his wife to other towns to meet Zimmerman; that Zimmerman has been to the Huggins home frequently, and that on the occasion of such visits Huggins would take the children to the picture show or elsewhere, leaving Zimmerman in the house with his wife, and allow Zimmerman to play with the children and his wife to go off together.

The proponents then appealed to the supreme court from the decision of Judge Moore.
