Education teaches the child a lot of rigid beliefs. Instead of teaching him to think...

"The moment school is not play, it is an injury," says Mr. Edison. "I don't know quite the age at which a child's mind atrophies, but it is somewhere between the ages of 11 and 14."

Here Mr. Edison bears out the psychoanalysts of perfection. The child's intellectual development is arrested by boredom somewhere between 11 and 14, and along most lines it never advances thereafter.

His character and personality mature after a fashion, but these can never reach a full maturity without an all-round mental development.

A change in our system of education seems to be agreed by all authorities to be the fundamental need. Most of our literature and drama, film and otherwise, is infantile and fosters the infantile attitude toward life.

BONDS FOR HIGHWAYS

Good Roads Association Advocates a Big State Issue. Officials of the South Carolina Good Roads association say that the action of the conference of mayors of the state in asking the governor to recommend to the general assembly that the necessary steps be taken to insure a bond issue for the construction of highways will meet with state-wide approval.

"There will never be more opportune time for the construction of permanent highways than the next two years," says the statement. "The cost of construction will be lower and there will be an abundance of labor. The construction of the roads will give employment to thousands who are now out of work or who will be out of work."

"It is absolutely necessary that the state inaugurate a road-building program on a large scale if it is to keep pace with its sister states. North Carolina has already begun the expenditure of a bond issue of $50,000,000 and Virginia is planning a bond issue of $25,000,000. Georgia is spending a large sum and is planning the expenditure of an even larger sum. Florida is spending a large sum."

Rich In History.—Accompanied by Esq. Henry McWhirter, Dr. J. M. Blair and Solicitor J. C. Brooks, Mr. T. L. Crowell has visited many historical points in this section and has taken photographs of them to be made into post cards and folders. His collection includes photographs of Drake's thicket near Roundedge, where old man Richardson killed Drake and seventeen other Tories who burned his home; the monument to Consul Ney McNeely who met his death in the submarine-infested waters of the Mediterranean Sea; Tory Pond, in New Salem township, where fifteen Tories were killed during the Revolutionary War; the Buford monument across the line 18 miles from Monroe, erected to the memory of the 84 Americans who were massacred by the British while they slept; Tory Hill, in New Salem township, the scene of a battle between loyal Americans and British sympathizers and where a gun was found that was for years prized very highly by the father of Mr. Young Morgan; the tomb of William R. Davis, minister to France, founder of the University and third governor of North Carolina; Walkup's Mill battleground, the scene of another engagement between the Americans and British; Hanging Rock, where William R. Davis defeated a British force with half their number; the McCammie cabin where Pres. Andrew Jackson was born; the Jackson monument; Cureton's Tavern where Lafayette spent the night on the occasion of his visit to this country in 1824; and Morgan's Mill, erected in 1844, and the first card mill in this section.—Monroe (N. C.) Enquirer.

LUMBER CUT DECLINED

Less Timber Cut in 1920 Than in 1919

The lumber cut of the United States in 1920 was 23,798,500,000 feet, which is 2.2 per cent. less than in 1919, and 27 per cent. less than the peak in 1907. The average price of lumber at the mill increased to $38.42 per thousand which is a rise of 150 per cent. since 1910. The aggregate value of the cut is $1,223,000,000. These are the highest annual valuations ever recorded, but do not indicate present conditions. They merely reflect the extremely high peak in the post-war lumber prices which was passed in the first quarter of 1920.

These are the principal statistics obtained by the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, in its 1920 canvases of American sawmills. They are based upon reports from 15,978 active mills out of 23,243 estimated to have been in operation. Several thousand mills cutting less than 50,000 feet were not tabulated, though allowance was made for their cut. Comparisons with 1919 are published by permission of the Bureau of the Census, United States Department of Commerce.

The statistics of expenditures by counties for the education of negro pupils in the state in the school year 1920-1921 have been compiled by the state department of education. The figures show that Charleston county spent more, per negro pupil enrolled, than any other county, the expenditure for that county being $21.28. York was second in amount expended per negro pupil, the figure for that county being $9.68. Georgetown county came third with an expenditure of $8.64 per negro pupil. The expenditures include all items of expense for teaching the negro pupils, salaries, buildings, fuel and other expenses being included. Richard county comes fourth in the amount expended, the figure for that county being $8.01 per negro pupil.

NO CHURCHES OR JAILS

Iowa Town Holds Unique Position in America.

There are two institutions that Walcott, Iowa, the richest town per capita in Iowa, prides itself in not possessing. These are churches and jails.

In its religious beliefs, Walcott is unique. For more than 50 years the town has been without a church. It once had a jail, but like its only church established 65 years ago and which existed but a few years, it was put in the discard. While the jail building still stands, there is no vestige of a church edifice. But there are no locks to the jail and its hinges have rotted off. It is never used.

"We are free thinkers and believe in free American citizenship seven days a week. We do not need preachers to dictate to us. We are better off without them," states Mayor Strohbein in expressing Walcott's lack of churches. Mayor Strohbein states that while any denomination has the privilege of establishing a church in Walcott, the people simply will not patronize them. They would have empty pews and empty collection baskets every Sunday.

"We are getting along very well as we are—much better than with churches. We like to be let alone. There is no more peaceful or law abiding town in the whole United States than Walcott. Why should we want churches. They bring strife and dissensions—we want peace and quietude," commented the town's popular mayor.

It's no secret how Walcott residents spend their Sabbath. "Shows and dances are our principal Sunday amusement," says Mayor Strohbein. "Then in summer we enjoy baseball and automobile riding."

In case of weddings most of the couples come to Davenport and look up a justice. In very rare instances a minister of the gospel is called in.

Most of the funerals in the town are conducted by Johannes Wroeger, who delivers the oration in either German or English, as the mourners desire. Mr. Wroeger possesses no church affiliations or religious beliefs. In other words he is a pastor without a creed. Baptisms are unknown in the town.

In a business and commercial way, Walcott is a thriving town. It has two banks with combined deposits of over $1,500,000. This is a remarkable showing when it is considered that the population of the town is but 384. It has a consolidated school second to none in this part of the state.

Recently the citizens erected a fine public auditorium. Her chautauques and musical entertainments are held on week days, and dances on Sundays.

BREECHES LONG WORN

King Belshazzar of Babylon Said to Have Worn Them.

Breeches, a garment for the legs especially, as distinguished from trousers for covering the upper portions of the legs, were formerly called hose in England. Breeches, or hose, were in use even among the ancient Babylonians.

In Europe we find them first used among the Gauls, hence the Romans called a part of Gaul "breeched Gaul" (Gallia braccata). In the fifth century breeches had become fashionable in Rome.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth and James I. the breeches had assumed enormous dimensions, being stuffed with various materials, as wool hair, etc.

breeches is well known and he is represented in an old engraving with wide stuffed breeches tapering to the knee, slashed and adorned with lace. In the reign of Charles I. they took the form of short trousers, loose at the knee and ornamented with ribbons and lace. In the time of William III. the tight knee breeches came in and were supplanted by trousers only in the nineteenth century.
