You're absolutely hopeless, and I don't see what am going to do with you. Have you anything to say for your elf?"

"Yes, sir, judge," the prisoner hastened to reply. "You see, it was this way; I-"

"It's no use!" the judge interrupted. 'It doesn't make any difference how you want to tell it. I wouldn't believe your statement if you swere to it on a stack of Bibles." There was a moment's awed silence. Then the prisoner smiled craftily.

"Judge," he stated, "I plead guilty."

Renevolent Old Gent No. 4,848.—The regulation small and ragged boy was shedding the traditional bitter tears in the light of the street lamp when the according-to-Hoyle philanthropic old gentleman approached. Side whiskers, black stock, silver-headed cane -all the fixin's.

What's the matter, my old man?" asked the p. o. g., just as they always do in stories.

"I was goin' to the bakery," began the small boy, playing up to the rules, "to get me mudder a loaf of bread and I'dropped my money in the dark and I can't find it, and now I won't get my supper and me mudder 'll beat me."

"I had abandoned all hope," he said. "As I sank for the third time my past life seemed to rise before me in a series of grim, realistic pictures."

A murmur of sympathy rolled from the lips of listening friends; but just as McGregor was preparing to resume, McTavish interrupted him sharply and hopefully, "And did you happen to notice," he asked, "a picture of me lendin your a fiver in the autumn of 1919?"

PEANUTS IN GEORGIA

Farmers Greatly Interested in This Popular Product of the Soil.

Thousands of Acres Are Being Planted In Them-Good Money in the Crop at 75 Cents a Bushel.

(Ralph Smith in Atlanta Journal.) Next to cotton, there is no product of the soil that is attracting more attention among the farmers of Georgia today than peanuts, and, as has been pointed out several times, there are certain sections of the state in which the acreage in peanuts will exceed that in cotton. Many of the most successful farmers in the state are convinced that peanuts can be produced more profitably than cotton, and here and there, I have found men who do not indetermined to engage extensively in the production of peanuts.

Recently at Madison, my good friend, velopment of Georgia is appreciated by good work that is being done by the Bank of Rutledge in encouraging Morgan county farmers to turn to peanuts as a money crop. Thos. Peacock, cashier of the bank, is one of the most progressive citizens of the county, and he s giving lots of attention to the farm-

Rutledge Bank's Letter.

Mr. Peacock has recently addressed a communication to the friends and Census Report Shows Many Wives customers of the Bank of Rutledge about the production of peanuts-a communication that can not fail to appeal to every man who reads it.

"We want to tell you in all frankness that the time has come for an upheaval of our farm plans and methods," remarks Mr. Peacock. "If you don't know how to raise anything but cotton, you had better be sitting up nights figuring on something else because your days of prosperity and prominence are numbered.

"Whenever it gets cold enough for your wells to freeze over you can belocutor. "And now tell me, Bethram gin to plant, another cotton crop, but until then there are other things infinitely easier and more profitable than chasing up and down cotton rows from April to September with every concelvable kind of trap and weevil catcher. Another fool idea the southern farmer can dispense with is that he was put here to clothe the world.' Let's let them wear fig leaves for a We believe in planting some while. cotton, but it ought to be so little that it wouldn't make any difference if we didn't make a boll.

"During the past several months we have sent you every bulletin the department of agriculture has issued on peanuts. We have sent you the booklet the Peanut Crushers' association ssued: we are now sending you in pamphlet form, 'How to Grow and Gather Peanuts,' written by Mr. C. J. Rambo, president of Edison Oil company, and we are writing Mr. N. L. Willet for copies of his booklet on ture,' which we shall mail to you. There can be no excuse for not knowing what a peanut is and how to grow it.

Compared to Corn. "The next crop after cotton that a man in this part of Georgia thinks about is corn. The acre that will make fifteen bushels of corn at 50 cents per bushel will make forty bushels of peanuts at 75 cents per bushel. We leave it to you as to which is worth the most, the fodder from this corn or the hay from the peanuts. If you never sold a sprig of hay or a single peanut you still raised a crop more than twice as valuable as corn. There is no better stock food in the world than peanuts. Give him time and one pig will root up a thousand acres looking for them; chickens will go a mile to find a patch; you have to beat a mule away from them, and the gentlest cow in the world will tear down a fence to get to them. Your children want them every day in the year. What more can you ask?

"The only real argument we hear against peanuts is that you have to work them and gather them. This is true, as there seems to be no way of wishing it done.

"We have written to every peanut crushing mill in the south and have yet to find one that will not buy them the year round at a price that will give them a profit on the oil. Candy manufacturers have been buying 75 to 90 per cent. of the crop. Peanuts are now found in every grade of candy from 'kisses' to dream jewels. Every grocery store in the United States and Canada handles peanut butter, and yet somebody with nothing on God's earth to sell is always whining, 'If we raise

MANY MARRY YOUNG

Only 15 Years Old.

Sixteen hundred boys and 12,834 girls 15 years of age in the United States are listed as married in 1920, the census bureau announced in a statement presenting special analysis of marital statistics. Eighty-two boys and 499 girls of the same age were recorded as widowed or divorced.

The analysis revealed a distinct increase during recent years or since the 1910 census in the percentage of married persons for each year of age from 15 to 34, especially among the younger members of this group. The age group from 35 to 44, inclusive also showed an increase in the ratio of married persons in the decade, although less pronounced, especially among the women, while the proportion for persons 45 years of age and older showed a decrease.

In 1920, the figures show, 3,222 boys of 16 years, or three-tenths of one per cent, of the total of that age, compared with one-tenth of one per cent. in 1910, were married, while those 17 years of age married numbered 7,699, or eight-tenths of one per cent of the total of that age compared with half that proportion ten years previously.

The number of married girls 16 years of age increased from 34,829 or 3,7 per cent. of the total female population of that age, in 1910, to 41,626 or 4.2 per cent, of the corresponding total in 1920.
