Fourth Annual Fair of the Anderson Farmers' Association.

The annual gathering of our people to wit ness an industrial exposition has come and tione, and we can truly declare that it has been grand success. No previous occasion of this character has enlisted such general interest, sier so fully developed the latent energy and resources of our citizens. All seemed to vie in the effort to make the County Fair overshadow all other things for the time being, and the entire population appeared busily engaged in adding some interest, either by entering the contest for premiums or lending their presence and encouragement to the members of the Asesociation most actively engaged in the management of the Fair. Neighboring counties likewise manifested a deep interest in the cause, and among the list of entries we find that Abbeville and Greenville were largely represented. These facts ought to stimulate such of our own citizens as have not cast in their mite them resolve at once to assist in building up and enlarging the sphere of usefulness in which the Association has been engaged for the last several years. Upon this point, however, we will amplify hereafter, and will begin at since upon such a description of the Fair as it is in our power to give, which will be necessa-rily imperfect, as the duties of Secretary kept us so closely engaged as to debar the privilege of a full examination of the numerous articles on exhibition in the various departments.

THE FIRST DAY. Wednesday opened gloomily enough, so far as weather was concerned, and the most ardent and sanguine friends of the Association felt dispirited and discouraged by the steady, ingressing rain which fell in the morning. The clouds were dull and leaden, and indicated a et disagreeable occasion. Yet, in spite of this serious drawback, the Secretary's office was opened at the appointed hour, and the retion of articles for exhibition began. It was not long until all the clerical force at hand has busily employed in making entries, and as the day progressed, it became apparent that the emeral departments were being rapidly filled troke away, and with the bright sunshine came office, which was not closed until evening. Summing up the day's work, it was ascertained that a larger number of entries had been made than at any previous Fair, and the books were still to be kept open for the entry of live stock mext morning.

THE SECOND DAY. Thursday was bright and beautiful, and at an early hour the sale of tickets for entrance to the Fair building was inaugurated. The artiteles on exhibition had been classified and arranged, and hundreds began the round of inapection, while the various Committees entered rapon the discharge of their duties. The entries of live stock continued without intermission until one o'clock, when the books were finally closed. The attendance of visitors was quite large, and their comments upon the exhibition very flattering. The Anderson Brass Band enlivened the occasion by appropriate and inspiriting music, both inside the building a d out upon the grounds. A preliminary examination of the stock took place in the afternoon, under the direction of the Committee, and the day closed with the most gratifying results, in a financial point of view, as the receipts from admission fees had been unusually large, while a large number of Annual and Life Members had been added to the roll of the Association. THE THIRD AND LAST DAY.

Friday morning, with the weather most favorable, it was apparent that the gathering of people from all parts of the country would far exceed that of the previous day, and greatly surpass the expectations of any one. The entrance to the building was speedily thronged, and it was not long until the spacious walls held within an eager, happy crowd of men and women, intent on viewing the hundreds of artieles on exhibition. As one entered the building. next to the Secretary's office, the eye was attracted by the numerous entries in the household department, including jellies, jams, catsups, preserves, pickles, canned fruit, cakes of various kinds, loaves of beautiful bread, rolls and dishes of splendid butter, samples of honey and syrup, fine old hams, dried fruit in abundance, samples of lard, domestic vinegar, crystalized fruit, canned and pickled vegetables, and all other arricles in that line known to the vocabulary of housekeepers. Then came the wines, including blackberry, muscadine, scuppernong, catawba, cherry, and wine from the old-field plum -a new and delicious article, as we happen to know-and the splendid array of bottles making every one wish they belonged to the "tasting committee." In the centre of the noom, we find the needle and fancy work, which ascertained the net proceeds of the Entertainincludes embroidery, tatten, crochet, &c., and ment, which will be devoted to the purchase of embraces a long list of garments, from infants' grounds and the erecting of permanent buildclothing to the curious wearing apparel that lings.

possesses names unfamiliar to masculine ears. Anderson Intelligencer. Possesses names unfamiliar to masculine ears. Here, too, is the patch work with quilts of cotton, silk and worsted, and several specimens by girls under 12 years old, and a crib quilt by a young miss of four summers! Then we pass to the domestic fabrics, where there is exhibited an unusually large number of articles, incluling home made woolen blankets, woolen jeans woolen and cotton coverlets, domestic ticking and ginghams, and home-knit socks and stockings. This department was most creditable to the industry and skill of our country-women, and it is a matter of sincere regret that the gentlemen appointed to award premiums, through unavoidable circumstances, failed to make a re port at the close of the exhibition. We understand that several members of the committee were present on Thursday and examined articles, but were prevented from returning the next day by reason of domestic affliction and other causes; and hence the failure to make the expected awards, each one doubtless believing that the others were attending to this duty in

Next in order, we believe, were the articles in the miscellaneous department, in charge of two committees one composed of ladies and the other of gentlemen. Hair, bead, wax, willow, and other handiwork of the ladies was here presented, while the display of mechanical skill by the gentlemen elicited universal commendation. But we propose to notice the entries un der this head in an especial manner next week, and will pass on to other topics.

As usual, the display in field crops attested the superiority of farming in this section as compared to many other portions of the State. The samples of lint cotton were notably fine, while the numerous entries of corn cannot be excelled on this side of the mountains. Several sheafs of upland rice attracted much attention, and convinced the most skeptical that this important and nutritious grain may be easily grown to perfection in this latitude. Other articles deserve mention, but we must hasten to e conclusion

We leave the interior of the building, with the fancy tables presided over by ladies connected with the Agricultural Entertainment, which we shall speak of in another place, and will take a glance at the vast crowd gathered upon the outside... The horse show is progressing, and we must be content to refer our readers for information about the pigs, poultry and cattle to the reports of committees, for the grand display of horses absorbed undivided attention. The judges are seated upon the stand, as we make an exit from the building, and the Band is sending forth rapturous strains of delicious music, while the arena is surrounded by hundreds and thousands of people. It is estimated that five thousand persons were in attendance at this particular moment, and it was a sight worthy to be transferred to canvass. The halterled animals were first brought into the ring, and as the judges directed the blue and red rib bons to be tied, one class gave way to another. Then came the double and single harness horses, followed by saddle horses, ponies, &c. until every class had been gone through with, and the premium animals indicated by the committee. A pacing match was next in order, Mr. Wm. Knox entering a saddle horse and Mr. D. C. Cunningham a single harness horse, against each other. 'Mr. Knox's horse was ridden by Mr. Sam'l. Harbin, and made the mile in 3.38, while the other horse was driven by Mr. A. W. Thompson in 3.461. The track was uneven, and it is a wonder that the horses went over the ground in the time specified. A trotting match in double harness was called for, and Mr. D. S. McCullough entered a pair of bay mares, but there was no competition. With the test of draft horses and mules which followed, the day's exhibition closed. Immediately afterwards, the premiums awarded by the various committees were read out inside the building, and the premiums distributed to the

The Agricultural Entertainment.

For days and weeks before the opening of the Agricultural Fair, the ladies of this community and surrounding country had been employed in making preparations for the Entertainment intended as a benefit to the Farmers' Association. The immense building in which the Fair was held, belonging to the Blue Ridge Railroad, had been appropriately arranged and beautifully festooned with evergreens. One side of the building was devoted to convenient tables, and an elegant stage erected in the northern end, while the east wing of two rooms was set apart for the spread of substantials. These arrangements were completed in ample time, and a corps of ladies and gentlemen were prepared to appear before the footlights in choice and entertaining Charades. Accordingly, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of last week, the Entertainment was opened for the reception of the public, and we are gratified to state that it met with a liberal patronage on both evenings .-The Charades were particularly spicy and interesting, and some of the actors and actresses added new laurels to their previous well-earned reputation in that line, while several novices appeared upon the boards and riveted general attention by their clever representation of assumed characters.

The tables alluded to were loaded down with cakes and fancy edibles, and the meat department was abundantly supplied with everything to tempt the appetite and deplete the pockets of hungry individuals. On Thursday and Friday, while the Agricultural Fair was progressing, the multitude was fed from these tables at a nominal price, and many persons from a distance were agreeably surprised to find so complete a restraurant ready at hand when the "inner man" craved indulgence. As an adjunct to the Fair, leaving out of the question its profitableness, this feature is worthy of preservation, since strangers particularly are accommodated and made to feel at home. The ladies in charge of the tables were untiring in their efforts, and worked nobly from the beginning to make the Entertainment a success. The whole affair, it will be remembered, was under the superintendence of a committee of gentlemen appointed for that purpose by the Farmers' Association, and we take pleasure in testifying to the zeal and efficiency with which their onerous duties were performed. We have not vet

An Unusual Season.

The extraordinary mildness of the temperature at this season attracts much attention, and excites a wide range of comment from old and young. Fruit trees have been blossoming, and the growth and variety of vegetables are quite remarkable. The second crop of beans from vines deemed worthless is a novel feature in this climate, yet a very acceptable addition to the table. We have kept no record of the temperature, but presume that it would reveal a most wonderful lapse of summer lingering in the winter months. We have not yet had a killing frost, although light skiffs of hoaty Jack were seen nearly six weeks ago. We have een induced to look back into the past history of this section, for the purpose of ascertaining if this season was unprecedented, and we find upon record in Ramsey's History of South Carolina some remarkable statements, as fol-

"After the hurricane of September, 1752, the eason was so mild that all the fruit trees put out in blossom, and the fruit of some ripened. There was no frost until Christmas day, when rare-ripe apples of the second crop were gath-ered fit to eat. Something of the same kind though not to an equal degree, took place after the hurricane of 1804. On the 12th of December of that year, ripe mulberries and ripe wild cherries were gathered in the vicinity of Charleston. Apples and pears grew to a large size, but did not reach maturity."—Vol. 2, page 169.

Have the hurricanes any effect upon the temperature succeeding their visits? We have experienced no violent hurricanes this fall, in this section of the State, but other sections have been visited by the most unexampled storms of wind. It would seem that the historian, from whom we have just quoted, laid some stress upon the fact that mild seasons always followed notable hurricanes, such as are described by him.

In conversation with several old persons, we have ascertained that there was another year within their memories quite as remarkable as those mentioned by Ramsey, but none are able to fix the exact date, all agreeing that it was about forty years ago. The temperature was so mild during that entire winter that no bacon was cured in this section, as the meat was spoiled by the warm weather. Fruit trees blossomed, and vegetables presented much the same appearance until Christmas, at least, as is noted to-day. Are we to have a similar expe-

Sales on Monday.

The attendance of persons from the country on Monday last was not so large as we expected, yet the bidding for real estate was quite animated and attracted the attention of a goody crowd. Through the politeness of Sheriff McGukin, we are enabled to give the report of sales, which reveals the fact that real estate is in better demand and prices ruling higher than at any time during the last eighteen months:

Distribution of Prizes. The Gift Entertainment advertised to take place on Saturday evening last came off at Masonic Hall, in the presence of a large audience of ticket-holders. Two responsible gentlemen were selected by the crowd to conduct the drawing, which resulted as per list below. The tickets were held principally by the citizens of this town, as we are informed, and some of the lucky ones invested quite largely, holding twenty-five or thirty tickets. The distribution of prizes was as follows: 1. Ladies' Gold Watch, No. 16, John W.

2. Masonic Pin, No. 49, G. E. Hammond. Open Top Buggy, No. 818, John Catlett.
 Gents' Sleeve Buttons, No. 423, Wm. Jones. 5. Etruscan Sett. No. 329. Dr. W. C. Brown.

THE readers of the Intelligencer are assured by the proprietor of the "EMPORIUM OF FASH-ION" at Abbeville, S. C., that his stock of Dry Goods and Millinery, was never so large and attractive as it is this season. Nothing that could be thought of has been left undone. His stock was bought with a great deal of care. it comes to real handsome and stylish goods, the "Emporium of Fashion" is unsurpassed. Especial attention is called to his stock of Dress Goods, Shawls and Millinery, and to many articles useful and ornamental for ladies, not to be found in any other house in the up-country. Mrs. Cain, in charge of the Millinery Department, has been in Baltimore for two months looking up and studying the styles. She is assisted by Miss SMALL, Mrs. WIER and Miss CATOR.

The Dress Making Department is in charge of Miss Tweeddale, lately in charge of a fashionable dress making establishment in Baltimore: She is assisted by the Misses TAGGART and three other ladies of skill in this depart

Samples of Dress and any other goods that can be cut, will be sent upon application. Ladies can order Hats, Bonnets, or anything in the Millinery Department, and the goods will be sent by Express.

Satisfaction guaranteed in every case; but, ladies, do not put your limit too low. We use the best materials, and don't pretend to compete with common materials and untasty work. Our prices for Hats run from $3 to $10. We will duplicate any bill of Millinery bought in any city at one-third less price. But, ladies, we would rather you would come, that you can judge for yourselves, and make your own seections. Passengers by the morning's train have two hours to stay in Abbeville. Very respectfully,

Be Guided by what you Know.

There is an old proverb which says, "Expe rience is the safest guide." To this guide the sick and ailing naturally turn when casting about for the means of relief. They enquire what a medicine has done for others, before they adopt it themselves. Of all the remedies and preventives in use, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters meets the test most triumphantly, and hence its immense popularity and vast sales. The sufferer from indigestion is sure to find some one among his friends who has been cured of this ailment by the famous vegetable stomachic. The victim of fever and ague, liver complaint, constipation, nervous prostration, or general debility, has only to make inquiry in the neigh-borhood where he resides in order to discover what this standard restorative has effected in cases similar to his own. In the published testimony to its merits he will find a volume of possible for his common sense to resist. He tries it, and the effect it produces on his system adds another to the host of witnesses in its favor. adds another to the host of witnesses in its layor. Thus, its reputation, founded on facts, not assortions, continually grows and spreads. Charlatans and imposters, some of them mere local tricksters, and others who take a somewhat wider range, attempt to thrust into the hands and down the throats of invalids, their haphazard concoctions, as substitutes for the tonic which for so many years has been a medicinal staple throughout the United States, Spanish America, Canada, and the West Indies, but only succeed to a limited extent. In this reasoning age, the people, having ascertained what is really deserving of their confidence, decline 'rnnning after strange gods.'
