

Anderson Intelligencer.

A Word to Delinquents.
We are compelled to remind people of defective memories that many of their subscriptions to this journal have already expired, and that we are in need of the money. In fact, a large number of persons begged sufficient time during the spring and summer, that they might realize from their growing crops, and then we should certainly be paid. But they have forgotten these facts, and ignored their promises. We would gladly indulge every good, clever fellow until the day of judgment, were it possible and practicable, for we dislike to "dun" our subscribers very much. But there is a limit to our forbearance, even; and unless delinquents come forward and pay their indebtedness, many of them will be minus the visits of the Intelligencer, and in its stead, we shall be compelled to send a lawful officer to make collections. Take this hint, if your time has expired, and bring on the greenbacks.

A Suggestion from Georgia.—The Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution, in commenting upon the condition of affairs in this State, makes this novel suggestion as to the mode of eradicating payment of taxes:

Suppose all tax-payers refuse to pay. Then, as a matter of course, their property would be levied on and advertised for sale. Then let a committee be appointed in each county, to select a dozen or more insolvent men to attend the sale, and when the first piece of property is put up for sale, by the sheriff, let these insolvent men commence to bid on it, and continue to run it, even to millions if necessary, until the lawful hours of sale expires, when the sheriff would have to suspend until next sale day. This would prevent even the first piece of property from being sold, and of course, the sheriff could not go any further on his list. If the tax lists were re-advertised for next sale day, repeat the process, and so on ad infinitum. It is no new idea of ours. A similar thing was done long ago in this county, where an administrator undertook to sell out a large part of this city under an old claim, and was defeated by our citizens by the process described above. There is in this no resistance to law, but simply the tax-payers availing themselves of their legal rights.

The Williams College Review opposes the admission of girls into the institution, but says if they insist upon coming, the students will receive them with open arms.
A reporter who obtained entrance to the studio of a noted young lady sculptor states that she was at work with "her arms bare to the shoulder, and her ankles likewise." Goodness gracious!
Why is the letter R very unfortunate? Because it is always in trouble, wretchedness and misery, is the beginning of riot and ruin, and is never found in peace, innocence, or love.
A young lady at an evening party found it apropos to use the expression, "Jordan is a hard road to travel"; but thinking that too vulgar, substituted the following: "Perambulating progression in pedestrian excursion along the far-famed thoroughfare of fortune, cast up by the banks of the sparkling river of Palestine, is indeed attended with a heterogeneous conglomeration of unforeseen difficulties."
