Encounter and Fight with a Wounded Deer.

The Detroit Free Press says: "Perhaps there is no one now living in Wayne County more generally known than was the late Peter Fralick, a long time its Sheriff, and for many years a resident of Plymouth. Mr. Fralick, in his youth, was a powerful man, and a representative pioneer, having both muscle and courage, as well as an ardent love for the excitement of the chase. The following anecdote related by him to Mr. J. Decker, of Flint, twenty years ago, is as told by the latter:

"A number of years previous, and while Mr. Fralick was yet a young man, in searching the forest around Plymouth for game, he descried, at short range, a monster buck that stood contemplating his approach as if indifferent to danger, or, it may be, confident of its strength to avert it. The hunter at once drew bead on his game and fired, slightly wounding the animal. To his astonishment and dismay, instead of wheeling in its tracks and endeavoring to escape, the buck, with every hair erect upon its neck, and eyes flashing fire, violently stamped the ground for a moment, and then dashed full at the hunter, who had commenced reloading his rifle. Fralick realized in an instant his danger, and with clubbed gun aimed a furious blow at the oncoming animal, but its force was so far lost from its nearness as only to check it for an instant, and dropping his rifle, the hunter seized the now infuriated buck by the antlers, and endeavored to throw him. Around and around in a giddy circle, amid crashing brush and flying leaves, went Fralick and his game, the latter striking out with his sharp-pointed hoofs with lightning rapidity, and giving the latter all the business he could attend to in averting the danger of being disemboweled. The horrors of the hunter's situation he fully realized, and, with almost superhuman strength, he kept the animal from raising its head sufficiently high to allow its death-dealing feet to reach his body, but his lower limbs were in more imminent danger, and the perspiration oozed in streams from every pore. The contest lasted, it seemed to Fralick, for full five minutes, and, just as he began to feel his strength give way, he bethought himself that, to throw himself upon his back, he could maintain a more even struggle with his feet. This he accomplished, and then came a shower of blows upon his elevated cowhides, while on his part he now and then got in a kick that made the animal snort with pain. As the deer changed round to get a better chance at the body of the hunter, so did Fralick, with his back as a pivot, and thus the fight was continued at all points of the compass. Finally, as if yielding the contest, the buck retreated for a rod or so, and looking sideways at the prostrate man, stood pawing the ground. After resting a moment Fralick cautiously essayed to creep to his gun, but in an instant the buck was upon him, and again he was forced to the defensive. Again the buck retreated and again the hunter tried to recover his gun, but with the first motion he made in that direction the fight was renewed. This was repeated until Fralick, now almost upon the point of yielding to his fate from exhaustion, realized that his only hope was in assuming perfect quiet when the animal should again retreat. This he did, and after a little the deer, step by step, pausing, stamping, and watching him over its shoulder, reached a thicket of bushes, when it broke into a run and he saw no more of it. Pausing a while to recover breath and strength, Mr. Fralick at last, with difficulty, got to his feet, and with extreme exertion made his way home. Strange as it may seem, by his desperate energy and strength he had succeeded in preserving his body from harm. It had not received a scratch. His lower limbs also were but little injured, and his clothing but little torn. Not so with those cowhide boots, however; they were a curiosity that Mr. Fralick preserved, it is believed, to the day of his death.'

"The narrator states that they were shown him by the hero of the fight, who declared that money would not buy them. The fronts, from a point far up the leg, were cut in gashes toward the toes, as if with a sharpe knife, and so badly cut that had the contest continued a short time longer they would have been literally cut from his feet, and yet, strange to say, the injury to his feet was so trifling as hardly to incommode him.

"We have heard of several encounters with wounded and maddened deer, but seldom have heard of one so hotly contested and yet so bloodless as this."

How to Conduct a Courtship.

Don't be too sudden about it. Many a girl has said "no" when she meant "yes," simply because her lover didn't choose the right time, and pop the question gently.

Take a dark night for it. Have the blinds closed, the curtains down, and the lamp turned almost out. Sit near enough to her so you can hook your little finger into hers. Wait until conversation begins to flag, and then quietly remark:

"Susie, I want to ask you something?"

She will fidget around a little, reply "yes," and after a pause, you can add:

"Susie, my actions must have shown—that is you must have—I mean you must be aware that—that"—

Pause here awhile, but keep your finger firmly locked. She may cough and try to turn the subject off by asking you how you liked the circus, but she only does it to encourage you. After about ten minutes you can continue:

"I was thinking, as I came up the path to-night, that before I went away I would ask you—that is, I would broach the subject nearest my—I mean I would know my"—

Stop again and give her hand a gentle squeeze. She may give a yank to get it away or she may not. In either case it argues well for you. Wait about five minutes and then go on:

"The past year has been a very happy one to me, but I hope that future years will be still happier. However, that depends entirely on you. I am here to-night to know—that is to ask you—I mean I am here to-night to hear from your own lips the one sweet—"

Wait again. It isn't best to be too rash about such things. Give her plenty of time to recover her composure, and then put your hand on your heart and continue:

"Yes, I thought as I was coming through the gate to-night, how happy I had been; and I said to myself that if I only knew you would consent to be my—that is, I said if I only knew—if I was only certain that my heart had not deceived me, and you were ready to share"—

Hold on, there's no hurry about it. Give the wind a chance to sob and moan around the gables. This will make her lonesome, and call up all the love in her herat. When she begins to cough, and grow restless, you can go on:

"Before I met you this world was a desert to me. I didn't take any pleasure in going blackberrying, and stealing rare-ripe peaches, and it didn't matter whether the sun shone or not. But what a change in one short year! It is for you to say whether my future shall be a prairie of happiness, or a summer fallow of Canadian thistles. Speak, dearest Susie—and say that—that"—

Give her five minutes more by the clock, and then add:

"That you will be, that is, that you will—I mean that you will—be mine?"

She will heave a sigh, look up at the clock and over the stove, and then, as she slides her head over your vest pocket, she will whisper:

"You are just right—I will."

— A Sacramento lawyer remarked to the court: "It is my candid opinion, Judge, that you are an old fool!" The Judge allowed his mildly beaming eye to fall upon the lawyer a brief moment, then in a voice husky with suppressed emotion, said: "It is my candid opinion that you are fined $100!"

He Knew What He Wanted.

The Cincinnati Enquirer tells the following good story:

He entered the office of the West End undertaker the other day, with a look of great care on his honest face. His eyes were heavy and slightly bloodshot, telling of nightly vigils and loss of sleep. His hair was unkempt and shaggy. The soft-hearted man of coffins looked upon his visitor with a gaze of pity and thankfulness—pity for the customer's loss and thankfulness for his patronage. He was so young to be burdened with the loss of a dear one by death.

The manufacturer of burial cases nodded a silent, respectful and condoling recognition; "the young man from the country" gravely said, "How d'ye?" Then ensued a painful silence, broken at last by the man of grave business.

"Can I do anything for you to-day, sir?"

"Well, I reckon so, stranger."

Another silence. Once more the undertaker began by suggesting:

"Your sister?"

The young man started a moment, then, as light gradually broke upon his perplexed mind, he smiled a smile less suggestive of sorrow than happiness, and replied:

"No. My wife."

"Sudden?"

"No; expected sumthin' o' the kind for sum months."

"When did it happen?"

"'Bout four o'clock this mornin'."

"Look natural?"

"Rather." (Spoken carefully, and expressive of some doubt.)

"About what do you want the cost of it to be?"

"Don't care a darnation for expenses; git it up kinder nice. "I'll treat her handsum, 'cause she is the first one I ever had."

"Very well, my friend. You'll have it lined with white satin, I suppose?"

"Just as you say, stranger."

"Silver headed screws, too, I suppose?"

"Y-a-a-s, I s'pose so. And, stranger, just put a bully top to it."

"Oh, of course; and you'll want a glass in it also, I suppose?"

"Y-a-a-s—oh, certainly—you bet. Get her up sniptious, you know, old fellow. None of your dratted one horse fixins, fur me. No sir'ee."

"Just so. Silver handles, of course?"

"Eh? what's that yer say, stranger? Silver handles! oh, darn it, no; won't that be pilin' it on too hefty like? I kin stand silver screws and sich, but there's no use of makin' the hull tarnation trap of silver. The thing has to be moved, and must have handles, but I ain't so stuck up as that now—no, not quite, stranger."

"Very well," acquiesced the man of obsequies. "I'll put ordinary handles to it then."

"Eggs-actly, them's 'em, mister; now you'r talkin'. Or'nary handles 'll do. But, I say, stranger, (reflectively,) make the wheels glisten like thunder."

"Wh-wh-wh-eels!"

"Yes, wheels. What's the matter with you, anyhow?"

"Who ever heard of wheels to a coffin!"

"Coffin!" shrieked the dejected-looking young man. "Coffin! now, who the dickens said anything about coffins?"

"Why, don't you want a coffin?"

"N-e-o! durn your coffin! I want a cradle—a trap to rock my new baby in."

"And isn't your wife dead?"

"Not by a jugful. Don't you make cradles for sale?"

"No, my friend, I am an undertaker."

"Undertaker of what?"

"I make coffins."

"Oh, Lord, let me ketch that fellow that sent me here!"

And the grief-stricken youth crammed his hat over his eyes, ran his hands deep down in the pockets of his trouserloons, and pounced out on the streets searching for vengeance.

CAREFULNESS.—There is no estimating the amount of hard-earned property which is lost through a want of care in using. We wear things out fast by not being careful. We rip and tear, pitch and jerk, break and smash up things entirely too much. No wonder there are always chink-holes to be stopped up. No wonder the barrel gets empty when the leak is left open. Be careful. Keep cool. Go slow. Old Moses Stroup, of North Carolina, is a model for us. He has had for thirty years the same cob for shelling corn. He used the same pocket knife for thirty years. He has the mowing scythe of his grandfather, but it is worn off to its back, and he has laid it away. Moses is a Germon and a philosopher, and presume a rich man, He ought to be.

— A young fellow in San Francisco suddenly snatched a kiss from a lady friend, and excused his conduct by saying that it was sort of temporary insanity that now and then came upon him. When he arose to take his leave the pitying damsel said to him, "If you ever feel any more such fits coming on, you had better come right here where your infirmity is known, and we will take care of you."

NEARLY all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

Simmons' Liver Regulator, or Medicine,

Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
It is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

Only Forty Dollars a Ton.

GUANAHANI GUANO,

AN important natural Guano—a genuine Animal Deposit. A Cargo of 500 tons now on the way to this port. This Guano gave great satisfaction in Virginia and North Carolina the past season. Circular and certificates sent on application.

Prof. Wilson, of Baltimore, Md., says of this Guano: "By a critical examination of the analysis of the various cargoes you have imported, a striking feature is the great regularity in the percentage of the important constituents essential for the production of all crops."

Prof. F. A. Genth, of Philadelphia, Penn., says: "The Guano is evidently of animal original, and the minute bones which were discovered in the same indicate that it is the result of the decay of bats, mice, &c. The quantity of organic matter which is still present is about 12 per cent., and this yields about 2½ per cent. of ammonia. A portion of the nitrogen is present as nitric acid, of which about 3 per cent. were found. All the nitrogen present would be equivalent to about 3½ per cent. of ammonia. The phosphoric acid in the Guano averaged about 12½ per cent., equal to 27.3 per cent. of Bone Phosphate. A considerable quantity of the phosphoric acid, however, is present as so-called neutral Phosphate of Lime, which, being slightly soluble in water, renders the Guano as quick in its action as a corresponding quantity of Superphosphates would do. The small per centage of potash which was found in analysis adds to its value. From all the experiments which I have made of the Guanahani Guano no doubt can exist that it is a valuable manure."

Prof. H. C. White, of the Georgia State Agricultural Society, says: "As shown by the analysis, this Guano contains, in good proportion, all the elements which are generally considered as of value for plant food, and the forms and combinations in which they are present are such as to render them available to and assimilable by the plant. I should judge that the proper use of this article for purposes of fertilization would be attended with great profit."

Prof. Charles U. Shepard, jr., in a recent analysis of this Guano, says: "This Guano (of animal origin) would appear from its physical and chemical properties to answer every reasonable expectation of a commercial manure."

FARMERS, LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST.

GREAT HOME-MADE FERTILIZER.

SIMPSON, HILL & CO. would inform the Farming community that they are prepared to furinsh CHEMICALS, properly proportioned, for one of the best FERTILIZERS known, at not exceeding one-fourth the cost of the Commercial Fertilizers. Within the last three years we have placed it in the hands of some of the most thoroughly practical Farmers of the County, who express themselves fully satisfied with results, regarding it as equal, if not superior to any of the Commercial, some of them having tested them side by side. We refer you to a few of them, viz: WM. BURRISS, JOHN BROWN, JAMES A. DRAKE HUGH MCCARLEY, GEO. STEVENSON, DR. CARPENTER, JOHN DALRYMPLE, Rev. JACOB BURRISS. Many others might be mentioned. In no case have unfavorable results been reported. Please call on us at our Drug Store and get your Chemicals, also formula and directions for use.

Consumption Cured!

OFFICE OF O. SACKETT, Drugs and Medicines,
NEW ALBANY, IND., April 10, 1874.

Dr. J. S. Pemberton, Atlanta, Ga.—DEAR SIR: I have received your circulars, and in consequence of the distribution, I have sold about six dozen Globe Flower Syrup in the last two weeks. The Globe Flower Syrup is gaining great celebrity. I recommended it in two cases of consumption. One case was bed-fast: had not laid on but one side for two years; hemorrhages almost every day; much emaciated, and expected to die. He has taken six bottles of Globe Glower Syrup; his troubles are all gone, except prostration, which is rapidly improving. He will certainly get well. The other case is similar, with same good results. I can send you many testimonials if you want them.

Yours truly, etc.,
O. SACKETT.

HUMBOLT, TENN., April 18, 1874.

Dr. J. S. Pemberton, Atlanta, Georgia: DEAR SIR—I bought from Redwine & Fox two bottles of your Globe Flower Cough Syrup, which has cured me of a severe cough and bleeding from the lungs—which I had been afflicted with for over twelve months. One of my friends, who had been afflicted with a terrible weakening cough and bleeding from the lungs for nearly two years, was cured by the use of four bottles of your Globe Flower Syrup. I have taken all kinds of Cough and Lung Balsams of the day, and consider your Globe Flower Syrup the best—superior to all other preparations. I have recommended it to a great many sufferers, and the same good effects have been experienced by all who have used it. The Globe Flower Syrup is a great blessing to the world. God speed you in the introduction of it. J. RIDGE.

REMARKABLE CURE.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, April 12, 1874.

Dr. J. S Pemberton: It gives me great pleasure to inform you that two bottles of Globe Flower Syrup have cured my son of an obstinate lung affection of several years' standing, after our best physicians had given him up to die, with what they called Consumption. I shall ever remember with grateful heart and recommend to all the Globe Flower Syrup. It has brought more sunshine and happiness to our hearts and home than one million dollars could have done. God bless you. Your friend,
ELIZABETH SPENCER.

Death of Gov. Bramlette---Action of the Trustees ---A Successor Appointed---No More Postponements---Drawing Certain February 27th.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Public Library of Kentucky, Jan. 16, 1875, it was resolved that C. M. Briggs, Esq., who under the late Hon. Tho. E. Bramlette was the real business manager of the gift concerts already given in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, be and he is hereby authorized to take the place made vacant by the death of said Bramlette, in the management of the affairs of the fifth and last gift concert, and that the drawing announced for February 27, 1875, shall positively and unequivocally take place on that day without any further postponement or delay on any account whatever.

R. T. DURRETT, Pres.
JOHN S. CAIN, Secretary.

Hereafter all communications relating to the fifth Concert should be addressed to the undersigned, and I pledge myself that the drawing shall come off February 27th or that every dollar paid for tickets shall be returned.
