BRIEF MENTION.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mrs. C. C. Pegg, which appears in another column,

Mr. Wm. L. Massey, of Winston Co., Miss., who has been a regular subscriber to the Intelligencer for a number of years, paid us a visit on Monday last. He is a son of Mr. Silas Massey, of this County, and removed to Mississippi over thirty years ago.

On Friday last, through the kind indulgence of their teacher, the pupils of the Carolina Collegiate Institute, together with many invited friends, enjoyed a pleasant picnic on "Silver Brook," a small yet beautiful stream about one and a half miles east of this place.

The School Commissioner informs us that an act has been received by him relieving the County Commissioners from proving school claims. Hereafter they will only be signed by school trustees, and approved by him. The Treasurer will be in town on each Srturday to settle them.

Each Lodge of Good Templars in Anderson County is requested to send one delegate for each ten members composing their Lodge to Orien Lodge, near Mt. Bethel Church in Martin township, on the third Saturday in May, 1876, for the purpose of forming a County Union of Good Templars.

James L. Orr, Esq., will address the citizens of Varennes and vicinity at Flat Rock on the fourth Saturday in this month at 2 o'clock p. ra., upon the issues involved in the present canvass. The Democratic Club at that place respectfully invite the ladies and gentlemen of that section to be present.

We are requested by A. J. Watt, the President, to announce that there will be an extra meeting of the Anderson Court House Democratic Club on next Friday night in Masonic Hall. The Young Men's Christian Association met in Temperance Hall on last Wednesday evening. The attendance was large and the meeting pleasant. Mr. G. F. Tolly was elected President, Mr. W. C. The Charleston Journal of Commerce made its appearance on the 1st of May, bright and Here we found the schooner "Centennial," piquant in appearance, and filled with an excellent variety of original and selected matter. The names of the editors and managers do not appear in its columns, but we hear that the editorial department is under control of Gen. James R. Truehart, a Virginia journalist of much experience, and that the business department is managed by Mr. Thos. W. Brown, a native of North Carolina, who has lately been engaged in newspaper life in New York. The Journal of Commerce as its name indicates will devote much attention to the commercial and material interests of the State, and in politics will be staunchly Democratic, working earnestly to promote harmony and unity among the good people of South Carolina. We extend a cordial greeting to the new journal, which has been received with genuine favor in the metropolis. Terms, Eight Dollars per an-

A meeting was held in Franklin, N. C., on the 19th of April, in the interest of the Blue Ridge Railroad. Capt. J. L. Robinson and Dr. W. L. Love made short speeches in regard to the recent meeting at Anderson, and urged the people to send a full delegation to Charleston on the 25th inst .-Both speakers referred to the hospitality of the citizens of Anderson and the courtesy of the railroad authorities in passing the delegates. A resolution was adopted declaring that the people of Macon County have an abiding confidence in the final success of the Blue Ridge Railroad, and an unalterable purpose to contribute a part of their slender resources to accomplish this result when the which added so much to the general pleas-ure of the occasion. At the appointed hour, Col. E. M. Rucker, the orator of the day, with his usual felicity, charmed and capti-vated his audience for some thirty minutes, time arrives. Twenty delegates to Charleston were appointed, including Capt. Robinson, Dr. Love and Prof. Smith. Are the people of Anderson not going to make arrangements for adequate representation in the Charleston meeting? It is time to hold a meeting for that purpose, as only two weeks remain until the delegates are expected in vated his audience for some thirty minutes, after which came the dinner, which was a splendid success, and one which will ever be remembered with great pleasure by those present, especially by the Carolinians.

GOOD HAY FROM THE RAG-WEED.

Has it ever occurred to our farmers that they can obtain a supply of long forage by curing the ordinary rag-weed? In the May number of the Rural Carolinian, we find the report of an experiment made by Col. J. Wash. Watts, of Laurens, who is a practical and experienced farmer, and a gentleman of undoubted veracity. This report proves that an abundance of long forage can be harvested from the stubble fields, where the rag-weed grows spontaneously, and at a very light cost. Col. Watts writes as follows to the editor of the Rural Carolinian :

the editor of the Rural Carolinian:

Some time ago, I promised to give you the result of my experiment with the rag-weed hay, as feed for horses. I had seen it fed to sheep in Pennsylvania, but I did not know whether horses would eat it, or whether they would be benefitted by eating it.

The drought being heavy on our crops, and knowing that food would be very scarce, I concluded to try the weeds; so I put a hand to cutting them while in bloom, and cut several tons, always cutting in the forenoon and raking up into cocks in the afternoon, and in two days hauling into the barn; by this time they were usually well enough cured to pack away, which should be done as early as they will bear it.

We began to feed to the horses at once, and fed no other fodder or hay for three months, and I have never had horses to do onths, and I have never had horses to do months, and I have never had horses to do better on any forage; they ate it with avidity to the last stem, and improved all the time, notwithstanding their corn rations were light. I am satisfied that it is as good and as healthy feed as we can desire, and from its abundance, we can fill our barns with the' cheapest fodder that grows—the "rag-weed hav."

weed hay."

As a feed for sheep, I am assured by one of the best shepherds in Pennsylvania, that his sheep prefer it to his timothy hay; that he regards it as good, healthy feed for sheep.

Why we have not found this out long since I am at a loss to know, but I do know that I never again expect to be out of fodder so long as we can grow a crop of rag-weeds. Nearly every stubble field grows up in either rag-weed or crab-grass, and either will make good enough hay if properly cured and housed.

For the Anderson Intelligencer. YOUNG MEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

MESSES EDITORS: Please allow me a little pace in your paper to present a few ideas, which I hope will meet with an impartial consideration before they are either approved and adopted or pronounced imprac and unwise. You have doubtless anticipated my whole article by merely reading its caption, for there having been no advocates of a Young Men's Democratic Club in our midst, you would naturally expect no argument against such a project. I propose to advocate the immediate organization of a Young Men's Democratic Club, not because the young men are not already Democrats and members of Clubs, but because I think they do not now take the interest in these Club to themselves. Some time since you by the results of the primary election, Democratic Clubs throughout the country, Do you pledge yourself to vote for and use in order that the strength and patriotism of our State might be prepared for the coming the persons who are declared by the manacampaign—the fight for justice, truth and honor. How far and how well this organization has been perfected, you and your readers are aware. You have also doubtless noticed how promptly and unanimously the Clubs: but, we may ask, do they take the vital interest in the matter that they should? Do they not rather feel that they should keep silence and let the old Democrats and old voters do the talking and planning for nothing but the ticket," and we will show a the Clubs? It is but natural that they should so think and feel, and for want of publican party in this County for all time the proper exercise it is but natural that, to come, besides giving a wholesome lesson sooner or later, their interest in political affairs would begin to fail them. We do office-seekers who, for the joke's sake, are not want the young men to lose interest in this great campaign, but we want them to move onward with an increasing determination to aid in one mighty effort to rescue way at the next election there can be no doubt; but we must remember that we are not only to vote right ourselves, but are to get the pottage. They have met with defeat bring over as many votes as possible from the opposition. In other words, these young men are not every reason to believe that the time has only to become voters, but workers also. Now, we think this end can be best accomplished by the young men organizing a Club fast to their time-honored principles, will among themselves, where they can talk and express their ideas and opinions freely to such and awaken them to new life and each other, thereby increasing their zeal and hope. No such enthusiasm, energy and strengthening their patriotism. If this action should be taken, they would of course have to withdraw from the old Club, but in This zeal is a harbinger of the triumph of doing so the Democracy would not be weakened. The party would only be the stronger by the young men understanding the importance of their position; and when the November elections shall have come round, they will turn out in full numbers. both as voters and workers, to aid in making that day glorious and long to be reand uphold our prostrate State. We have

Let the young men think of this proposition, and then act according to their best judgment. If there is any good reason why the proposed action should not be taken, of course we would like to have it.

CENTENNIAL PICNIC AT CRAFT'S FERRY MESSES. EDITORS: Perhaps a brief account of the Picnic at Craft's Ferry, on Savannah River, will not prove wholly void of interest to some of your many readers. A three hours' ride over good roads, through verdant forest, in the fresh and invigorating morning air peculiar to our Piedmont region alone, brought us to Stevenson's Ferry. (named in honor of the occasion,) riding at anchor. A large number of young ladies and gentlemen, representing much of the beauty and gallantry of Hart, were already impatiently waiting on deck. All being safely aboard, Captain Craft, the expert fresh-water navigator, gave the necessary orders, anchor was weighed, joyfully the sails were given to the breeze, the sturdy oarsmen plied the steady stroke, and proudly down the river the "Centennial" moved in silent majesty. How jolly! all were ready to exclaim. Beautiful water, pictu-resque banks on either side, robed in nature's purest, richest green, waved a happy wel-come to all. Only those who had the pleas-ure of the ride will call to memory the beautiful panoramic scenes of nature our pen is wholly incompetent to describe. A two hour's ride down the Savannah comes only once in a while and fain would we linger among the varied scenes. Once more we would wish our ears ravished, and time robbed of its tardiness by merry boat songs from young ladies. The silvery strains floating over the placid water seem to linger yet within memory's halls. How many—but the spell is broken—we have reached the landing, while the loud cheers of those on shore bid us welcome. Hundreds had assembled. The arrangements for the Picnic were complete, nature having done her part by providing living seats for so vast a crowd. Mr. Saunders, a sympathizer of humanity, knew the weary traveler would need refreshments; so he, too, was there with delicious confectioneries and ice lemonds to coll lower beated heart. Of course nade to cool lover's heated heart. Of course the "Romeos" can't stay away when the beautiful "Juliets" have gone. For the better entertainment of the gay and light of heart, Mr. S. had a platform erected, upon which the "light fantastic toe" kept time to the good music of the Elberton string band, which added so much to the general pleas-

PALMETTO.

Messes Enrops: Now that the Dem cratic party of the County is thoroughly organized, it is gratifying to every lover of good order and good government to know that with harmonious action the future of our County at least is secure—the success of the party at the approaching election being fully assured. To insure the continuance of the harmony now manifestly existing throughout the organization, let every good citizen earnestly labor; and ignoring all personal and selfish considerations, address himself with earnestness and enthusiasm to the work which sound policy and patriotism alike dictate.

For the Anderson Intelligencer

That the nominations of the party for the coming campaign are to be made by primary election is now regarded as the settled policy of the party. Many believed and still believe that there are serious objections to the plan; but this is simply mentioned here to state further, that inasmuch as it was clearly demonstrated at the late County Convention that a large majority of Democracy favored that plan, the minority cheerfully acquiesced, as they will certainly do in the future, even though the question may be of a much graver nature and the majority ever so small.

The question next to be considered is "At what time is the primary election to be holden?" It is presumed that there will be a County Convention called sometime during the summer to settle that and other questions that may arise, or the Executive Committeee may order it. In either case, discussion as to time and manner of holding it cannot be amiss.

There are many and substantial reason for delaying the primary elections until a very short time before the general electiontime for the circulation of the County papers giving the result of the election seems to be sufficient. Let candidates announce themselves or their friends announce them as usual; let everybody run that wants to, whether nominated by a local club or not; let them canvass the County, exchanging views with the farmers, and the people will have ample opportunity to judge of their respective merits, and make up their minds eliberately for whom they will give their suffrage. Let their be no hurry before the primary election. Let all the hurry be afterwards. Give no time for "sore heads" to compare notes; no time for outsiders or insiders to tamper with the disaffected and disappointed.

But to return to the candidates. To avoid all mistakes they should be required to answer through the public press the following interrogatives: Are you a member of any Democratic, Club in the County? Do advocated the immediate organization of whether you receive the nomination or not? your influence in favor of the election of gers of the primary election to be the choice of the party?

Let no candidate be voted for at the primary election who fails to answer these questions unqualifiedly in the affirmative. young men have enrolled themselves in the If this course is pursued there can be no cause to apprehend dissension and division at the last moment. All we will have to do will be to get all of our neighbors, go to the polls, vote "the ticket, the whole ticket and majority that will give a quietus to the Refor the edification of all "weak-backed" miss-named independent, as they are independent of nothing, save political princi-

There are many amongst us who have almost dispaired of ever witnessing better in our Town Club quite a number of young times in South Carolina. They sold their birth right for a mess of pottage, and then didn't and disappointment till they have not courage to make another effort. But there is come when the Democracy, placing themselves squarely before the people, holding make a fight which should reanimate all since reconstruction as at this momen decency and honesty in South Carolina. There are better times in store for us, and they are in the very near future. We have faith in the purity of Democratic principles. and faith that the people have the honesty and patriotism to maintain them. MESSRS. EDITORS: As circumstances pre vented my reply to your answer to my communication from appearing last week, I ask space in your columns for a few words, specially in reply to the personal allusions made by you. It must be evident to every impartial mind that your personal allusions were made in absence of any substantial easons why the course suggested by me should not be adopted, and to detract, if possible, from its influence.

I shall merely reply to such matters as are calculated to place me in a false position before some of your readers, leaving it for time to prove whose course would have been more practicable. Should the Democracy make a straight-out fight, and the Republicans elect for Governor one of the worst element of their party, or should the Democracy support Chamberlain and be successful, then give me credit for my better judgment, but should the Democracy make a straight-out fight and be successful, or by supporting Chamberlain be defeated, then say my judgment was errone ous, but do not attempt to prejudice the minds of the people against the course suggested by me, by making personal allusions that have nothing to do with the question at issue. The question is not one of selfish interest, but what course will more probably secure the best government. Any attempt to bring other matters into the question, is foreign to the issue.

Although I am an appointee of the Gov ernor and a U. S. Commissioner, still, I have attempted to divest myself of every interest except the interest of the State, and to what extent I have succeeded remains for the future to tell. I admit that personal interest sometimes have a bearing unconsciously, but what effect the holding of the positions alluded to by you could or can have on me, I am not able to discern. Could I not have remained silent or even advocated a straightout ticket without any fear of being removed? Or if removed would it be such a great loss? I think, Messrs. Editors, that you do me a great injustice in attempting to create an impression that my judgment could be swayed by so small a matter. You intimate that I am not the person to suggest to the Democracy what course to oursue, because I do not belong to a Democratic Club. Is this your idea? Would you suppress every sentiment that did not accord with your own? Must every man belong to a Democratic Club before he has a right to give expression to his views? I did not propose to advise the Democracy, but simply to make some suggestions, which the citizen can either approve or disapprove. If they disapprove them, then we simply do not agree in our judgments, that's all. But if your reasoning is correct, then for the same reason I am not the person to suggest to the Republicans what course to pursue, because I do not belong to any Republican organization. I am, therefore, where I desire to beno partisan, but free to adopt whatever seems to me right and expedient; no politician, but free to cast my vote as my judgment may dictate. This position I should have retained in silence had it not been for the pressure brought to bear upon me to induce me to join a Democratic Club, and some reflections cast on myself and others for refusing to do so. There are some men, Messrs. Editors, that cannot be driven, and if there is one thing that I do glory in it is the moral courage to follow the dictates of my own conscience, even though it be against a popular clamor. When I was asked to join the Democratic Club I was asked to sign a paper pledging myself to stand to and abide by the nominations of the Democratic party, and to denounce every independent candidate as a Radical negro office seeker. I am not nor will not be a candidate for any office, therefore, if a desire for office is the motive power to action, it did not influence or control my actions. Had I desired any office in the gift of the people of Anderson, and had been governed by that desire, irrespective of every other consideration, I probably should have signed my name to the paper, contented for a straight-out fight, and denounced every other sentiment as being prompted by some selfish interest, This at least would have seemed the more practicable course, if the motive power had peen a desire to obtain office. I did not do so, however, and consequently am unfit even to suggest to the Democracy what seems to me the best course in order to obtain the best government. We who have not joined Democratic Clubs have no war to make against those who have. They have the same right to do so that we have not to do so. I doubtless would have joined a Club myself had I only been required to assent and ascribe to an enunciation of Democratic principles, leaving the course to be determined after the organization was complete. But not desiring to feel myself bound by any pledge, but to be at liberty to vote as seemed to me best, and not believing a straight-on fight as anticipated practicable, I refused to sign the paper requisite to become a member of the Club. Had others been content with my simple refusal I should have been, for I desire no political publicity—it is treacherous, it is dangerous. If your reasoning be correct, that non are Democrats but those who belong to Democratic Clubs, then the Democrats in Anderson County are considerably in the minority. But, Messrs. Editors, this is not the case, for there are many Democrats who refused to pledge themselves who, when hey cast their votes, will not be ashamed to vote an open ticket if necessary. It is not necessary to belong to a Democratic Club to know how to vote. I do not cast a single reflection on those who have joined Clubs. It would as little become me to do so as it would those who have joined to censure those who have not.

If, therefore, my reasons are understood for not joining a Democratic Club, I am content to accept the position that you would assign me, and to take no part in politics, leaving it for time and the judgment of the people to decide whether coalition is any more wrong or a sin than it was four or two years ago, and whether a straight-out fight will effect more than to ascertain positively the difference in the Republican and Democratic vote of the State, and to decide whether the Republican majority will be more than Chamberlain's over Green at the last election.

Having replied to the personal allusions contained in your answer, at least satisfactorily to myself, and desiring to end this unpleasant controversy, I shall silently assume the position that you would so graciously accord me, and which is more than agreeable to me. I am, therefore,

Most respectfully, JOHN E. BREAZEALE.
