ST. JOHN'S DAY.

In every clime where Free Masonry easts her mantle of charity, and extends he hand of brotherly love, the Fraternity accustomed to celebrate the festivals of Evangelist. While the cycles of time nove on apace, while kingdoms and emoires have been cast down and forgot while Egypt's once mighty cities lie encomed in eternal sand, Masonry, coeval with and ante-dating written history, perpetuates in eternal memory, and preserves to the Craft the work of the true. the beautiful, the good. The 24th of June is a festive occasion, set apart by the craft to worship the Grand Architect of the Universe.

On last Monday a large number of the fraternity assembled at the Masonic Hall, and there formed in procession with Hon. J. L. Orr as Marshal, assisted by J. R. Williams, and unfurled their standard of "Faith and Hone" "Charity and Wisdom," "Strength and Beauty," and marched in time to the stirring strains of the Anderson Cornet Band to the Carolina Collegiate Institute. It being a busy time, there was not an unusually large crowd in attendance, but a sufficient number was present to make the occasion both interesting and pleas-

J. F. C. DuPre, of Abbeville, was the first speaker, and gave an interesting history of the rise and progress of the Order. He claimed that its origin was coeval with Adam, was known and practiced by Noah, and continued by his decendants in its purity until the building of the tower of Babel. That after the curse was pronounced upon them, those who had not participated in the "crime" continued the pure Freemasonry, and the other established a spurious system That these two followed parallel curtheir new office, south side of Court House rents till the building of King Solomon's Temple. That they were then united and blended into one, and have so continued to this time. He next instanced some historical facts which occurred from the completion of the temple until the are glad to learn that he is rapidly recoverchange in 1714. Then briefly and concisely noticed some of its leading doc-tries and principles—the belief in a God, the immortality of the soul, the resurrection of the body. He next explained its principle tenets—brotherly love, rewas to make man wiser, better and happier. He denied that Free Masonry is a church, or a religion, and denied and replied to the objection that it is a "secret society," and then closed with an earnest exhortation to the craft to prove their faith by their works. .

Maj. John B. Moore was the next speaker introduced. He began by discussing the etymology of Masonry .-Showed how many different nations had claimed its origin. He then claimed its origin from the building of King Solomon's Temple. The subject of Masonry was then discussed by the degrees from the Entered Apprentice to the 9th, or Royal Master's degree. That the Entered Apprentice represented Youth, the Fellow Craft, Manhood, and the Master Mason, Old Age. That the Master Mason discovered that truth was lost, and that the Royal Arch Mason found it, was found. He then spoke of some of the objections to Masonry. That if the uninitiated condemn us no Mason will oppose you, but will pity you and pray for you, because you know not what you do. And he closed by paying a beautiful tribute to woman, in which he claimed that the virtuous, true and good woman was man's beau-ideal of Masonic perfection. That sheeneed not be initiated by us, for she was already initiated by the God of her creation.

Dr. R. F. Divver was the next speaker. outside of the tiled recesses of the Lodge That it was a system which taught sublime truths, and painted grandly the beautiful, the good, the pure. He then discussed what Masonry was. That it had been beautifully represented to be a system of morality. veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols. That the order was founded on the great masonic doctrines of a God, and the immortality of the soul. He then proceeded to discuss the teachings of Masonry. He said that a good Mason is a good man and neighbor, and that it was not every man who wore the badge of a Mason on the lappel of his coat that is a true Mason, but that it was the sober, the temperate, the good man that makes the true Mason. He then dealt some heavy blows at those who brought reproach upon the order by drunkenness. In concluding, he claimed that the brder had been foremost in promoting plans for the moral and intellectual elevation

It is impossible to do the speakers justice in such brief outlines.

The speaking being over, the crowd repaired to the beautiful grove where the baskets, whose swelling sides were almost ready to burst with good things, were brought out and their contents discussed with enthusiasm by the whole

On Thursday and Friday nights last Anderson was treated to a fine representation of the Cantata entitled the "Haymakers." The piece is divided into two days' work. The first day the reapers mow the hay, then the girls turn it. Then they have a rustic dining, which was splendidly represented. In the evening the dairy-maid comes, (not to milk the cows,) and at night Snipkins, a city fop, who is rusticating, comes to serenade his Katie, the dairy-maid, but is interrupted by the "Katie-dids," and leaves in disgust. The second day the hay is turned, then piled and hauled away, an approaching shower facilitating matters perceptibly. It was given for the benefit of the Episcopal Church Rectory, and reflected great credit on Miss Lizzie Morris, its head, and the different ladies and gentlemen who participated. The music throughout was in perfect tune, and the voices in beautiful accord. Such entertainments are very instructive and refining, and should be more liberally attended, as it is seldom we have anything approaching it in Anderson.

BARBECUE IN THE DARK CORNER.

Col. Elias McGee requests us to say that every arrangement will be made to make the barbecue which comes off at his house in Dark Corner township, on the 4th of St. John the Baptist and St. John the July, a grand success. The Western Cavalry Regiment, all the citizens of the County, but the ladies especially, are invited to attend and bring their baskets to help out the barbecue. Good order will be enforced. The following speakers have been invited to be present and address the meeting Gen. S. McGowan, Col. J. S. Cothran, Hon J. P. Reed, Hon. J. L. Orr, Dr. W. C. Brown, Maj. John B. Moore, B. F. Crayton, Esq., Col. E. M. Rucker, E. B. Murray, Esq., Gen. W. W. Humphreys. The people of the Dark Corner are noted for their hospitality, and those who attend will doubtless enjoy a pleasant day.

A solitary bale of last year's cotton crop was brought here and sold last week by Mr. Som Grant Several schools, including the Academy here, will resume on the 1st day July proximo .....Latterly a very large Sunday School was instituted at Smith Chapel, Methodist, with Mr. Dickert, of the Lutheran persuasion, as Superintendent. .....The population of this place, as shown by a late census, is 155-79 whites and 76 blacks ..... Tom. Clark, of Fair Play, the contractee, (or "or," whichever is correct,) who conveys the mail between Pendleton and a point in Georgia, via this place, lost a valuable horse here from colic while on a regular trip last week ...... There will be preaching in the Presbyterian Church here on next Saturday and Sunday, the 29th and 30th, by the Revs. Dr. Adger, of Pendleton, and Prof. Riley, of Adger College. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed on Sunday.....The best yield of wheat in this locality, so far, is ten bushels to one sowed, (without manuring,) and the worst turnout falls on a colored man in this place, who declares he "didn't got two bundles" from a bushel sowed ..... Elias Mason, residing on "nubbin ridge," a few miles from this place in Oconee, has dispatched nine rattle-snakes at as many different times within the past two or three months. One of them attacked him whilst he was plowing, and had fastened its fangs in his breeches leg near the foot, and was thus being dragged along before he discovered it.

On killing it he found it to be fifteen years old. You can set him "head" as a snakekiller ..... Nannie Tribble, twelve years old, who is a member of the Baptist Sunday School here, of which Mr. E. P. Earle is Superintendent, memorized perfectly four hundred and forty-one Bible verses, in the short space of one week. This speaks well, and is sixty-five verses ahead of Mattie Mc-Carley, of the Presbyterian School, whom I alluded to latterly.

"A REIGN OF TERROR." Soon after crossing the "Keowee" we noiced that on the sound of our horse's footsteps reaching any little hamlet, heads would be cautiously poked out of the doors or round the corners of buildings, followed by a seemingly hurried consultation, and the men would either become invisible, or their fleeting forms would be seen making for the woods on the mountain sides. This was almost invariably the case on nearing and crossing the North Carolina line. At and the "Cryptic" Mason showed how it last we reached a vicinity where we were well known, and where resided several whom we knew were not engaged in illicit whiskey making, and on enquiring the cause of such conduct we were told that all in the mountoins were afraid of the Revenue officers as it mattered not whether innocent or guilty. that they were sure of being ill-treated, and would be compelled to act as guides or receive a round of curses and abuse hard to bear, besides risking their lives if willing to be guides. From all accounts the killing of Ladd was a most brutal and uncalled-for act, as all in his neighborhood are confident the officers They all deplore the present state of affairs, that there is a spirit of depredation being felt that may, if not soothed, tend to serious consequences, not only to the mountain people, but to the high-handed Revenue officials. Surely, Collector Brayton can use some discretion as to the sort of persons he employs to protect the Revenue And if he can only induce the scum and low down whites to execute his orders, he can certainly put them under the command of some officer who will restrain their thirst for blood and propensities for abusing old women and children, a frequent practice of theirs when on a raid. # THE FORK DEMOCRACY.

Townville, June 25. The meeting of Club No. 1 at Farmer's Store, on last Saturday, was a decided and pronounced success. The attendance was much larger than was anticipated in view of the busy season with the crops, and a most encouraging feature of the day was the attendance of a fair proportion of the Fork's most charming ladies. The good women of the country are not probably conscious of the degree of wholesome enthusiasm which their presence on such occasions inspires. Cols. Orr and Rucker each paid a handsome tribute to the zeal and interest which they, the State over, manifested in the political crisis two years ago, saying that the positive spirit which they exhibited in the historic days of '76the centennial of the nation's birth-was the prime stimulas which led to the remanding to Carolina's own sons the pilot-age of the dear old ship of State. It was previously intended to elect dele gates to the County Convention at this meeting, but upon consultation it was deemed advisable to hold a call meeting for that purpose on the first Saturday in July, which would afford time to swell the membership, thus entitleing the club to larger representation. At present the club has inety-two members, and at the next meeting the list will doubtless reach one hundred and twenty-five. Col. E. M. Rucker, Maj. Murray, of the INTELLIGENCER, Col. J. L. Orr. Hon. H. R. Vandiver and Hon, B. F. Crayton were present, and delivered pertinents addresses upon the issues before the people. I would like to individualize these speeches, but space prevents. I must say, however, that Messrs. Murray and Orr gave some wholesome advice and information to the colored men, a handful of whom were present. Here, too, I will say that several colored men have enrolled themselves as members of this club, and that there is a likelihood of several others joining. A the close of the speaking several tables were spread with delicious and appetite whetting edibles in super-abundance, to which it is needless to add ample justice was done. The Fork ladies have a peculiar and coveted knack in making "good victuals," and the sterner, brawny element, the "horrible men." have a still more peculiar knack in gulping the "good things." I don't pretend to say that they are anacondas, but that they are epicures, and do enjoy a "square meal" of delicacies, and who doesn't? They appear to be guided in this respect by that trite phrase which says:

As the evening wore away the young peo ple had a lively dance at Mr. Farmer's residence, and so enjoyable indeed was the en-tire day, that the club proposes to have a similar rally, though on a larger scale, sometime in August.

WILLIAMSTON FEMALE COLLEGE. COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

MR. Ebiron: Stepping into the large, ommodious chapel of this institution on Wednesday evening last, quite a pleasing scene met our gaze. The hall was already ast filling. On the stage was a number of ministers of various denominations from all over the State. The rostrum was tastefully lecorated. In letters of silver, just above we see, "What hath God Wrought?" Immediately on the left of this "72," on the right "78." A powerful interrogatory! Many changes have taken place even in this short space of time. Taking a retrospective view, through these years of this College's life, we see some mistakes, a few sad incidents, but upon the whole it is a pleasant view. She is a child yet, and all children make mistakes. The faculty should be congratulated on their success.

Mr. Lander has just cause to be proud of his child. At half-past eight Rev. S. A. Weber, for-merly of this institution, now of Orangeburg, S. C., arose to deliver the annual sermon before the Young Ladies Christian Association. For one hour he held a hetcrogenous mass of humanity, literally crammed into the hall-some very uncomfortably seated, and others not seated at all-perfectly spell-bound. Such good order we never saw before, not even in church. The singing was splendid. Mr. Lander's pupils are noted for their singing and penmanship.

On Thursday morning we had the address before the Erosophic Society. Before the address was in order came some very fine music on piano, organ and bells. We took no notes, and consequently cannot mention names as we would like. Maybe it is well we cannot. Like Col. Rucker's average young man of the age, we might get ourselves into a scrape. Hon, E. M. Rucker was the orator for the day. A happy selection. The Colonel speaks with less effort than any one we ever heard before. We are sorry we have not room for his speech. It was a finished production, and was listened to throughout with the profoundest attention. Amongst all the beautiful performances and singing which followed Col. Rucker's speech, we cannot refrain from noting specially that exquisite rendition of "Break Break, Break," by Miss Tommie Hall. The performance for the morning was closed with the Graduating Exercises. The class consisted of five-Misses Hollingsworth, Vesta Mauldin, Mamie Mauldin, McMakin and Hall. The class by their own vote decided to graduate in calico dresses. This, we were informed by Dr. Lander, is to be a feature of the school hereafter. All are to wear calico dresses without jewelry. In accordance with this rule, the young ladies appeared in plain calico, made up simply but tastefully. We shudder to think what havoc that class might have played with the hearts of the beaux present had they been dressed as graduates usually are. They did valiant service as it was. Dr. Lander should try hereafter to arrange it so that the prettiest girls in school should not all graduate at once. We think the whole audience sympathized with the President when he stepped forward and with tears in his eyes delivered the following BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS. DEAR CHILDREN-There is no affectation in me when I say, "The melancholy day has come, the saddest of the year;" for, though these scenes and circumstances have in them many elements of joy, as in this juncture I review the past, and realize to some extent the meaning of this hour, there exerced the meaning of this hour, there some extent the meaning of this hour, there crowd themselves upon me clashing emotions of pleasure and of pain, of which the painful much predominate.

The last year, the last lesson, the last opportunity, the last interview—these words would not suggest so serious thoughts, if we but knew that every previous privilege had been improved, and every previous lesson had been duly taught and learned. But, as I gaze upon you now, I can not well repress the rising fear that by some dereliction on my part, some sad misapprehension of your special needs, I may have left the work of your development too much imperfect, and thus have fastened to you for all time to come inseparable evidence of my neglect. But then it gives me real joy to feel that, in our mutual intercourse throughout, you have evinced a laudable desire to cultivate your intellectual powers, improve the privileges you have had at hand and he in read-have evinced a laudable desire to cultivate your intellectual powers, improve the privileges you have had at hand, and be in readiness for any post of duty that may be assigned you on the stage of active life.

You come to-day to swell the number of a noble band. Scattered indeed, how widely but everywhere a blessing; filling here a faithful teacher's chair, or there dividing a foud husband's care and joy, or lingering still beside the native hearth, to strengthen cards of nure affection and elevate the aims still beside the native hearth, to strengthen cords of pure affection and elevate the aims and aspirations of the household—your alma mater points to-day with pardonable pride to those who heretofore have occupied your place, and says, "These are my jewels." In their name, I give you cordial welcome to their midst, and bid you constantly to vie with these your elder sisters in every practicable effort to adorn society and bless mankind.

From '72 to '78, what hath God wrought! Saying nothing now of the hundreds of undergraduates who from time to time have undergraduates who from time to time have received more or less benefit from attendance on our labors here, think for a moment of the incalculable possibilities of blessing represented by the twenty-nine who, having earned them well, have borne away these parchment testimonials of our favor. Twenty-nine centres of wholesome Christian influence; twenty-nine cultivated charac-ters, to shed forth with moon-like gentle-ness the reflected brilliancy of the Sun of righteousness;—who shall count the heavy hearts made glad, the clouds of ignorance and sin dispelled, the brilliant blessings every way dispensed, by these our boasted treatty.pine?

Twenty-nine! So soon! So young! So Twenty-nine! So soon! So young! So promising! Must I subtract already one from our small number? Must I record it only twenty-eight? Last christmas Ida left us. Though thoroughly imbued with laudable desire for further culture, while in the very act of prosecuting her design to make herself still more a blessing to her kind, her earthly race was ended, and she was but too soon transferred to the Heavenly arend. And yet I make no subtraction. We still have twenty-nine: for from that higher sphere, she looketh down, and doubtless more than ever scatters benedictions through the house made saddest by her unexpected leaving. 'Truly, she being dead yet speaketh. Let us who still survive bear ever in our minds the earnest question, "Wherefore are we spared?" and let us too remember that the time is short, and that the school you enter now, the school of experience, that the time is short, and that the school you enter now, the school of experience, the school of duty, the school of real life, knows no vacation on this side of Heaven. Go then, my children, to the posts assigned you in the providence of God. Go forth bowed down and lifted up. Feel ever, as you now feel, your slender preparation, nay, your utter inability to meet the stern responsibilities of life alone; but, at the nay, your utter inability to meet the stem responsibilities of life alone; but, at the same time, trust firmly in the blest assurance that you can do all things through Christ Jesus the Lord. Then "trust in your Heavenly Father, and bravely your mission process."

In the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, Prof J. G. Glinkscales made a masterly effort before the Alumnæ. His speech was replete with wisdom, wit and humor. We think we see in the near future a time when Williamston can point with pardonable to Prof. Clinkscales as her most noted offspring. He is certainly a promising young man. By the way, he is just now in his honeymoon. As to whether a man who is just married can make a better speech than before, we leave his hearers to judge. We have never tried it. His theme was "Female Culture," and was ably discussed in a speech of one hour and a half in length.

We were pained to see the Alumna wearing mourning. Since last met one of their number has been removed by death. After a sad, touching song by the association, "In Memorian" of Miss Ida Jones, their decreased sixter the aversions learn sed sister, the exercises were closed. B. WARE.

ELECT YOUR BEST MEN.

MR. EDITOR: Gov. Hampton, in his address to the people of Anderson in March last, advised them to send their best men to the Legislature. He repeated his advice in his recent speech at Ninety Six, congratu lating the people of Abbeville and Edgefield upor the nomination of McGowah and Bonham.

The Columbia Register, in a recent issue says: "It was a decided hit made by Gov. Hampton in his speech at Anderson when he told the people of South Carolina to pick out their best men and send them to the Legislature-make them go into the service. He was giving advice which has since found a lodgment in every nook and corner of the State. And if we read the signs of the times aright, the people are preparing to act upon the suggestions by demanding the services of the very best men who are not now in office. It is no time for selecting Legislators with reference to expediency, locality or occupation." The italics are my own. In my judgment, then, it is folly to select their occupation or their residence, and far more damaging to choose them "for their availability on the grounds of expediency. It is the best men that are wanted to deal with the intricate questions before the next Legislature. The men who are best adapted to the work before them, because of their training, industry and devotion to the State. Men of brains and of character, with the will and determination to do what is right, regardless of the effect it will have upon their popularity." The Winnsboro News and Herald, taking up the theme, says: "It is extremely important that each county should send her best men to represent her. This is the advice given by Gov. Hampton, and it would be uncommonly good advice by whomsoever given. In hoosing representatives to consult for the good of the State, people should lay aside personal prejudices and vote for those who can do the most good." Gen. McGowan, responding in a speech to a serenading party at Anderson on the 10th, said: "When the proper time comes for your orimary election, go out and nominate your and most suitable men for office, eference to whether they want it or not Do not be governed by who is most anxious or who has electioneered most. Select ther because they are the proper men-not because they want to serve; net because you wish to honor them, but because you wish to take care of yourselves." All this is nost excellent advice, words wisely spoken; and it becomes the people of Anderson, who delight to be called the "Banner County" in all matters of progress, to decide whether they will heed the advice and elect their best and most suitable men, or whether we will elect those most anxious for office and who electioneer the most. We shall see. DEMOCRAT.

EDUCATION-NO. 1. Mr. EDITOR: "Happy is the man that indeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding," is as sound in theory to-day as when it first fell from the lips of Solomon. Since that time, however, the world has seen fit to make it read, "Happy is the man that findeth money, and the man that getteth goods." Such doctrine is pernicious, and should not be countenanced Wisdom and understanding is man's best merchandise. As men become educated they learn to be wise. People that are ignorant know nothing of the blessings of an education, and not unfrequently are disposed to look upon it with contempt. Others, again, have a mistaken idea of what education is, and think the child or man who is able to repeat whole books from memory is, therefore, educated. Some peo ple would have you cram a child's head with the words of a book just as a good domestic would stuff a chicken before baking, and then have everybody to fall down and worship the calf. In days of more successful pedagoguery the average country the length of the birch he used, and the number of useless phrases he had learned, by dints and blows, the child to repeat from nemory. His great object in teaching was to cram the contents of the book in the child's head regardless of utility or practicability. In such teaching, or education (call it such,) there is both fraud and humbuggery. The world has done well to call such pedagogues, and immortality has been estowed upon them by Washington Irving in the ludicrous character of Icabod Crane. Happy for the country that this class of teachers is fast dying out, and the places that once knew them will soon know them no more forever. The education of the young has been left entirely to the whims or caprice of their natural guardians. If children are sent to schools in the country, in many instances it is for the purpose of getting them out of the way at home. No attention is paid to any systematic course of study. The child goes to school for a few days, is then stopped. While such a system of schooling is continued, the great number of children will grow up in ignorance.-With all the boasted civilization of the North a dread of communism is beginning to take hold of the people. This spirit of communism will not be confind there alone like water, it will seek its level, and will permeate every community where ignorance prevails. "We make a great mistake," said the statesman Calhoun, "in supposing all nations capable of self-government. Was he not right? Do men know how to govern themselves by innate ideas of government? Do we not have to be trained educated and governed at home around the fireside in order to keep down endless confusion in the family circle? What families are governed the best, the ignorant or the educated? What nations are governed best, those that are governed by brute, physical force, or those that are governed by high moral and mental strength? Government is of divine origin. The world was made to to be governed, whether by few or many That people is governed best by a government whose subjects know best how to govern themselves. And the question, "Should education be compulsory?" is be ginning to receive a more serious consideration among the thoughtful. A government that seeks to protect minorities as well as to oncede the rights of majorities, must look with distrust on everything that tends to breed a spirit of communism; and how to avert it will soon be a question more fraught with interest with statesmen than the subject of enfranchising 8,000,000 of ignorant negroes to exercise the rights of suffrage at the ballot box. If instead of such a universal suffrage the great philanthropist, and the party of great moral ideas, had bent its energies to bring about a universal education among all the ignorant classes so as to elevate and ennoble the poorer elements of society, white and colored, then that party might have done a work which should last. It is a bad thing to give a child a sharp knife. Nine cases out of ten it will cut itself. So it is bad policy to put power into the hands of those who know not even the government should be overthrown by communism, it is scarcely entitled to sympathy Physicians now admit that "The shield is It has been nursing a poisonous reptile in nobler than the spear." How much better then to shield the system against billious attacks, by using Dr. Harrer & Liver Pills, than to cure the disease when firmly seated. its ewn bosom, whose fatal fangs may be felt at no distant day, unless the monster A CARD.

MR. EDITOR: It would seem from the representations of my friends, that I have be very unfortunate in defining my position in reference to my possible candidacy for the Senate. When I said I would not be the one "to open the ball" in the early part of May, I intended to intimate that I thought it too early then for the canvass to begin But when I also said that whether I became a candidate later must depend upon the number of those of my own political faith who might seem to wish it. I desired to be understood as placing the matter where I thought it properly belonged-with those whose duty it was to select candidates; and personally, as neither declining nor seeking the position. Regretting to have to appear again to say even this little, I am,

Liver is King.

The Liver is the imperial organ of the whole human system, as it controls the life, health and happiness of man. When it is disturbed in its proper action, all kinds of ailments are the natural result. The digesailments are the natural result. The digestion of food, the movements of the heart and blood, the action of the brain and nervous system, are all immediately connected with the workings of the Liver. It has been successfully proved that Green's August Flower is unequalled in curing all persons afflicted with Dyspepsia or Liver Complaint, and all the numerous symptoms that result from an unhealthy condition of the Liver and Stomach.
