ited from the Republican could be banshed from our land. That no such letter as written by a Democrat from Green ille is too evident to be doubted by any person, for if any such feeling existed iny same man would have more policy han to express it, and every fair-minded citizen of the Union knows that the people of South Carolina are to-day as true and loyal to the Union as the people of any American State. Every sensible man knows also that there is not the slightest intention to resist the United States authorities in the case of the Ladd murderers, except by regular process in the courts, and that the ultimate and binding decision is to be had from the Supreme Court of the United States.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

It was one of the sources of pride to our old judiciary that cases of rules for contempt of court were very rarely necessary in South Carolina 'for the protection of the dignity or the character of our Circuit Judges, but since reconstruction our people have grown so familiar with this once extraordinary remedy that we do not exaggerate when we say that it has fallen into disrepute; and is itself viewed with contempt. We had hoped that with the restoration of our judiciary this proceeding would lapse into its ancient disuse, and no longer appear upon our Court dockets as a tacit endorsement of its frequent use by Judges like Carpenter, who felt they were continually an object of universal contempt, and were constantly snapping and snarling at every person they could imagine had offered them any indignity, either actual or constructive, but it seems from the recent case of Mr. Harvey Terry, of the Columbia bar, that this hope is not to be fully realized, for a time at least. Mr. Terry had a case before Judge Shaw in Columbia some time ago, in which he failed to succeed, on account of which he published in the Charlotte Observer an article criticizing the Judge and attorneys, and reflecting upon the action of each. For this publication he was ruled for contempt, and the case heard by Judge Aldrich, who found Mr. Terry guilty of contempt, and fined him five hundred dollars.

This reminds us strongly of the action of Judge Carpenter in ruling the editor of the True Southron for some publication about him, except that, perhaps, Judge Carpenter had a more reasonable case than the one of which we speak. Mr Terry's offense was not in the presence of the Court, and was not in disobedience of its orders, and therefore was not a contempt within the decisions of our State before the war. We comment upon this case, not because of any sympathy on our part for Mr. Terry, for we have none, and do not doubt that he has acted very improperly, but there is a principle underlying the case which is of too much importance to pass over. It involves the very liberty of the press, for it establishes the precedent that if an editor or a correspondent criticises a Circuit Judge he can be arraigned upon a rule for contempt, and punished at the pleasure of the Judge he has offended, so that if put into full practice no man will dare criticise the Judges, and they will become a favored class, whose acts cannot be held up in their true character, unless it is good, through the press for public scrutiny. Such a result would prove fatal to the very existence of our
