The Wonders of American marriage would, if they could be truly described interest European people more than the rude and boisterous life described by Bret Harte. It would astonish a Frenchman for example, to know that American fathers rear their daughters in luxury, smile on their marriages with penniless clerks, and make absolutely no provision of a steadfast kind for the future of these daughters. The Frenchman might ask in amazement, not why a poor husband is accepted, but how the daughter of luxury is to be provided for, and on what resources her children are to lean? He would probably be told that the father's many than the daughter's many than the daughter than the daug mission ended with the daughter's mar-riage; he would see a complacent smile on the father's face as his friends congratulated him, and would slowly gather in that this complacency had two fators:

over at last." For our part, we have ceased to pity poor girls growing up in scanty homes and marrying penniless young men. These girls are trained for the life that awaits them. They must be content with little all their lives; but all their lives; but all their lives. youth has been a preparation for such content. But a daughter bred in luxurious idleness, taught none of the econ-omies that belong to humble life, and then married without dower, deserves more pity than men usually bestow upon her. And her husband, full of enterprise and capacity, takes up a burden whose weight love may lighten but can-not carry. Business failures, broken homes, miseries, and crimes, lie behind this curtain.

'I have done my duty by her, and it is Common sense is our boasted American virtue; but there is one subject to which we rarely apply it. If we did, we should see in strong light this simple law of duty: it is a father's solemn duty to secure to his daughter, as far as lies in his power, that state in life to which he has bred her. If he is poor, he has no right to give her the duxuries of wealth -no right as between her and him. If he is rich, his wealth ought to be taxed, and his forethought more seriously taxed, to provide for her a permanent income, which will procure for her that degree of luxury to which she has been accus-

The doctrine, that the father's duty ends when the husband's begins, is a fearful delusion, full of the miseries which sometimes reveal themselves in divorce courts. This husband may be more than a father in watchful solicimore than a father in watchild soler tude; but experience warns us from every page of life, that he may utterly fail in his duty. Nature gave the daugh-ter a father, and has appointed no hour when his duties cease. It is a fearful misreading of Scripture which finds such a limit in God's word. There is no satire so keen, if we had eyes to see and ears to hear, as that which is enacted when a fond father gives the penniless youth, to whom he also gives his daughter, a sum of money to be invested in business. As though any of us could overlook for a moment the penils of business the fact that perils of business—the fact that, ged by experience, failure is the rule and success the exception. In few years the business will break down, and the young wife, with children at her knees, will realize a little what it is to be poor; and the husband, whose business has broken under the strain of living expenses, will realize a little what it is to marry a portionless child of luxury For she was really portionless. The European system of dower would have invested her fortune in the most secure way, would have kept it religiously secured to her and her children, so that whatever vicissitudes attend the business of her husband, her living would have been secure. A better and kinder way than the usual one would be to rear these girls in kitchen and shop; to keep from them the sight of fine clothes and costly dinners-to train them for the hard work of life. We have recently looked in upon one of these tragedies of our Ameran life-the waste of a wife's fortune by her husband. We saw no shame in the was absolutely no sign that he felt one twinge of dishonor, and yet he had done the one meanest thing a man can do. There is no excuse for those who devour widows' houses, unless it be that the men unblushingly commit the greater arise. unblushingly commit the greater crime of putting the fortunes of their wives in peril. Women have many just causes of complaint; but the cries some of them utter do not touch their proper wees. If those of them who know the real evil should speak, they would say: "Our fathers rear us tenderly; but they marry us without giving us practical advice, or means of independence, or security for the manner of life into which we were born. Our husbands take our portion of goods, and treat it in all respects as their ercise any sufficient forethought for our helplessness and that of our children."

We are speaking of the rule; there are many honorable exceptions, and as we advance in real civilization, there will be more of these exceptions - Methodist.

The mind has reached what may be designated a "dead seen that for the past five or six years the South has exported each year from one point" in its tension. The excitement is over, the agony of anticipation, the tremhundred millions to two hundred millions of dollars worth of cotton alone, and ought to have received somewhere near bling doubt between hope and fear of escape, has exhausted the irritability of that sum in money or some other form of wealth. In addition to this the Souththe mind, and there is, as it were, a pause, an interval of passive endurance between the end of the struggle for life and the ern grain crops and meat crops are large and increasing, and will soon become articles of export beyond the needs of bitterness of romance and agony of disappointment which may begin at death. In this interval the mind is released from home consumption. At several points in the Southern States cotton factories are springing into prosperous existence, suptension of its effort from self-preservation, and almost rebounds with a sense plied with the most improved machinery, and the manufacturing interests are developing. In the face of these facts it is idle to speak of the "poverty" of the South. Such complaints emanate chiefly from these who were rich before the war of relief that comes with certainty, even though the assurance be that of impendthough the assurance be that of impending death. In the pause there is time and opportunity for the recognition of surrounding circumstances, which have been, as it were, overlooked in the yearning for life. The clearness of mental vision, the recognizance of detail displayed at such a moment, are remarkfrom those who were rich before the war and are poor now, the descendants of the wealthy planters. But though these do not own the property it is none the less there in other hands. Men who were the able, not only on account of the strange overseers before the war, are in many incircumstances under which they occur, stances the proprietors now, and these do not complain. Property has changed but in degree. Men and women who have for some time previously exhibited hands to a great extent, and very much of it was destroyed during the war or swept out of existence afterward, but no trace of delicacy or refinement, ex-hibit characteristic traits of thoughtfulness. THE LARGEST WORKSHOP IN THE WORLD.-We have received the annual report of the establishment of Krupp, of Essen, Germany, just published, and translated an extract respecting this famous workshop. The manufacture of cast steel and refined steel alone employs 298 steam engines, seventy-seven large sterm hammers, and 8,500 men. It turns out daily ten miles of rails, with a corresponding amount of wheels, springs, axles, and all the complete steel work for railroad carriages. This is Krupp's main contribution to the arts of peace; what he does for the art of war is shown by the fact that he completes 300 large can-non every mouth, and since 1847 he has turned out over 15,000 cannons. The establishment is lighted up every night with 21,000 gas burners; its different parts are connected with thirty-seven miles of railway, employing twenty-four locomotives and 700 cars, while the various offices are connected by forty-four

FOOD FOR HORSES.-It has become quite common of late to hear of the sud-den death of valuable horses, and the wonder is that they should die so suddenly, when it was supposed that the best care was given in regard to their food, exercise, etc. The fact is that very few owners of horses seem to be aware of the great danger of feeding fine meal to horses. Many an excellent animal is taken suddenly ill, and in spite of every effort for its relief, dies in a short time, the only thing out of the way in its case having been the feeding of fine meal. The trouble is, that frequently the meal hardens, literally bakes, on the wall of the stomach, forming an indigestible mass that cannot be removed, and from the suffering it causes, there is no relief The livery men in towns and cities have discovered this fact, and for meal are substituting cracked corn, which is wholesome, nourishing and never attended with danger. It is time horse owners generally were made acquainted

Of course, so important a strip of territory, lying temptingly in the way of the Bull and the Bear, and of the last importance to their interests, could not remain intact. Russian intrigue and British bullying have been going on for some time, and it would seem, at last, that the diplomacy of Gortschakoff had proven stronger with Shere Ali than the threats of Beaconsfield. The rejection of the English mission is an affront that may be made and a square back down on the part of the Ahmeer accorded, so that warlike difficulties shall be prevented. But, if not, an English expeditionary force is likely to teach the Barbarian manners, according to the British estimate of the same, and when this force shall move, it will be with a mighty power to back it up at home. It is not likely in such an event, that Russia will help the Afghanese. She is in no condition to do so, in a military or monetary sense. It will suffice for her to hold her rival engaged in a most costly and bloody conflict with a very fierce people, who will fight like demons before they can be subjugated; and the wily Muscovite Chancellor will then have the satisfaction of witnessing Austria squandering men and money to subdue Bosnia, while England wrestles mournfully in the hills and defiles of Afghanistan. impure blood. It is

ANTI-BILIOUS.

It acts directly upon the liver, restoring it when diseased to its normal condition; and in regulating the activity of this great gland every other organ of the system is benefited. In Blood Diseases it has no equal as a partifier. It improves digestion, and assists mature to eliminate all impurities from the system; and the interest in the cheapest medicine in the market, it is also superior to all known remedies. While it is the cheapest medicine in the market, it is also superior to all known remedies. While it is more effectual than Blue Mass, it is mild and perfectly safe, containing nothing that can in the slightest degree injury the system. It does not sicken or give pain; neither does it weaken the patient, nor leave the system constipated, as do most other medicines.

It Cuffes pepala, Billous Fever, Headache, Sick Headache, Water-Brash, Heartburn. Sick Stomach. Jaundice, Colle, Vertigo, Neuralgia, Palpitation of the Heart, Female irregularities and Weakness, all Skin and Blood Disease, Woorms, Fever and Ague, and Condipation of the Bowels.

In small doses it is also a sure cure for Chronic Diarrhoca.

Taken two or three times a day, it prevents Yellow Fever, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, Cholera, and Samali-Pox.

HOW TO BE Use Dr. Case's Liver YOUR OWN Purifier, a pleasant Doctor.

ANT-BILLOUS.

And save your doctor bills. Only 25 cts. a bottle. It is the most effective and valuable medicine ever offered to the American people. As fast as its morts become knewn, its use become universal in every community. No family will be without it after having once tested its great value. It has proved an inestimable blessing to thousands who have used it, bringing back health and strength to those who were seemingly at death's door. Prepared at the Laboratory of the Home Medicine Co., Philadelphia, Pa. SESSION begins on the First of October, Academic Department and in the Schools of Law, Medicine, Engineering and Agriculture.
